PARIS VEERS TO DEBT ACCORD

Told 1930 Levy May Not Be Valid.

Mayor Cermak reviews results of his campaign for economy in city departments. County officials discuss high total of tax delinquencies and plan a plan to put teeth in tax foreclosure system. City Controller Bowler gives reasons why city tax anticipation warrants are sound investment. Details on page 4.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The revenue committee, headed by Joseph E. Brittain, was given some startling pictures last night of the financial condition and prospects of the local governments in a five hour session at the Union League club.

Corporation Counsel Sexton and County Attorney Hayden Bell cited a recent state Supreme court decision which places in jeopardy, under present conditions, the 1930 tax assessment.

This decision, in the case of Frederick C. Aldrich, holds that one case of fraud in an assessment places the burden of proof upon the county to show that the assessment is good. With Harry S. Cutmore, the skilled assessor, fired and the rumors current of what the board of assessors intend to do, Attorney Bell was very doubtful whether he could sustain the validity of the 1930 assessment.

Terrifying, Says Sexton.

Corporation Counsel Sexton referred to the situation as "serious and terrifying."

"Under the present tax organization," said Mr. Bell, "it is a question whether a legal assessment can be produced. The court has held that a valid assessment must be based upon a clean, honest and intelligent judgment. There must be no willful or systematic discrimination, either between properties or groups of properties. I doubt whether such an assessment can be produced by the present machinery."

Mayor Cermak, who was present, declared that he would oppose any increase in real estate taxes.

"Any increase in any other kind of taxes," added Fred W. Sargent.

"You may have to stand for an income tax," retorted the mayor," but that must be deducted from the real estate taxes."

Urges Aid for Cermak.

Later Mr. Sargent followed up his plea by saying that the committee should aid Mayor Cermak in cutting expenses. He went on:

"I feel reasonably certain that the tax rate can be scaled down very considerably without any loss of efficiency. Some features of the government expenses have been so thoroughly analyzed in the press that I think this committee should respectfully request the board of education to comply with Mayor Cermak's plan to have his advisory committee investigate the expenditures of the board. The school board's expenditures have gone up by leaps and bounds."

Cites Millions Wasted.

A little later J. Louis Jacobs, efficiency expert of the county, estimated that between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 was wasted by the local governments annually.

"I speak of money which is needlessly spent," said Jacobs.

Again Mr. Sargent said that he thought that "quite a number of jobs could be lopped off without injury to service."

But the committee as a whole did not express its opinion. It did not say whether it would stand for any new kind of tax, an increase in the amount of taxes, or will insist upon a reduction in governmental expenses. However, Mr. Sargent and Mr. Brittain were made a committee of two, and Mr. Sargent said that he desired that the committee also consider a cut in governmental expense.

Would Hear School Board.

At an early date it is planned to have President Myers of the school board, together with any trustees he may desire to have with him, before the committee. Possibly that invitation will be extended for the next committee session tentatively set for Monday evening.

Mayor Cermak told the committee that in his opinion the investigation started by the school board would not command public confidence. He said that he recently called in the architect of the school board and told him that certain employés whom the architect and he did not know were on his pay roll.

When the committee made no com-

WORLD FLYERS PARADED, DINED AND LIONIZED

Greeting Is Second Only to Lindy's.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—Two men who made a merry-go-round out of this spinning globe were ready for their beds tonight when hero worshiping New York finished paying its homage to them. Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the 'round the world in a hurry flyers, were too tired to make any definite decision about their future plans.

A country-wide tour has been proposed, offers for lectures and bids from film companies have been received. To all of these the two flying men turned deaf ears this afternoon. They did not care to look any further forward than tomorrow—and tomorrow is to be a day of rest.

Get Tumultous Welcome.

Today was their day of glory. From midtown Manhattan to the Battery, on land and water, they rode in triumph. New York was an emotional sea of noisy welcome. It was a traditional greeting in every way and measured against the historic celebration on Lindbergh's return from France—as every welcoming party must be—it was the second greatest.

The parade, a luncheon, and a dinner marked the high spots in the day's round of festivities. Post and Gatty came through each triumphantly. Post, his slight imperfection of hearing made absolute by the steady roar of the Winnie Mae's motor on his eight day ride, heard little. But he got an eyeful. Gatty, the lively one, sobered down amid the clamor.

It Was Something Special.

"Is New York always like this, or is it something special for the boys?" asked Mrs. Gatty as she left the Ritz Carlton this morning with her husband to begin the day.

Mrs. Gatty did not see her husband until this morning, having been delayed in her airplane trip from California. Mrs. Post, who has been in the city several days, undertook an explanation.

"They have been acting this way ever since the boys landed," she declared, "and I guess it will keep going all day."

The two flying men spoke briefly over the radio and to massed throngs several times during the welcome. Post does not find public speaking easy. The tumultuous welcome at city hall, coupled with Mayor James J. Walker's wisecracks, left him as high in the air as he was at any time on the record breaking trip. He and Gatty stood with their shiny gold medals dangling from their coat lapels and grinned happily as they stammered their appreciation.

Proves What He Says.

"It is utterly beyond words for me to express my thanks for this wonderful reception," said Post. There was a full minute of silence as Post scratched his head furiously. "I guess that's all," he said finally and backed sheepishly away.

The chairman sought to encourage Gatty to a greater loquacity, but had little success. The navigator of the now famous flight said hesitantly:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I would just like to add my appreciation to Mr. Post's for the wonderful welcome—and to Mayor Walker and the city officials and, in fact, everybody."

The flyers had entered the aldermanic chamber to the strains of "See the Conquering Hero Comes." Their wives, loaded with flowers, preceded them to the platform.

Abandons Sleep Reluctantly.

The day began for the flyers shortly before 10 a. m. Gatty had been awakened a bit earlier by the arrival of Mrs. Gatty and went into Post's room to get him up.

The pilot of the Winnie Mae gave up, however, and at 10:50 every one was aboard the good ship Macom, veteran of a hundred welcoming jaunts. It would not be a welcome without the Macom, and that is as good a reason as any for the fact that the two heroes and a lot of official and semi-official greeters went for a five mile boat ride down the North river when they could have got to the Battery a lot quicker in automobiles.

Upon leaving city hall the party dropped the soldiers, sailors and marines who had furnished an escort of honor, and headed by a motorcycle squadron sped to the Ritz Carlton hotel, where Mayor Walker was host at a luncheon.

At the hotel Col. Lindbergh joined

STAR AND PANTS GONE, POLICEMAN BLAMES THIEVES

Charles Schisler of 1950 Potomac avenue walked into the South State street station last night. A flushed tint of obvious embarrassment asserted itself through his sun tan.

"I'm a policeman," he began. Desk Sergeant William Murphy eyed the speaker. Sergt. Murphy tittered.

"You're a what?" demanded the desk sergeant dubiously.

"Stolen," answered Schisler. "That's why I'm here. My wife and I drove to the 12th street beach. Some hoodlums broke into the machine while I was swimming. They took $50. They also took my star and my wife's purse."

"Likewise your pants," finished Desk Sergeant Murphy, as Schisler, barefooted and clad only in a bathing suit, walked out of the station.

TEACHERS LOSE PLEA FOR WAGE AID FROM STATE

Hopes of the Chicago school teachers that the state would provide funds with which to meet at least a part of their long past due wages faded out last night when Oscar Nelson, state auditor, announced the result of a conference in which he and Gov. Emmerson, and State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett participated.

"We are advised that it is legally impossible for the state to issue tax anticipation warrants against the school distributive fund," Mr. Nelson said. "It had been suggested that we might issue warrants for Chicago's share of the 1930 fund, which would be approximately $3,200,000.

"But Attorneys Chapman and Cutler, recognized as authorities on public bonds, and to whom the banks would look for advice before purchasing the warrants, advise us that the state cannot borrow against this fund. The states is empowered to borrow only for the expense of the state."

Nude Woman in Fight on Hollywood Street

Hollywood, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—Attracted by a commotion in the back seat of an automobile early this morning, a policeman reached into the car and dragged forth a nude woman, Mrs. Pearl Fairbanks, 30, waitress. Next came a second woman, who had blackened Mrs. Fairbank's eyes and, the latter said, broken her nose. At the police station the husbands of the two women, who also were in the car, as well as a third woman, said Mrs. Fairbanks got melancholy at a midnight beach party and took off her clothes to drown herself, which necessitated the disciplinary measures applied by the other woman.

Stands Selling Fireworks Dot County Roads

You can take the fireworks away from the city, but you can't take the city away from the fireworks. Several years ago Chicago prohibited the sale of explosives within her borders. Yesterday a tour of the highways disclosed unrestricted sale of fireworks just beyond the city limits. The number of sales, officials report, indicates another insane Fourth.

The only restriction of state law is that the pyrotechnics shall not be sold within 100 feet of a gas station. Yet both this law and a county regulation that no sales be made on the county highways were being flouted yesterday.

Find Stands Near Gas Tanks.

Not only were fireworks stands found to be doing business inside the 100 foot limit—in one case within fifteen feet of the gas tanks themselves—but some of these stands were located at a juncture of two county highways. Others were found within twenty, fifty, and 100 feet from the gas tanks.

Inquiries at the county highway police stations elicited the information that the county commissioners, in ordering the sales stopped on highways under their jurisdiction, merely passed a resolution to that effect. Not being a legislative body, they could not order arrests if the resolution were ignored, consequently county police have not interfered, it was said.

"We couldn't do it anyway," Lieut. Meyering, brother of Sheriff Meyering, said. "We have only so many men, there are so many things to be done, and only so many hours in the day in which to do them."

Sales in No Man's Land.

That unattached area known as No Man's Land, north of Wilmette, harbors a flock of the fireworks stands. Two of the booths were located near gas stations, one of them constituting a flagrant violation of the state law by coming well within the prescribed limit.

At Lincoln and Crawford avenues, where another group of the stands was discovered, the fireworks were being dispensed from a counter hardly twelve feet away from the tanks filled with gasoline. Across the road a similar condition was observed, with two fireworks booths on either side of the tanks, but farther away from the danger point.

Both Lincoln and Touhy avenues are county highways. Both had their share of the booths, proclaiming their stock in trade with glaring signs. At the point where Lincoln crosses Touhy, one dealer had his stand only about 25 feet from gas tanks.

Bundesen Issues Reminder.

Roosevelt road between Kolmar and Harlem avenues, on the south side of the street, lies outside the city limits, and stands have always been numerous there. Yesterday their number seemed to have declined appreciably, but more than a dozen were noted within that stretch. South Western avenue, between 87 and 99th streets, harbored a similar condition, with the stands clustered thickly on the west side of the street, which also is outside the city limits.

With the annual sacrifice of fingers, toes, and eyes on the altar of a distorted patriotism in mind, Health Commissioner Bundesen yesterday issued a reminder to the public that fireworks are not identical with the spirit of '76.

"Obedience to the law is liberty," he said in a statement. "Every year on or about July 4th enough illegal powder is set off to blow several children into kingdom come. For the last seven years the average July 4th casualty list for Chicago has been twenty-eight persons more or less seriously injured, with four deaths resulting from severe burns. Ten noisy celebrators were affected with tetanus or lockjaw, and five of those died from their hurts. A safe and sane Fourth is within the reach of every one."

A Wild Scot's Battle Upsets the Commons

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 2.—The staid old house of commons went on a spree tonight, staging the wildest scene that the British parliament has known in 25 years. Fists flew freely in a battle royal that followed efforts to remove from the session a battling Scotch member. Eyes were blackened, dignified evening clothes were ripped and the taciturn Britishers so far forgot themselves in the excitement as to resort to American slang phrases.

James McGovern, Labor M. P. from Glasgow, was the central figure of the free for all. He lost the decision. Defending McGovern, among others, was John Beckett, the Laborite who won fame a year ago by seizing the mace, almost sacred emblem of authority, and racing down the floor with it.

McGovern Defends Preachers.

The evening's entertainment began when McGovern protested against the arrest of two Scotch preachers for holding meetings on the Glasgow Green without permits. Not satisfied with the secretary of Scotland's reply, McGovern remained standing while the speaker was on his feet.

When McGovern defiantly refused to sit down, Prime Minister MacDonald moved his suspension, to which the house agreed. McGovern stood rigid, firmly refusing to move, and the fun was on.

The sergeant at arms, Col. Kepper, adorned in knee breeches, a tail coat and carrying a clanking sword, marched formally down the aisle and in polite terms requested the offending member to obey the house order. McGovern shook his head and shouted "No!" so loudly that the farthest spectator in the last gallery could understand that he meant to remain.

The Battle Is On.

A half dozen attendants, wearing the somber black and white of proper evening attire and pompously decorated with badges and chains of office, filed into the chamber and surrounded the Scotsman. One stalwart aid grasped him by the ankles. Another grasped him by the head and, while the others grabbed at the most available bits of anatomy, they started a march to the door with the now shouting and kicking member.

McGovern fought wildly. Three labor members, Maxton, Buchanan and McKinley, leaped from their seats and plunged into the fray, desperately attempting to rescue their comrade. Gold braided attendants, the sergeant at arms, his sword, the battling Scotsman and a half dozen of his friends were on the floor at once, a writhing, biting, kicking, and scratching mass of humanity, and the customary silence of the hall was rent by shouts, muffled oaths, and the ripping of torn clothing.

The Attendants Get Decision.

Slowly the attendants became masters of the situation and McGovern, still fighting wildly and unwilling to admit defeat, was dragged down the aisle to the doorway and bodily ejected.

While the free-for-all was in progress most of the Conservatives sat silently awaiting the outcome, but here and there shouts went up as members called advice or shouted invectives at political enemies across the hall.

"Wring his neck!" a Conservative member shouted, relaxing into American slang in his excitement as he stood on a chair to get a better view of the battle. "Punch him in the eye!"

Before the struggle ended the speaker adjourned the session. Afterwards, when McGovern had been declared the loser on a technical knockout, it was announced that he would be suspended for the rest of the session, the members filed back to their seats, renewed on their faces the customary mask of calm and bored composure, and business proceeded as usual.

MRS. CROSSWHITE RECEIVES EARLY MORNING CALLER

Mrs. Bertha Crosswhite, 57 years old, a widow, of 5612 South Honore street, woke up early this morning to find a burglar in her bedroom taking $10 out of her purse. She seized her revolver from a chair beside her and said: "Hands up." The burglar dropped the purse and raised his hands. Mrs. Crosswhite marched him out to the front porch and screamed for help. At her first cry the burglar dashed down the steps and away. Mrs. Crosswhite fired three shots, but he did not falter. In his hand was the $10 he had removed from her purse. Mrs. Crosswhite had forgotten to take it from him.

The other three suspects escaped.

FRANCE YIELDS TO U. S.; MAKES FRESH OFFER

Accepts Important Points in Note.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 2.—A last minute effort to settle the moratorium negotiations between the United States and France on the basis of President Hoover's proposal without recourse to a general war debt holiday conference was made tonight, when the conversations, scheduled to be held between Premier Laval and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, were called off pending a reply to a new French offer sent to Washington.

This sudden decision was the result of a long conference between American Ambassador Edge and Finance Minister Flandin this afternoon at which it was recognized that further negotiations on the basis of the American memorandum yesterday could only result in a collapse.

Agree to Compromises.

To avoid this the Laval cabinet at a meeting presided over by President Doumer drew up an informal answer to the American note, agreeing to most of the compromises suggested and, placing the remaining points of difference on a plane hitherto undiscussed.

Since this newly injected element was not covered in Washington's note, which fixed the basis for the discussion for the American negotiators, it was impossible for Secretary Mellon to take it up formally with Premier Laval before getting President Hoover's approval.

Exactly what this new element is, is uncertain, except that it suggests a way out of the tangle caused by France's apprehensions over the $120,000,000 guarantee fund which she must deposit with the world bank. In usually well informed quarters it is suggested that this might be a scheme for making the deposit in quarterly installments instead of in a lump sum. This, however, according to some interpretations, would be hard to reconcile with Washington's stand that American cannot be drawn into any juridical tangle over the Young plan, which it does not officially recognize.

Report French Surrender.

On other points the French are said to have made complete surrender to the terms of the American memorandum, which represented at least a half-way surrender to the original French demands. They are willing to have the whole unconditional annuities released to Germany, providing the American Federal Reserve bank or big private groups chip in to help finance France's Balkan protegés.

Likewise, they are willing to allow Germany a longer period to repay the postponed payments than the five years originally held out for. Some said ten or more years is probable.

If the new offer is not accepted by Washington—or, perhaps, even if it is—the French are prepared to go ahead with a plan for calling a conference of creditor nations.

Ready for General Parley.

Lord Tyrrell, British ambassador, who saw Foreign Minister Briand last night, called at the Quai D'Orsay again today, and the two cronies reached a definite agreement to call a general debt conference if the last attempt of purely Franco-American negotiations fails. Both the French and British are hesitant about calling such a conference, because without the participation of America they could accomplish little, while it is feared that such an obvious attempt to tangle Uncle Sam up to his neck in old world political squabbles would turn congress against the moratorium.

Tomorrow morning, when the American reply arrives, and is transmitted by Ambassador Edge to Premier Laval, it will be known whether President Hoover's attempt to alleviate the troubles of Europe without America shouldering them herself will be successful. The feeling in semi-official quarters tonight is more optimistic than at any time since the negotiations started.

Room for Stumbling Block.

Wild reports from Berlin tonight rumored that a definite settlement had been reached and the chief amity cheer leaders in the French press hinted that an agreement "in principle" had been attained. This is more or less true, but the fact that the only remaining difference is a technical one does not necessarily mean that it cannot be a stumbling block.

And even when all the diplomatic difficulties have been smoothed out there remains one great danger—the French chamber.

In planning to declare a vacation before the negotiations are settled Premier Laval is playing a dangerous game. He is not only flirting with a political firing squad in the future, but Nationalist groups have learned of his intention and are going to try to overthrow the government before the cloture is declared. A number of prominent deputies signed a resolution tonight demanding that M. Laval keep the chamber going until the negotiations are completed.

The premier had come to the chamber with the cloture decree in his pocket and was thrown into quandary by this move. In his embarrassment he even consulted veteran newspaper men to find out whether he should yield to the demand or stick to his original intention.

Cabinet Faces Fall.

It is believed he decided on the latter course. If that is the case a determined effort will be made to overthrow the cabinet tomorrow on any issue that comes up.

The premier is handicapped because he wants to push through a bill for the relief of the French line before closing. He is on guard, however, and if he finds the battle getting too hot it is believed he will pull out the cloture decree and send the deputies on their way, remaining sole master of France's destinies until next fall. Unless his enemies get the drop on him a vacation will probably be declared at tomorrow afternoon's session.

BACKS GENERAL PARLEY

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 2.—Intervening suddenly in the discussion of President Hoover's moratorium plan, the British government tonight made known its willingness to hold a conference with other powers chiefly concerned, if the conversations at Paris should fail to bring about agreement.

Meanwhile it became known today that Great Britain has advised France that the French counter proposals constitute an entire alteration of the Young plan in regard to the question of guarantees, and that the proposals are unacceptable to Great Britain.

Delays Termed Dangerous.

"Should no early solution be found," today's official communique said, "the government has expressed its willingness, in order that an agreement should be reached with a minimum of delay, to hold a meeting of the powers chiefly concerned at an early date."

It is obvious from the wording of the message that the government believes any delays are dangerous. The communique made no mention of a site for the proposed conference, but it is believed that such a meeting under British auspices would be held in London.

It was noted by commentators that the message mentioned "the powers chiefly concerned" rather than "signatories to the Young plan."

Would Not Include U. S.

Although the communique refers to "powers chiefly concerned," it is interpreted here as meaning the powers, which are signatories to the Young plan. This would not include the United States. This is based on the assumption the British government may propose a way out of that part of the present difficulty in Paris, resulting from France's insistence that she be relieved from putting up a guarantee fund of $120,000,000, which, under the terms of the Young plan, Paris would be called upon to pay the Bank for International Settlements should Germany declare a moratorium next year.

Today's communique was regarded as merely an attempt to be helpful, and the best informed circles agreed that there is no reason to assume from its publication that the British government would align itself with any other power in any attempts to induce the United States to accept counter proposals detrimental to the Hoover plan.

British Attitude Unchanged.

The British attitude toward the debt plan may be regarded as entirely unchanged. Great Britain not only accepted President Hoover's moratorium plan with all its implications, but made her own contribution by enforcing a moratorium on interimperial war debts.

1,606 Los Angeles Autos Stolen; 1,701 Recovered

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—The sheriff's office auto theft detail today returned a report covering the fiscal year 1930-'31, which may stand as an all time record for enthusiastic reports by policemen. The report shows 1,606 automobiles were reported stolen during the 12 months, but that the sheriff's deputies recovered 1,701 cars, exactly 95 more than were reported stolen.

Emmerson Signs Graham Park Annexation Measure

Springfield, Ill., July 2.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson today signed senate bill 199, by Senator R. V. Graham, Chicago. It provides that any one or more park districts within cities of less than 500,000 population may be annexed to any other adjoining districts in the same county and in the same municipality.

MAC DONALD CALLS U. S. GREATEST LAND ON EARTH AT DINNER

LONDON, July 2.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald, speaking tonight at the Independence day dinner of the American society in London, called the United States "the greatest nation which now exists on the face of the earth." He also paid a glowing tribute to President Hoover's moratorium proposal, which he described as an act of "great wisdom, courage, and deep insight."

"I am perfectly certain," he said, "that, to whatever political party you may belong, you will excuse me if I say that the recent action of your President to alleviate and soothe the wounds and unhappiness of Europe is an action of great wisdom, of great courage, and of deep insight."

Describing the world's economic difficulties as a result of overproduction in the western hemisphere and underproduction in the eastern, he continued, saying: "Those of us who have been bending our heads in front of those difficulties, confessing that we are baffled by them; those of us who have gone through those experiences now begin to lift up our heads, to seek a way out, to see hope, to get new energy and new courage to face those problems. If that is so, it is very largely owing to that wise and courageous action of the President of the United States."

FRANCE YIELDS TWO POINTS ON DEBT HOLIDAY

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—Confronted with the plans of the United States and other powers to proceed, if necessary, to the establishment of an international debt holiday without her, France hastened today to make concessions which presage, the administration believes, an early agreement on the Hoover moratorium proposal.

W. R. CASTLE JR.

At the close of a day of bargaining between Washington and Paris over the radio phone Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle Jr. announced that the conference between Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and Premier Laval scheduled for today had been postponed until tomorrow.

"The negotiations in Paris," said Mr. Castle, "are continuing in an admirable atmosphere and we feel very optimistic as to the outcome."

State department officials late today said that no definite agreement with France could be expected prior to the conferences between Secretary Mellon and Prime Minister Laval tomorrow. It was admitted that another message further outlining the administration's position on the reparations situation had been drafted for transmittal to Ambassador Edge for his guidance tomorrow. Immediately after this statement was made Under Secretary Castle, Senator Morrow and Mr. Mills went to the White House for a further conference with the President.

Consult With Hoover.

The postponement of the meeting between Mr. Mellon and Mr. Laval was occasioned by the desire of the American treasury secretary to consult with Mr. Hoover by telephone on fresh proposals made by the French officials as a basis of compromise.

It is understood that the French have yielded ground to some extent with respect to two of the points in disputa. One pertains to Mr. Hoover's insistence that all of the unconditional reparations deposited by Germany in the Bank for International Settlements shall be released to Germany. The other relates to the period to be granted Germany for repaying the postponed reparations.

In each case, however, it appears there is a string tied to the concessions France is willing to make. If she recedes from her demand that $25,000,000 of the unconditional reparations be loaned to needy central European countries allied with France she wants definite assurance that they will receive financial assistance by some other means.

Arrange Credit Extensions.

Participating in the conference were Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, Eugene Meyer Jr., governor of the federal reserve board, and Mr. Castle. Mr. Meyer was of the opinion there would be no difficulty in arranging an extension of credits by the federal reserve banks of the United States and the central banks of Europe to the central European countries.

The French also receded to some extent from their original demand that Germany be required to repay the postponed reparations within five years. Mr. Hoover had been holding out for 25 years, but had intimated a willingness to compromise on this point.

The prevailing opinion here is that the concessions so quickly decided upon by France following the submission of Mr. Hoover's memorandum yesterday were the result of a reading between the lines of that document which convinced the French government that Mr. Hoover would endeavor to bring about a debt moratorium with or without the participation of France.

See Danger of Isolation.

It was admitted by administration officials during the day that consideration has been given to what steps should be taken to effect a postponement of debt payments in the event that France should fail to agree to the Hoover plan.

It is not doubted that the French cabinet perceived the danger of the isolation of France if the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Italy were to arrange a debt holiday with France left out. The first step would be the declaration of a reparations moratorium by Germany under the provisions of the Young plan. The United States and Great Britain then would negotiate individual agreements with all their debtors except France postponing their payments on the war debts one year.

As a result France, with income from reparations depleted, would be compelled to pay America and England or avail herself of a moratorium under the provisions of the debt settlements, which would prove costlier to her than would be the Hoover moratorium.

It transpires that the announcement of the British government of the intention of calling a conference of all interested powers on a moratorium plan if the negotiations in Paris should fail was made with the knowledge of the President.

Try to Satisfy France.

As it is understood here the principal purpose of the conference suggested by the British government would be to satisfy France with respect to the guarantee fund and other provisions of the Young plan which she feels might be affected by the Hoover moratorium. Such a conference, however, might also furnish the means for putting into effect a moratorium with France left out, if no agreement with France could be reached.

Italy also has been cooperating with the United States and Great Britain. The action of Mussolini in proclaiming yesterday that Italy was proceeding on the assumption that the moratorium on German reparations was already in effect, was interpreted as notice that Italy is lined up with America and Britain instead of France.

Mrs. Idelle Brin, 1510 South Ridgeway avenue, won a divorce yesterday before Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude from Nathan Brin, a clerk. Mrs. Brin charged cruelty. The Brins were married on Sept. 1, 1929, and separated last June 19. The wife was awarded custody of their daughter, Rosalyn, 11 months old, and $12 a week alimony.

BLAST OF BOMBS THREATENS ITALY WITH TERRORISM

Three Dead Following Latest Explosion.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 2.—Italy is facing a renewal of terrorism more serious than any since the period of the Matteotti murder seven years ago.

A bomb was exploded in a boxcar at Porto Naccio station, Rome, today, killing two men and fatally injuring a third. This culminates a series of four bomb explosions in various localities, with the loss of five lives, since the special military tribunal sentenced Michael Schirru, American who plotted to kill Mussolini, to death and a group of intellectuals to prison terms varying from five to 20 years.

Blast Wrecks Car.

The bomb was placed in a boxcar containing tobacco, dry goods, and other merchandise which arrived five days ago from France by way of Modane. When three station employes broke the seals to open the car this morning to permit customs officers to examine its contents, the infernal machine went off, killing the two men instantly and fatally wounding the third. The detonation spread the alarm around the Porto Maggiore quarter. Pieces of the car were blown 200 yards away.

Minister of Communications Giano, who had just returned to Rome from Milan, went immediately to the spot to conduct investigations, and police surveillance was tightened throughout the country. Italian newspapers were forbidden on special orders by the minister of the interior to breathe a word about the occurrance.

Several Other Bombings.

Two days after the condemnation of Schirru and the group of intellectuals in May, a bomb exploded in the streets of Bologna, killing three persons. A week later another explosion at Turin caused damage but no loss of life. Last week three bombs exploded at Genoa, causing considerable damage and smashing 100 windows in the royal palace.

Reports of unrest come from other parts of the country. At Parma an incident occurred between the Blackshirt militia and regular troops interned there. King Victor Emmanuel was to have inaugurated a new station at Milan yesterday, but he called off his visit at the last moment, ostensibly on the grounds of the illness of his cousin, the duke of Aosta.

Message from Il Duce.

Premier Mussolini, in a message to Milan Fascists a few days ago, said: "The revolution of the Fascists will be defended against every one and with every means. It will be defended against plots, against stupidity, and against any old or new enemy."

WOODS, HEAD OF U. S. JOB RELIEF, RETURNS HOME

New York, July 2.—(AP)—Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's committee on unemployment relief, returned from Europe tonight stating he was convinced that "the less the government figured as an active agency for relief the better."

Col. Woods spent nearly two months in studying unemployment conditions in England and Germany. He said he was not prepared to make public the recommendations for unemployment relief in this country that he will include in his report to President Hoover. He indicated, however, that he was opposed to direct national aid as a relief measure and hoped that industry as a whole could be relied upon for measures to meet the situation. He added that relief must be provided.

FORT DEARBORN MASSACRE TO BE RECALLED HERE

Memorial services in honor of the early settlers killed in the Fort Dearborn massacre 119 years ago on Aug. 15 will be held on the anniversary this year at the replica of Fort Dearborn, officials of the Century of Progress exhibition announced yesterday.

Tentative plans include a parade of soldiers to the fort, both in the uniforms of today and of 1812. A covered wagon will be part of the procession, while an airplane will circle overhead to make the contrast more vivid. At the conclusion of the ceremony a flag of flowers will be elevated on the staff of the fort. A girl designated as Miss Fort Dearborn, representing the spirit of pioneer Chicago, will act as hostess.

SPANISH RIOTERS BATTLE POLICE; BURN MONASTERY

Soldiers Use Sabers and Bayonets on Mob.

CORUNA, Spain, July 2.—(AP)—Three thousand rioting men and women tonight burned down a Catholic monastery and were fought off by police and soldiers with fixed bayonets when they attempted to fire two other Catholic institutions.

The Capuchin monastery of San Jose was burned and the flames destroyed four homes adjacent to the property. All the priests escaped and are in hiding.

Overrun Civil Guards.

The civil guard was unable to check the mob's first rush, but reinforcements massed at the monastery and charged the crowd with sabers and rifles. The rioters were pressed back after three had been wounded and several arrested, but firemen were unable to check the flames immediately.

The mob stormed out of a bull ring early in the evening at the end of an anti-Catholic meeting, charged across the city to the Capuchin monastery, set it afire, then streamed to the Jesuit college.

Troops were called out to reinforce the police when the situation threatened to get out of hand. They were deployed to protect the Dominican monastery as a part of the crowd gathered there. Driven back by soldiers, they fought with stones, sticks and knives in a desperate effort to break through the lines, but did not succeed.

Troops Are Posted.

There is no martial law yet, but troops were posted at strategic points throughout the city. The provincial governor reported to the minister of interior at Madrid that the situation was under control and that precautions had been taken to prevent further disorders.

The Capuchin monastery, built four years ago, was valued at about $50,000.

The authorities said tonight's mob was led by an anarchist whose name is Roque. Last May, while anti-Catholic riots were taking place elsewhere, no churches in Coruna were burned.

ONE KILLED IN STRIKE RIOT.

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

MADRID, July 2.—One policeman was killed and a number were wounded in serious strike riots today in the northern town of Logrono. The trouble began at 9:35 a. m., when rioters attacked a truck unloading in front of a steel plant, and continued intermittently during the day. The most serious clash occurred at 4:30 p. m., when strikers stoned police and fired on them.

Gen. Barrio, arriving from Malaga, where martial law is in effect during a general strike, issued a bulletin warning the strikers.

"I do not wish to spill the blood of my brothers to protect the life and liberty of others," he said, "but I will do so if necessary."

Behind the existing strikes and trying to create others is the Syndicato Unico. Six hundred members of that organization are working for a strike of the Spanish Telephone company, a branch of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation, which has been set for Saturday.

KILLED BY SWITCH ENGINE.

John Fetico, 55 years old, a laborer, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a switch engine in the yards of the Indiana Harbor Belt railway at Hammond, where he was employed.

K. OF C. PLAYGROUNDS CLOSED IN ITALY; ALL NEGOTIATIONS ENDED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 2.—The Knights of Columbus organization in Rome, believing a complete impasse has been reached between the Fascist government and the Holy See as a result of yesterday's note from the pope rejecting Italy's explanations, today not only closed for an indefinite period all its playgrounds here, but also dismissed the personnel in charge of them.

The main headquarters of the Knights of Columbus in the Via Sabina will be maintained, but all other recreation activities, on which the order has spent some $4,500,000, will be suspended until the difficulties between the Italian government and the Vatican are completely settled. It is possible, according to information tonight, that the Knights of Columbus may withdraw from Rome.

No outlet can be seen in the Italo-Vatican controversy since the last Vatican note in which, it was confirmed tonight, Pope Pius told Premier Mussolini that the Vatican's first condition to even opening negotiations would be that the Italian government reopen the Catholic Youth clubs which were closed. Meanwhile negotiations have ceased and government circles admit that the gap between the church and state is wide.

SUGGESTS BERLIN PAY PARIS WITH 'POCKET CRUISER'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 2.—That Germany should take the first step toward disarmament by turning over to France her new "pocket cruiser" Deutschland as reparations in kind, was suggested in the senate this afternoon during a debate on the naval program.

"Germany is responsible for the armament race to which she so strongly objects every time we lay a keel for a new warship," said Senator Martin Binachon. "If she wants the race to stop let her turn over the Deutschland to France."

Charles Dumont, minister of marine, explained to the senate why it was necessary to build a 23,000 ton battleship to oppose the Deutschland, which aroused such emotion in French naval circles concerning its guns, armor, and speed. After a long and heated debate, a motion was unanimously adopted to authorize the minister of marine to build a capital ship after the project is submitted to the chamber of deputies for approval.

LAWYER GETS WARRANT, BUT FACES CONTEMPT

Attorney Richard M. Welsh was threatened with citation for contempt of court yesterday by Municipal Judge George V. McIntyre because he went to another judge to obtain a warrant after having been refused by Judge McIntyre. Action in the case was postponed until tomorrow.

Judge McIntyre also summoned into his court Chief of Detectives Norton and Detective Roy Van Herik, who served the warrant, but indicated later that he would accept their explanations of their actions in serving the warrant. The warrant charged Martin Bart, 32 years old, 2976 Sheridan road, with being the father of an unborn child of Miss Dorothy Haase, 400 Deming place.

Judge McIntyre refused to issue a warrant until the child was born, which will not be until October. Judge Justin F. McCarthy also refused a warrant, but Judge Francis Borrelli issued one, on which Van Herik arrested Bart.

WINS RACE OVER ATLANTIC TO SIDE OF HIS DYING SON

Last week he was informed by trans-Atlantic telephone that the boy was near death of tetanus which developed from a scratch on his leg. He took the liner Olympic, left the ship 25 miles out of Plymouth, went into that port by launch, and drove there to London by airplane and automobile.

When he arrived the boy was awake and the doctors told him he is holding his own and has a splendid chance for recovery.

GOOD WEATHER FOR HOLIDAYS TO CHEER MIDWEST

Mild Temperatures End Heat Wave Here.

Following a break in the heat wave yesterday, the official forecast last night definitely promised fair skies and moderate temperatures in Chicago today and for Independence day celebrations tomorrow.

Cooling winds that swept into the city on Wednesday night, after a brief spell in the morning, when the mercury rose to 84, continued through most of yesterday. At 11 a. m. the reading was 78 and the high mark of the afternoon was 81.

In southern Illinois and in Indiana relief was slower in arriving and temperatures in the high 80s were still prevailing last evening. These sections are to have lower temperatures today, according to the forecaster.

Mean Temperature Is High.

Despite the effects of the cooling winds that swept in from the northwest, the mean temperature for the twenty-four hours ending at 8 p. m. was 74, the high readings of Wednesday evening lifting the figure. Eighty-four degrees, incidentally, was the lowest daily mean since June 24.

For the eight day period, including the last six days in June and two in July, the average daily excess of temperature was approximately 16 degrees. Wednesday, with a mean of 90, was the warmest day, and last Sunday, with 58, second.

During the same days the deaths of more than 100 residents of Cook county were attributed in some degree to the extreme heat. Twenty-eight were drowned, usually while attempting to escape the high temperatures by plunging into lakes and streams.

Attempts to Save Husband.

Two of yesterday's drowning victims were Norbert Sopjack, 14 years old, 1846 West 19th street, and James McGuire, 26 years old, 109 West Huron street. The boy sank in the Humboldt park lagoon and McGuire in the lake at Ohio street. McGuire's wife plunged in and tried to reach him when he failed to rise after a dive, but was unable to save him.

A third victim was an unidentified man, whose body was discovered in lake off Northerly Island in the lake opposite 19th street. Police, coast guards and firemen were unable to bring the body to the surface. It was last seen down and wedged in the piling. A diver is to be sent down to disentangle the body today.

Several downstate towns yesterday had temperatures that were fully as high as any recorded in the previous week. At Robinson, Ill., the mercury climbed to 105. At Carbondale a mark of 106 was recorded, making it the eighth straight day of readings above the century mark. Decatur's maximum was 102.

Record at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis had a record mark of 96.5 degrees and it continued hot in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Even Montreal, accustomed to much lower temperatures, suffered with 97 and authorities ordered the parks left open as sleeping quarters for the gasping population.

At 4 p. m. rain began falling in Peoria and there was a fall of 2.8 inches within an hour. In the same time the mercury fell from 95 to 70. At Crown Point, Ind., Henry Brady, said to be the oldest citizen of Lake county, died of an illness complicated by heat. He was 94 years old.

Plans to Aid Forecaster.

The Chicago district office of the weather bureau now has the benefit of daily observations of weather conditions aloft taken in an airplane. The plane, belonging to the Bowers Fly-It-Yourself company, is equipped with various automatic recording instruments. Its owners have contracted to fly at least 13,500 feet high each day for a price of $35 a trip. A bonus of 10 per cent is given for each additional 1,500 feet and a deduction of 10 per cent is made for each 1,500 feet the plane falls short of the required minimum.

This service, it was explained, supplements observations that have been taken in the upper atmosphere by means of kites at Royal Center, Ind. This kite station is to be discontinued. Airplane observations are taken daily also at Cleveland, at Dallas, and at Omaha.

U.S. Mints Make 98,236,500 American Coins in a Year

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—Mints of the United States turned out 98,236,500 American coins valued at $4,618,110 during the fiscal year of 1931. A total of $2,341,000 coins were pennies and nickels, 5,619,000 dimes and quarters, while 276,500 were gold coins. In the last classification there were 150,500 twenty dollar pieces valued at $3,010,000 and 26,000 ten dollar pieces valued at $260,000, making a total gold coinage $4,570,000. The mints also turned out 500,000 coins for Venezuela, 655,000 coins for Ecuador, and 2,100,000 coins for Panama.

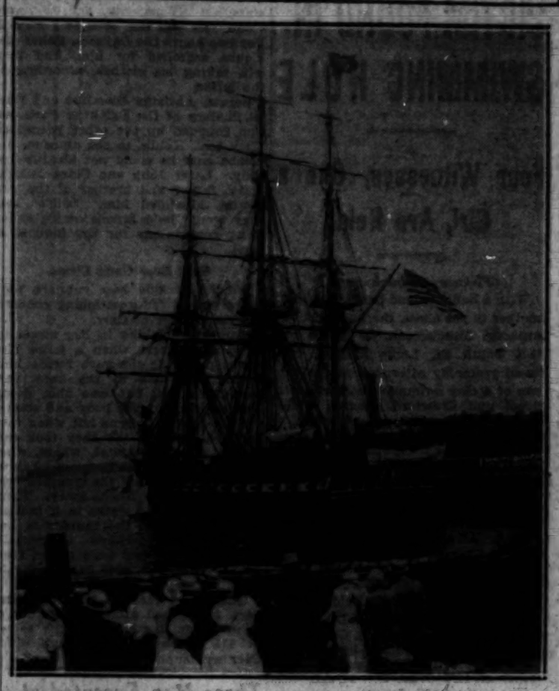
Evanston Detectives Win Award for Solving Killing

Sergt. Bernard J. Hanke and his detective bureau squad from the Evanston detective bureau were given the police award of $100 for the most efficient police work in the suburb in the month of June for their clearing up of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Gladys Boyd, 1106 Seward streets, Evanston. She was accidentally wounded by boys who were target shooting with a rifle June 1. The award will be divided equally among Sergt. Hanke and Policemen Otto Brey, Edward Bussean, and William Johnson.

Fire Continues to Burn in Linseed Oil Factory

Fire broke out in the oil cake room of the Archer, Daniels Midland company, 927 Blackhawk street, making of linseed oil cake, on the bank of the north branch of the river, early yesterday and up to a late hour last night was still burning. Firemen were unable to give an estimate of the loss. The building is a one story brick and frame structure about 100 feet long and in it was stored a large quantity of linseed oil cake and linseed oil.

Old Ironsides at Sea Again



The rebuilt frigate Constitution, famous for its victories in the war of 1812, which yesterday left its dock at Boston, beside which it is shown in the picture, to visit Portsmouth, N. H. It was 34 years since the vessel had been at sea. It has been rebuilt, only 15 per cent of the original material remaining. It still appears, however, precisely as it did in 1812. (Acme Photo.)

"OLD IRONSIDES," STANCH AGAIN, PUTS OUT TO SEA

Noted Frigate Starts Round of Ports.

Boston, Mass., July 2.—(AP)—What ship is this? Constitution, frigate, sir.

Where away? Out of Boston on the afternoon tide, sir, bound up the coast for Portsmouth, New Hampshire. Due there in the morning.

Stranger in these waters, aye, but stranger in any waters for many a year. Tied up in Boston navy yard since 1897, when she came home for her hundredth birthday. Came then under tow, as she is now, after some rebuilding in the navy yard there.

You ask why she does not cast off the tug Grebe's line and break out her own white canvas? Why, bless you, sir, scarce enough men has she aboard to work her weather braces.

A Merry Fight Withal.

Capt. Isaac Hull had a crew of 456 when he whipped the Guerriere back in 1812. Now she carries but 55, and a scant sixty of these know aught of sail. Hull lost 14 men in that engagement and the Guerriere 79. Not many as reckoned nowadays, with rapid fire and long range guns, but it was a merry go, especially when the Yankee gunners spilled the puncheon of molasses the Britishers had hoisted into their rigging as a taunt. Said the Yankees would need it for their switchel when they were prisoners, they did. But the barrel was soon punctured and their own deck so slippery a man could scare stand.

It was in that engagement also that a powder grimed gunner gave her the name "Old Ironsides." "Her sides must be made of iron," said he, upon seeing a solid shot strike her planking and fall off harmlessly into the sea.

Stout in Sides and Heart.

Aye, her sides are as stout again, and her timbers and spars as well. Lieut. John A. Lord has seen to that. Lieut. Lord, with 34 years' service, is the last of the navy's wooden ship constructors, and the shade of Joshua Humphreys, who designed her, could find no fault with John Lord's work.

Fast? Aye, that she was, and must still be, fast as sailing vessels go. And that more than once kept her from destruction when beset by overpowering numbers. The records show that under a press of canvas she logged better than 13 knots, better speed than she's making now under tow.

Paul Revere, silversmith, maker of false teeth, gun founder, engraver, accomplished of those and other trades, and clarion of his countrymen's cause, furnished her with her original sheathing, bolts, and brass fastenings.

She was originally a local product, but today many sections of the country she helped to preserve, states not then in the Union, are represented in her hull and rigging. The tall spars not long ago grew in the great forests of Oregon. Live oak for knees and futtocks came from Florida, manufactured products from many parts of the country.

At Portsmouth, in 1853, she was partly reconstructed, and two years later sent to Annapolis for use as a training ship. At the outbreak of the civil war she was brought hastily back to Newport, R. I., that she might not fall into the hands of the confederates. In 1878 she sailed for France, taking American products to the French exhibition of that year. Her last commission until the present ended in 1881.

Portsmouth is but the first of 17 ports she will visit on her present cruise along the eastern seaboard.

SEEK HONOR FOR CAPTAIN.

As the historic frigate, Constitution, put out of Boston harbor yesterday on its first post-restoration voyage, plans were going forward locally to effect the removal of the body of its past commander, Capt. John Gwin, from a grave in an abandoned cemetery in Philadelphia to Arlington National cemetery. The grave was discovered last week.

A great-grand-nephew of the man who died at Palmero, Sicily, September, 1849, while in command of the vessel, yesterday sought the aid of Senator James Hamilton Lewis in requesting the navy department to remove the body to Arlington. There it would be accorded the naval honors worthy of Capt. Gwin's forty years of service to his country.

The descendant is James M. Gwin, an attorney, son of the late C. V. Gwinn, who was an attorney for the Illinois Central railroad. Veterans of Foreign Wars are also hopeful that the body of Capt. Gwin may finally rest at Arlington.

THREE WIDOWS AND 30 CHILDREN AT FUNERAL OF MOUNTAIN BAD MAN

Wheelwright, Ky., July 2.—[Special.]—"Bad John" Hall, aged 50, one of the most feared mountaineers of eastern Kentucky, who died here yesterday of a stomach ailment, was buried today while his three widows and thirty-odd children and a host of friends and foes stood by.

Two of the widows and part of the host of children were surprise mourners at the funeral. No one in Wheelwright admitted knowing that "Bad John" had two other families. Intimates expressed amazement when they appeared.

"Bad John" was chief of police of Wheelwright and a deputy sheriff of Floyd county when he died. He was made an officer several years ago to save the county money, according to residents.

"Bad John" was tried for murder seven times in his thirty-eight year reign in eastern Kentucky and never once was found guilty and never spent a day in jail. Finally county officials decided to make him an officer, it was said, to save the expense of trials. After becoming an officer he killed a couple of men in pistol fights, but never was prosecuted.

Hall boasted he had consumed a quart of Kentucky moonshine daily during the last 20 years. He insisted to the last that it was not that, but something he ate, which brought on his fatal illness.

He was taken to the hospital at Martin, near here, last week, but refused to let the nurses remove the bullet dented steel chest protector he had worn for ten years; nor would he part with his two .44 pistols. Jim Hatfield of Pikeville, his best friend, had to be called to remove the armor.

HUNT EX-BOOTLEG KING SPIRITED AWAY BY GANG

Police of the southern section of the county were searching last night for Johnnie Mundo, 38 years old, alleged former king of bootleggers in Calumet City, who was taken from his home early Tuesday morning.

No word has been received of him, and it is believed he may have been murdered or kidnaped for ransom. Mundo was until two years ago known as the boss of the Calumet City alcohol gang. Later he relinquished his power and recently operated on a small scale, police say.

Mundo was taken from his home about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning while his wife looked on. Two men entered the house, remarked they had "important business" and ordered Mundo to accompany them. He obeyed. An hour later his machine was found abandoned at 152d and Hersch streets, a short distance from his home in Calumet City.

Bathers Warned to Avoid Banned Pools in Preserves

Swimmers were warned against entering any pools, streams or rivers in the forest preserves excepting those prescribed as safe, in a statement issued last night by President Whealan of the county board. Certain of the banned waters are polluted, and others are not guarded, Mr. Whealan pointed out. There are ten prescribed swimming centers in the forest preserves. They are Dear Grove, in the northwestern part; dam No. 1, Wheeling; dam No. 2, Des Plaines; Maple lake south and east beaches; Palos Hills; Lake Tuma, Aragon forest; clay hole, 159th street and Torrence avenue; Sauk Trail lake, Chicago Heights, and Cermak pool, Lyons.

2 Chicagoans in Cleveland After 5,150 Mi. Canoe Trip

Cleveland, O., July 2.—[Special.]—Dick Grant and Moose Lassy, the seagoing canoeists from Chicago, arrived at the Lakeside Yacht club tonight with 5,150 miles of paddling behind them. They went to the coast guard station to spend the night. Grant and Lassy left Chicago Sept. 22 and paddled down the Mississippi river to the Gulf of Mexico, up the Atlantic coast to New York, and are coming through the great lakes on their way home. They estimate that it will take them five weeks to get back to Chicago.

Marion, Ind., July 2.—(AP)—Denver E. Scott, 22, of Sweetser, died today from injuries suffered in an automobile accident in which five others were injured last night.

JURY SUMS UP ITS FINDINGS ON PUBLIC OFFICIALS

Praises Swanson, Alcock; Assails Graft.

Both criticism and praise were accorded to public officials yesterday in the concluding report of the June grand jury. While the report dealt mainly with police activities, the prosecutor's office, the taxation problems, the jurors who voted the last conspiracy indictments against T. J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district, and other officials discussed the duties of public officials generally.

EDWARD J. SPIRO.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock was complimented by the jury for his conduct of the police department, but several suggestions were made for its improvement. State's Attorney Swanson's office and the work of Assistant State's Attorney Edward J. Spiro drew favorable comment and Spiro was given a golf bag by the jurors.

Comment on Canal Case.

The jury referred to the case of the indicted sanitary district officials as follows:

"Indictments have been returned in some cases where the people are vitally concerned in seeing men who have betrayed public trust brought to the bar of justice. In returning such indictments this grand jury manifested its desire to see these cases energetically prosecuted, with the end in view of securing an early and just conviction."

In another part of the report the jury said:

"Racketeering, nonfeasance, malfeasance, conspiracy, bribery, graft and kindred problems are items which we feel should more often and more fully be dealt with by the grand jury.

"Evidence of the presence of such crimes in the community has come into our possession in sufficient amounts during the grand jury session just closing to warrant us believing that if the leads presented to us should properly be developed there would undoubtedly be uncovered ample evidence to justify indictments and to secure convictions. It is encouraging to observe the energy displayed by the state's attorney in prosecuting some of the so-called racketeering cases.

Hits Official Irregularity.

"Scrutiny by the state's attorney for certain boards and public office holding individuals has developed several instances of gross irregularities. If respect for government is to be maintained confidence in the integrity and competence of officials is a first requisite. We indorse and encourage constant scrutiny by the state's attorney of public office holders in line with the accepted version of the duties imposed upon them by law."

The jurors then commented on the fact that a noticeably large percentage of offenders held to the grand jury are of foreign extraction and many of them are aliens. They recommended greater efforts to deport undesirables.

The jurors declared that real estate owners are being unfairly discriminated against in the matter of taxation and recommendations were made that personal property should be adequately taxed.

GO WEAR A WIG! SAYS HOUSE TO SPEAKER WHO SAYS 'COATS ON!'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 2.—With the temperature sizzling at 100 degrees, Speaker Black today declined the wish of members of the house of commons that they be allowed to remove their coats. The members threatened to retaliate by making the speaker wear a wig, as does the speaker in the British house. In spite of such protests as "inhuman," and "unreasonable" Speaker Black refused to concede an inch to decorum and dignity. He even refused permission to let them take off their coats at committee meetings.

ALCOCK TO USE NEW GUN LAW IN CRIME FIGHT

In the new state law which makes it unlawful to carry guns in an automobile under certain conditions, Acting Police Commissioner Alcock yesterday saw an aid to police efforts to jail gunmen. After he receives a copy of the law, which went into effect on Wednesday, Alcock said he would notify the department of its provisions.

The bill, which was introduced by Representative Schnackenberg, makes it unlawful for any person to carry in a motor vehicle any firearm with the intent to use it in the commission of any crime. It prohibits also any person who habitually associates with thieves or frequents houses of ill fame or gambling places to carry firearms in a motor vehicle.

Another provision of the bill makes it unlawful to change, alter, remove or obliterate the name of the maker, model, number or other identification mark on any firearm. Possession of such firearm shall be prima facie evidence that the possessor has changed such markings. It makes it unlawful also for any person to carry a firearm in a motor vehicle within ten years after violation of the act.

CONGREGATIONAL GROUP APPROVES BIRTH CONTROL

Seattle, Wash., July 2.—(AP)—Approval of voluntary parentage through birth control was formally given by the National Council of Congregational and Christian Churches today in adopting a program intended to guide the church's attitude on present day problems.

The proposal, reported favorably by the seminar on the family and youth, was adopted with virtually no opposition. It was based on the recent report of the Federal Council of Churches.

"We believe in the right of children to be wanted," the findings of the seminar related, "and the right of husbands and wives to assume parenthood."

Recognition of soviet Russia, the eight hour day and five day week, disapproval of compulsory military training in land grant colleges, and the suppression of free speech were other proposals given the church's favor.

NAB 3 IN ST. LOUIS FOR BOND THEFTS OF $500,000 HERE

Trio Captured Trying to Sell Loot.

Three members of a bandit gang which is said to have stolen bonds worth more than $500,000 from Chicago banks in the last year were seized by St. Louis police yesterday, according to word received here by Chief of Detectives John Norton.

The prisoners are Morilla Moore, alias Morrison, 51 years old, who has served six terms for robbery; Joseph Gates, another ex-convict, and William Wallace.

Present Bonds for Sale.

It was learned, however, that the men were arrested in St. Louis when they presented for sale $33,000 worth of bonds stolen from the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank last Nov. 10. Several loop banks were losers through the operations of the gang, it was said.

The gang members were well dressed and of smooth appearance. Their method was to open negotiations with a bank for purchase of a series of bonds. At first legitimate purchases would be made. Unsuspecting bank clerks would allow the thieves to examine several series of bonds at a time after confidence had thus been gained and one of them would pocket what valuable papers he could and escape.

Arrested at Bank.

The banks set insurance company detectives on the trail of the bandits after a number of losses. When the stolen bonds were presented for sale in St. Louis an alert clerk checked the serial numbers and discovered they were stolen.

The three men were arrested when they reappeared at the bank with the bonds.

GEN. LUDENDORFF FINED $120 FOR LIBELING COUNT

GOTHA, Germany, July 2.—(AP)—Gen. Erich Ludendorff today was fined $120 and costs in a libel suit brought by the octogenarian Count Theobad Dohna, whom the general accused of high treason in a lecture three years ago. The verdict provided for ten days' imprisonment in case the fine was not paid.

The sentence must be published in three newspapers, including Ludendorff's own Volkswarte. The court took into consideration that Ludendorff made his statement with a patriotic motive.

In the speech the military leader declared that the count was aware of a plot to assassinate the Austrian Arch-Duke Ferdinand three years before he was killed, but took no steps to prevent it.

Man, 83, Kidnaped, Robbed of $93,000; Recover $75,000

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 2.—[Special.]—Davis B. Garrison, 24, Kalamazoo insurance agent, is being held by the sheriff and three other men are being sought to face kidnaping charges in Kalamazoo county or robbery armed charges in Van Buren county, as a result of the kidnaping and robbery Tuesday of Frank J. Moon, Kalamazoo financier.

Certificates of deposit totaling $93,000 were taken from Moon. Sheriff Struble recovered $75,000 of the loot from Garrison.

Moon is 83 years of age and lives in a rooming house here. He told the sheriff he was kidnaped by three men and robbed of the securities in a shack west of Kalamazoo and then taken to Chicago and held in the car while the men attempted to cash the securities at the Harris Trust and Savings company. The bank refused to cash the certificates until it had further assurance as to Moon's signature.

Moon said he was returned to Kalamazoo Tuesday night. Sheriff Struble's investigation brought Garrison into the picture, and when taken into custody Wednesday night he told where his automobile was parked in Kalamazoo, where Struble recovered $75,000 of the $93,000 in securities taken from Moon.

Under a severe grilling Garrison, who previously had claimed he was forced to aid the other two men, whose names he said he did not know, he admitted his part in the kidnaping and robbery. He still insists he does not know the names of his confederates, but that one of them was from Chicago.

Prosecutor Tedrow said he did not know just what proceeding might be taken, as the securities were taken from Moon in Van Buren county, en route to Chicago. Chances are that charges of kidnaping will be made in Kalamazoo county, rather than charges of robbery armed in Van Buren.

5,000 Auto Owners Refused Licenses at Half Price

Five thousand automobile owners appeared at the city hall Wednesday to obtain vehicle tags at half price, and were turned away when they were unable to show their state registration cards, according to a report yesterday to Mayor Cermak. Those who cannot show that their cars came into their possession since July 1 will be compelled to pay the full year's fee.

On the same day, however, 262 motorists admitted that their cars had been purchased prior to July 1, and paid the full fee, or a total of $2,927.

CERMAK REVIEWS RESULTS OF HIS ECONOMY DRIVE

County Acts to Tighten Tax Delinquencies.

The governor's revenue committee held a five hour session last night and heard a prophecy that the whole 1930 tax assessment might be held illegal. Members urged various aids to city, school and county finances, including drastic cuts in pay rolls. Story on page 4.

City and county officials paused yesterday in their struggle with the current financial muddle to take stock of the problems which face them. They discussed the economies which they have effected to offset dwindling revenue, sought means of speeding tax collections and cutting down tax delinquency, and set forth the general financial condition of the city for the information of investors in its securities.

The principal developments were these:

1. Mayor Cermak told of his campaign to eliminate the sinecures in the police and fire departments which he declared are hangovers from the previous administration. By sending firemen and policemen back to their primary duties of fighting fire and catching criminals, he stated, he is giving taxpayers better service at a decreased cost.

Discuss Tax Delinquencies.

2. The county board and all the county officials whose functions include some phase of tax collections met to discuss the staggering total of tax delinquencies—$58,000 on the 1929 taxes alone. They agreed that a plan should be drawn up to put teeth in the tax forfeiture system, which they termed an antiquated joke in its present form.

3. City Controller Szymczak issued a letter to banks and investment houses, setting forth the whole history of the present financial difficulties of local governmental bodies, and giving reasons why the tax anticipation warrants of the city are a safe and sound investment. In the course of the report it was disclosed that the city transit fund is invested to its full extent in tax warrants.

Reforms in Two Services.

The extent to which able bodied firemen and policemen were holding sinecure jobs or performing personal service for city officials under the previous administration was disclosed by Mayor Cermak. By abolishing such assignments he has been able to fill all vacancies in the department without drawing on the rolls of civil service eligibles for new men, he said.

He found that the superintendent of fire department shops had a fire lieutenant and a fireman assigned to drive his automobile. The fire attorney had two firemen assigned to such service for him, the fire department physician two more. Those men have been sent to join fire companies and the officials have found apparently that they can still drive automobiles themselves.

Police Back on Beats.

Half a dozen policemen were sitting about Navy pier, guarding the stolen automobile pound there. They are now walking beats. Twenty-five policemen employed as messengers, carrying official communications about the city on street cars, were replaced by six men on motorcycles.

Five men were found dispensing gasoline to police automobiles. Their wages for a day totaled $40 and they were doling out an average of $18 worth of gasoline. They have more useful assignments now.

"I found firemen working as watchmen at $240 a month," the mayor said. "If I advertised for watchmen at $125 a month I couldn't get into the city hall for the crowds. I found a number of crippled men assigned to light and inconsequential duties. They will have to retire on pensions.

"I am out to eliminate all unnecessary jobs. I'm not a reformer, but this thing has gone too far."

Repair Bills Excessive.

Repair bills for police department cars have been excessive, the mayor said. He referred to a report from Leslie V. Beck, superintendent of maintenance and equipment for the police department. It showed that in one month one squad car had a repair bill of $866, another $745, a third $659, a fourth $569, a fifth $507.

"I have ordered that a chauffeur who has too big a repair bill be sent back to traveling a beat. We recently purchased twenty new squad cars, and the chauffeurs had better be pretty careful about bringing in bills on them."

When the mayor took office he deprived a number of department heads and minor officials of the cars which had been furnished them by the previous administration. These cars are being conditioned and will be turned over to police squads.

As the mayor spoke the county board was meeting with the boards of assessors and review, the county clerk, county judge, county controller, county judge, county auditor, and representatives of the state's attorney on the matter of tax delinquencies.

County Judge Jarecki suggested that since the county is practically placed in the real estate business by selling properties for tax forfeitures, it adopt the practice of real estate brokers and advertise such forfeited property on the premises.

"If placards were placed on all of the properties to be sold for forfeitures, people in the neighborhood would know about it, and we would get many more customers than the professional tax buyers who now bid for such properties," he said.

Assails Forfeiture System.

"The whole forfeiture system is a joke," County Attorney Hayden N. Bell declared. "It's not real forfeiture at all, but just psychological device for the collection of taxes with penalties. We ought to have a real forfeiture system, with forfeitures recorded in the Circuit or Superior court."

The meeting adopted a resolution instructing Judge Jarecki, Attorney Bell and other tax officials to draw up a plan for the reform of the forfeiture system, to be presented to the governor's revenue commission, which is now in session.

In his statement to the bankers, Comptroller Szymczak first analyzed the general and specific causes for the present revenue situation in Chicago. The city, he asserted, is only facing the same conditions which will sooner or later bring about similar situations in most of the large cities of the country. Chicago, he pointed out, is in fact at an advantage because it is the first of such cities to attempt a reform of the basic evil, an antiquated tax assessment and tax spending system.

$60,000,000 in Other Funds.

The city is not at present without funds. Its difficulties are confined at present to the corporate funds. In other city funds, such as water works and public improvement bond funds, the city now has $60,000,000 in cash, the statement sets forth.

There are still $1,010,000 worth of 1928 tax warrants of the city, board of education and other municipal institutions in the hands of the public. That does not include warrants held in city funds. To meet these warrants, the city has an expectation of collecting $17,597,696 in 1928 taxes.

Of a total of $112,617,000 worth of 1929 tax warrants which were sold, $72,757,000 worth have been retired, with an expected $47,491,686 in 1929 taxes still to be paid. The city and school board sold $95,859,277 in 1930 warrants, and expect to realize $138,028,454 in tax collections on that levy, the books for which are now in the hands of the board of review. Only $11,137,000 in 1931 tax warrants have been sold, against an estimated revenue of $142,675,165.

LEGISLATORS INVITE JUDGES TO JOIN TOUR OF EUROPEAN PRISONS

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan and Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher were invited yesterday to join the commission of the state legislature on its study of European prisons. The invitation was extended by Senator Richard J. Barr, chairman of the commission.

At a meeting of the Cook county judicial advisory council, of which they are members, the judges were urged to make the tour in the interest of the council, which has advocated prison reform in conjunction with rivision of the criminal code.

Although the judges announced no decision they indicated they will accept the invitation. The commission will leave Chicago on July 15 and sail for England from Quebec on July 18. The members will visit prisons in England, France, Holland and Germany and possibly Russia. The commission will return on Sept. 1.

Loretta Young Asks Divorce of Grant Withers, Actor

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—(AP)—Loretta Young, screen actress, today filed suit for divorce against her actor husband, Grant Withers. She charged nonsupport. The couple was married in Yuma, Ariz., Jan. 26, 1930, eloping by airplane. The petition stated they separated Sept. 17, 1930. The suit was filed under the legal names of Gretchen Young Withers vs. Granville Gustavus Withers.

JURY FINDS POLICE KILLER GUILTY AND DECREES LIFE TERM

After more than 22 hours of deliberation a jury in Judge Peter M. Schwaba's court yesterday found Harry Yetter, 26 years old, guilty of the murder of Policeman John J. Guilfanane and fixed the penalty at life in the penitentiary. The killing occurred on July 30, 1930, when Guilfanane and two other policemen tried to arrest Yetter and a companion on suspicion as they were emerging from the Morgan Park Motor Sales company, 2345 West 111th street.

HARRY YETTER.

Defense Attorney Joseph Powers made a motion for a new trial and a hearing was set for July 9. Yetter was unmoved as the verdict was read, but his sister, Helen Smith, sobbed.

Immediately after the verdict was given, one of the jurors, Edward H. Ramp, 123 Fairview avenue, Brookfield, became ill and the jail physician was summoned. The physician attributed Ramp's condition to the heat and the long confinement.

CITES HER SON'S FIRST WORDS IN PARENTAGE SUIT

Avers Ex-Husband Is Not the Father.

The first lisping words of her 3 year old son and a ruling on paternity by the late Franz Joseph, emperor of Austria were among the proofs cited yesterday by Mrs. Catherina Crabtree Meindl, 4018 Irving Park boulevard, in support of her contention that her former husband is not the father of her child.

She is seeking to regain cusody of the boy from Fred Crabtree, 915 Oakdale avenue, who divorced her last September. Crabtree is not the father of the child, she asserts, but Frank X. Meindl, whom she married ten minutes after she was divorced, is. Meindl was formerly a roomer in the Crabtree home.

The woman's assertions were made in a supplementary bill filed before Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude by Attorney Harry X. Cole.

First Words in German.

"Your petitioner alleges," it states, "that the first words spoken by the said child were in the German language, a natural result of his descent from the said Frank X. Meindl, while your petitioner is Irish and the defendant [Crabtree] is English.

"Your petitioner further alleges that the child has given much evidence of being intelligent and smart, qualities possessed by the said Frank X. Meindl; while the defendant herein is ignorant and illiterate and that the said child could not, therefore, have been the child of the defendant and your petitioner, in accordance with the rule laid down in the case of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, that an intelligent child could not be born of parents who were not in love with each other at the time of the creation of the child.

"During all of the time of the creation of the child herein your petitioner was not in love with the defendant, but in love with the said Frank X. Meindl."

Crabtree's contention that the child is his because both he and the boy are left handed does not hold true, the petition asserts, because five other children of Mrs. Meindl and Crabtree were all right handed.

DELINQUENT TAX SALE HALTED BY TEMPORARY WRIT

Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining County Treasurer McDonough from proceeding with the sale of property delinquent on 1929 taxes. The injunction was sought by Attorney Meyer Fink representing 60 property owners with real estate holdings totaling $5,000,000.

The treasurer advertised the delinquent property last Saturday, and is to appear before County Judge Jarecki to ask judgment July 13.

Attorney Fink charged illegal discrimination in assessing real estate as against personal property and that assessors employ an improper method in determining values. Under the present method value has been fixed at cost of reproduction less depreciation. Attorney Fink declared under the law property should be valued at its fair cash price in a voluntary sale.

CERMAK MAKES GEORGE D. GAW CITY'S GREETER

Mayor Cermak late yesterday appointed George D. Gaw official greeter of Chicago. His duty will be to welcome notable guests to the city.

Mr. Gaw is head of the Gaw-O'Hara Envelope company. He is active socially and a member of several clubs. As official greeter Mr. Gaw will serve without pay.

A snow white automobile will be at his disposal and in formalities of civic nature Official Greeter Gaw and his white car will be preceded by two white motorcycles.

Charges Tax Evasion in Embezzlement Defense

Adolph Wachs, on trial before Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court on charges of embezzling $60,000 from his former employer, Keith Dunham, testified yesterday that he had been ordered to sign checks for that amount to enable the employer to evade income tax Dunham, who is president of an oxygen machinery importing company at 116 South Dearborn street, has charged that Wachs signed checks in Dunham's name without authorization.

MAYOR SEES WAY TO CUT FIRE TUG FUEL EXPENSES

Favors the Installation of Diesel Engines.

While eliminating sinecures in the fire department yesterday to retrench in salary appropriations, Mayor Cermak struck also at the expensive operation of fire fighting equipment. His first move was directed at the city's three fire boats, which are called out occasionally for fires along the river and lake front.

These boats, which are propelled by steam power plants, can be operated more economically, the mayor believes, with Diesel engines. The latter, he pointed out, consume no fuel while tied up at dock. With the steam plant, however, it is necessary to keep fires under the boilers throughout the year in readiness to answer calls.

Ordered to Get Estimates.

Edward A. Maloney, acting fire commissioner, was directed by the mayor to obtain estimates on the cost of purchasing and installing Diesel engines in the three boats. This survey will show also the cost of using crude oil as fuel for the engines to be compared against the annual coal bill of $30,000.

"Not only would there be a saving in fuel costs," said Mayor Cermak, "but the engine room crews could be cut down which would mean a reduction in salary appropriations for the boats. I believe that by converting the power plants in the boats, the saving in fuel consumption and labor costs would pay, within eighteen months or two years, the cost of installing the Diesels."

The fireboats are the Joseph Medill, the Graeme Stewart, and the Illinois. One is stationed in the main branch of the river, another in the south branch near the lumber yards, and the third in the Calumet river.

Consume Fuel at Docks.

The difference in fuel consumption between a Diesel equiped fire boat and the present steam plants is illustrated in the operations of the three boats during 1930. Out of 8,760 hours in the year the Graeme Stewart was in actual operation 110 hours and 45 minutes; the Illinois, 77 hours and 20 minutes, and the Joseph Medill, 8 hours and 13 minutes. But, although tied up at docks most of the year, the fuel was the same as though the boats were in use most of the time.

Another object of the mayor's interest in the fire boats is to determine whether they can be made to clear the bridges without forcing the spans to rise. Owing to their construction the boats cannot now pass under the bridges.

Would Rebuild Craft.

As the fire boats are not restricted by the bridge closing they, at times, cruise down the river when land traffic is at a peak causing traffic congestion. To avoid this, the mayor stated he believed the boats could be rebuilt to clear the bridges.

Fire officials stated that the boats were needed. When they were eliminated for three days during the sessions on the 1930 budget, owners of property along the river vigorously protested to the aldermen, and the appropriations for the boats were restored.

HERO'S 5 MILE SWIM SAVES 3 FROM DROWNING

Mobile, Ala., July 2.—(AP)—Two youths and two girls who clung to the bottom of an overturned sailboat in Mobile bay for 17 hours were rescued today after one of them, a professional swimmer, swam five miles and summoned help.

The four are Harvey Eastman, Joe Pearson, and Miss Jeanette McKinney of Mobile, and Miss Genevieve Henderson of New Orleans. They left here in a sloop for a fishing trip. A squall struck their craft and it turned over.

Miss McKinney became ill and Eastman, she said, held her partly out of the water through the night.

At daybreak Eastman set out for the ship channel five miles away, in search of aid. His companions said he left instructions for them to pray.

The swimmer reached a channel beacon, but was so exhausted he fell asleep on it. The crew of a passing tug found him and rescued the others.

ARRAIGN PASCHEN JULY 8 ON TAX EVASION CHARGE

Former Building Commissioner Christian P. Paschen will be arraigned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes Wednesday, July 8, on an indictment charging him with evasion of income tax payments.

Assistant United States Attorneys Dwight H. Green and Jacob I. Grossman announced yesterday that they would ask that the trial be set early in the fall.

Paschen was indicted May 6, the grand jury accusing him of owing $113,497 in back taxes for the years 1927 and 1928, the sum for the first year being $43,001.43 and for the latter, $70,495.60. His alleged incomes for the two years aggregated $587,926.53. In his tax schedules he set forth that his gross income in 1927 was only $5,103.19 and in 1928 but $30,267.46.

Takes Poison, Spurns Aid and Flees from Hospital

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—H. F. Cushman, rancher, supplied the police emergency hospital with the strangest case on its records today. Brought in as a rush case after swallowing poison, Cushman waived surgeons away and resisted all efforts to compel him to swallow an antidote. After two hours of ineffectual work, nurses and doctors left Cushman alone for a moment, during which he slipped from a bed and ran from the hospital. He could not be found. Surgeons said the man was doomed, and police are hunting his body.

FALL ON SIDEWALK FATAL.

John Bestland, 38 years old, a West Madison street casual, died yesterday afternoon in the county hospital of a fracture of the skull he suffered Wednesday afternoon when he collapsed from heat prostration and fell, striking his head on the sidewalk.

COMMITTEE GETS GLOOMY PICTURE OF TAX SITUATION

Told '30 Assessment May Not Be Valid.

ments it appeared to be intensely interested in a check of the city pay rolls. These for May were $483,000 less than for March, the month of the intensive campaign of Mayor Thompson for reelection. Privately one of the committeemen said that he supposed that was "the public's unwilling and unconscious contribution to Thompson's campaign fund."

Wants Decision Withheld.

Victor Olander, member of the committee, told his colleagues that he was unwilling to accept unqualifiedly the condemnation of the school board and the city government generally. He pleaded that the committee withhold its views until later in its deliberations.

S. E. Thomason pleaded for the ascertainment of facts.

Leavell Quits Committee.

James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois bank, withdrew from the committee, and Philip R. Clark, president of the Central Trust company, was made its treasurer. Each of the 44 invited by Gov. Emmerson to the Stevens hotel meeting Wednesday has been asked to contribute to the expense of the executive committee. Those who attended the session last night were:

BODY OF BULLET VICTIM FOUND IN SWIMMING HOLE

Four Witnesses, One a Girl, Are Held.

With a bullet wound in the head and another in the chest, the nude body of Anthony Mikolajczak, 20 years old, 4404 South St. Louis avenue, was found yesterday afternoon at the bottom of a clay swimming hole at 144th street and Crawford avenue, Midlothian. It was the second shooting mystery of the day. Earlier, John [Red] Carr, saloonkeeper and minor politician, was murdered by machine gunners in front of 1100 Fry street.

Four persons, one a young woman, were held for questioning last night in connection with the death of Mikolajczak. All admitted they were swimming in the pool with him at the time of his disappearance. They knew nothing of the shooting, they asserted.

Four Witnesses Held.

The witnesses are Helen Dayser, 24 years old, and her brother, Charles, of 4217 Clifton Park avenue; John Kouba, 3031 West 26th street, and William Baker of 3251 West 21st street.

The body of Mikolajczak was discovered by boy swimmers in the clay hole late yesterday afternoon. At first it was believed the victim had drowned, but disfigurations by the bullets roused suspicions of detectives, and they sent the body to the county morgue. The two bullet wounds were then discovered.

Meanwhile Kouba appeared on the scene and told of the disappearance of Mikolajczak. He said that he, Mikoljczak, Baker, Miss Dayser and her brother had been swimming in the pool until 3 a. m. All had bathing suits but Mikolajczak, and he swam alone. He was last seen at 1 o'clock. For two hours the Daysers, Baker and Kouba searched for him, and then left, taking his clothes, according to the latter.

Sergts. Anthony Bieschke and Daniel Shallow of the Brighton Park station rounded up the other witnesses. They took Kouba to the morgue, but Kouba said he could not identify the body. Later John and Clara Mikolajczak, father and brother of the gun victim, identified him. Police said they would hold Mikolajczak's swimming companions for the inquest at least.

Seek Beer Gang Clews.

Northwest side beer runners were being sought for questioning concerning the murder of Carr.

Carr was walking in Fry street toward May street when a large blue sedan pulled to the curb beside him. Seeing the men in the auto Carr turned to run, but was shot down. Police picked up the body and started for the county morgue but when they detected signs of life they took him to the county hospital, where, after a half hour, he was pronounced dead.

The car used by the gunmen was abandoned a few blocks away. There were a few blood stains in it indicating that one of the murderers had been injured—perhaps accidentally shot. The car had been stolen from Dr. A. A. Hirsch, 4049 Jackson boulevard.

The police recalled that Carr had been questioned after the murder of John Gulda, bartender in the saloon at 826 North Racine avenue which Carr was supposed to own.

Three Men Executed at Sing Sing; Slew a Butcher

Ossining, N. Y., July 2.—(AP)—Fred Carmosino, 19; Ferdinand Mangianela, 24, and Nicholas Leonsilia, 33, were executed in Sing Sing prison tonight for the slaying of Samuel Bruder, New York butcher.

Missus Shoots the Sheriff Right on the Main Street

Bloomfield, Mo., July 2.—(AP)—Sheriff Fred Beal was shot twice by his wife tonight on Bloomfield's main street.

Mrs. Beal was not arrested and returned to her apartment in the county jail. He was taken to a hospital at Poplar Bluff. His condition is not serious. Friends of the Beals said they recently had had domestic difficulties.

Car No. 6 ARRIVES TODAY

New Iso-Vis test run being made by HUDSON.

AAA REPORT

certifies to excellent lubrication by New Iso-Vis in Hudson

1 Iso-Vis Motor Oil did not thin out from dilution.

2 During the entire test of 9,000 miles, all parts of engine and chassis were lubricated effectively.

3 Consumption: Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy) in 1,000 mile test at 50 m. p. h.—less than 1 qt. At higher speeds, all oils showed greatly increased consumption.

4 Carbon: only 4.7 grams per cylinder at 50 miles per hour, using Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy).

5 Cylinder Wear: too slight to measure.

PUBLIC DEFENDER TELLS HOW WORK SPEEDS JUSTICE

Eight Months of System Proves Worth.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Reports of the public defender of Cook county, after eight months of operation, indicate a substantial saving to taxpayers, a great speeding up of court work and a more exact measure meted out to criminals of the poverty class.

One of the interesting results shown by the records is that here, as well as in California, where the system has been in operation for several years, about one-third of the defendants are found not guilty, whether tried by judge or jurors.

Can Waive Jury Trials.

Coincident with the establishment of this system in Chicago, through the work of the Judiciary Advisory council on improvements in the administration of criminal justice, the state Supreme court gave a defendant in a felony case the right to waive a jury. It is here that the greatest savings in time and money has been effected. The records to June 1 show:

Jury trials:
Verdict of guilty 43
(With 9 additional sent to institutions for insane.)
Verdicts of not guilty..... 30

Court trials:
Verdicts of guilty 366
Verdicts of not guilty 156

It is estimated that the waiver of a jury in such a great proportion of cases is saving the county about $2,000 a month, nearly $250,000 in a year.

But Benjamin C. Bachrach, the public defender, sees in these figures a more important thing than the saving of money.

"If it be considered," he said, "that 33 per cent be found not guilty in contested cases, without the use of perjury or unfair means of any kind by the public defender or his assistants, one can easily imagine what the fate was of the great number of indigent prisoners who were not properly defended before the establishment of this office."

Must Respect Courts.

Mr. Bachrach, who learned the arts of defense counsel in the office of the late W. S. Forrest, and who has had 35 years experience, thinks that the one great essential for the improvement of conditions is the restoration of respect for the law, courts and justice, through fair dealing with criminals.

Mr. Bachrach has three experienced assistants, John A. Ryan, Wilbert Crowley and John Branion, colored, with two younger men for routine work. They have been appointed to represent during these eight months more than 1,500 defendants. They have ranged the category of crime, from murder to petty offenses, and four have been sentenced to the death chair. Robbery has been the chief offense.

"From the beginning," said Mr. Bachrach, "I have made it clear that I do not believe it my duty to aid guilty persons beyond insuring them a fair trial according to law.

Perjury Never Encouraged.

"Under no circumstances is perjury encouraged. I have had defendants tell me that they were guilty but could find some good alibi witnesses. I let them tell their story, but I will not argue its truthfulness unless I believe it.

"Where the defendants admit they are guilty, and there is no defense, I do my utmost to see that the prisoners receive no unjust sentences. We have cruel laws in Illinois, some of the most cruel laws in the world. And down in the prisons the ordinary penal codes are gone and the criminal code is learned. How to outwit the law and the police is the main curriculum there. Reform of the criminal is not often accomplished.

"I have in mind a boy of 17 or 18 who steals a little zinc or takes an old car out of a garage and goes for a ride. He is caught for speeding, and with three companions brought up on the charge of stealing the car. There the charge could have been made petty larceny and the defendants admitted to probation, the result is a sentence of from one year to life in prison. I told the judge that was too severe. He said he was not handing out lollypops and chocolate bars in his court. You know that boys without influence seldom get a hearing before the parole board. So they are in there for a good many years. And how will they come out? I do not believe society benefits from such punishments.

Victim of Circumstances.

"In many instances we have discovered that some poor friendless prisoner has been wrongfully accused of crime and is the victim of unfortunate circumstances. Here we are keenly conscious of our responsibility to society. The late Warden John L. Whitman used to say that 3 per cent of the prisoners at Joliet were innocent men, sent down there because of a bad defense and ignorance and circumstances.

"Under the old system the Criminal court was the laboratory in which students practiced for the profession of law. It was a good school, but it was hard on the human material that was used. The reports of the Illinois supreme court contain quite a number of instances where the court in such cases was compelled to comment on the fact that the defendant was not properly represented by legal counsel during his trial, the case being tried by some young lawyer appointed to defend him.

"One thing many of these young lawyers seemed to learn quickly, and that was how to obtain money for their services.

Complaint About Money.

"I still hear the complaint made that we are taking money away from lawyers, but it is pretty good evidence that a defendant has no money when he cannot get out of jail on bonds.

"Where there is a denial of guilt the public defender's office presents and urges every right of the defendant. We present a clear delineation of the defendant's viewpoint, the marshalling of witnesses, if any, and a careful examination of the facts and research in the law covering a particular case. In cases where first offenders are driven to crime by hunger and want, probation is asked and sought from where the law permits."

COLD IS EASY TO STOP; FIRST GET A SOLARIUM!

Cornell Scientists Tell Their Method.

Ithaca, N. Y., July 2.—(AP)—A 53 per cent reduction in frequency of colds among a group of 14 Cornell women students is the latest record of using scientific knowledge to reduce the common cold.

Seventy-five Cornell men taking the same treatment showed a reduction of 42 per cent. This is the second successful year in offering cold protection to cold susceptibles at Cornell. The cold protection is ultra-violet light, alkali, diet, ventilation, and sleep. The largest share in the improvement is credited to the ultra-violet light by Dr. D. F. Smiley and Dr. G. Maughan, who directed the cold prevention work.

How It's Done.

Following are the instructions which reduced colds:

"1. Come to the solarium and take an ultra-violet bath regularly once each week. [These baths last 10 to 15 minutes each.]

"2. Keep on hand a package of alkali, and if at any time you feel your throat beginning to get sore or your nose beginning to run, take one teaspoonful in a glass of water, repeating the dose twice daily as long as the cold threatens. To aid in this alkalinizing process, drink about a quart of milk and eat two or three oranges every day as long as the cold threatens.

"3. Avoid the use of candy and sweets during the winter months, and particularly if you feel a cold threatening. Include plenty of milk, oranges, leafy vegetables, eggs, and salads in your diet throughout the winter.

Ventilate Your Room.

"4. Watch the heating and ventilation of your room. With plenty of heat in your radiator, you should be able to have your window open at least a few inches almost all the time, and this will suffice to prevent the excessive dryness of the air which is so irritating to the mucous membrane of your nose and throat.

"5. Get at least eight hours' sleep a night."

Dr. Smiley, in summarizing the results, points out that ultra-violet light never has shown less than 30 per cent reduction in colds among male cold-susceptibles. Its highest rate was a 58 per cent reduction when combined with the other four factors.

ORDERS CONVICT FREED BECAUSE OF LEGAL ERROR

Carl Bates, 47 years old, gray-haired and with a long criminal record, was ordered released from Joliet penitentiary yesterday because his commitment papers erroneously indicated that he was convicted of embezzlement instead of larceny. Judge Joseph B. David ordered the release and declared he would hold Warden Henry C. Hill in contempt of court, if his order was not obeyed.

Bates had served two years of a 1 to 10 year sentence when a lawyer-convict discovered the error. Bates stole and sold four sewing machines, but inasmuch as he was not an employe or an officer of the sewing machine company the embezzlement charge was faulty, Judge David held. To the protest of Assistant Attorney General John E. Johnson that many other penitentiary prisoners might be released under similar proceedings, Judge David said:

"I refuse to be a clearing house for the Joliet penitentiary. If you will obtain a writ of mandamus you can take this case before the Supreme court and get a final ruling that will decide the matter for all time."

2 EDITORS FIGHT SWORD DUEL AS 40 OFFICIALS WATCH

HAVANA, July 2.—(AP)—Alfredo Hornedo, publisher of the newspaper El Pais, and Jose I. Rivero, publisher of Diario De La Marina, fought a duel with swords on a farm ten miles from here this afternoon, but neither received satisfaction and both refused to shake hands when it was over.

Hornedo had challenged Rivero as an outgrowth of an editorial attack in the latter's newspaper. Two score spectators, most of them government officials, witnessed the encounter.

Neither was wounded in five fighting periods and Prof. José M. Rivas, who had been chosen as judge, stopped the encounter at that point in accordance with the Spanish rules.

IN COURT TODAY

Mrs. Ferdinand H. Thom will appear today in the Town Hall court to answer a charge of disorderly conduct preferred against her yesterday when she entered the florist shop of her estranged husband at 1935 Irving Park boulevard brandishing a riding whip and ordered the manager, Mrs. Frieda Ostermann, from the place. Mrs. Thom has a suit for divorce pending.

WATER POWER IN WORLD DOUBLED IN LAST 10 YEARS

Horsepower 46 Millions in 1930.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The developed water power of the world was doubled during the last decade, the United States geological survey of the interior department announced today. According to the geological report, the capacity of the water wheels in the constructed plants of the world jumped from 23,000,000 horse power in 1920 to 46,000,000 horse power at the end of 1930.

"The increase during the last four years in Europe has slightly exceeded that in North America," the report states. "Outside of the United States the greatest increases in constructed plants have been in Italy, Japan, Canada, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, and Sweden. A large percentage increase is also shown by New Zealand, Mexico, Brazil, and India.

"These estimates are based on information available in the United States geological survey, and for many countries the estimates of capacity of installed water wheels are based on data collected a year or more ago. The estimates for the United States and Canada are corrected to Jan. 1, 1931."

Use Tenth of Capacity.

The report estimated potential water power at ordinary minimum flow and capacity of water wheels at the end of Dec. 31, 1930, at 447,000,000 horse power, ten times the power developed.

The United States and Canada were among the powers making rapid advances in water power development during the last ten years.

The use of water power was shown to vary greatly, ranging from France and Italy, which use water power sites to full capacity, down to sections of Asia and Africa, where vast power resources are yet to be touched. Italy was shown to be so far advanced in this type of power development, forwarded in an effort to offset her lack of coal, that her plants are equipped to get the maximum power from each condition of water flow from flood to lowest water. So intensive has been this development that her machinery installations have a production rating 1,040,000 horse power greater than the average potential production of 2,800,000.

Untapped Resources.

The United States and Canada still have large untapped resources, according to the survey, Canada developing 6,125,000 horsepower of a potential 18,000,000 and the United States 14,885,000 of a potential 28,000,000.

Development of water power in other areas of the world was listed as follows: Africa, 33,000 horse power out of 190,000,000 potential production; Asia, 4,000,000 of 71,000,000; Europe, 18,400,000 of 56,000,000; Oceania [including Australia and the islands in the Pacific], 370,000 of 17,000,000, and South America, 900,000 of 44,000,000.

3 Boys Held for Stealing Evanston Woman's Auto

Brazil, Ind., July 2.—(AP)—Carl Whittington, 15, Maynard Rogers, 16, and Lloyd Champion, 18, all of Battle Creek, Mich., are being held here for Battle Creek authorities in connection with the theft of an automobile belonging to Mrs. Robert H. Gault of Evanston, Ill., a guest at a sanatarium there. In the car when the three were arrested here were two suitcases containing valuable clothing and jewelry.

Luke Lea Sues Receivers of Caldwell for $107,000

Nashville, Tenn., July 2.—(AP)—Col. Luke Lea, Nashville publisher, today filed a counter claim against receivers for Caldwell & Co., collapsed investment banking house, for $107,000, charging that the institution had illegally converted certain collateral he had placed with it.

PLAN ADOPTED TO QUADRUPLE MEN ON BUILDING JOB

Rothschild Scheme Will Aid Employment.

A new overlapping group system of labor which will quadruple the number of workmen securing jobs will be put into effect for the first time in Chicago during the construction of the new four story addition to the Maurice L. Rothschild clothing store at State street and Jackson boulevard.

M. L. ROTHSCHILD.

Mr. Rothschild, in announcing the plan yesterday, said it was worked out with the assistance of Alfred Alschuler, architect for the addition, and Patrick Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council. He explained that it will equitably distribute the employment and at the same time will give four times as many carpenters, painters, and other kinds of building construction workmen employment.

"We believe we have struck on a new idea which may well be adopted by other builders in Chicago and elsewhere," said Mr. Rothschild. "How to give work to more men, even though each one does not work so long, has been a problem.

"If men were to work one day or one week and then alternate with others it would be difficult for the successor to pick up the work where it had been left off by the preceding worker. This would involve loss of time and efficiency. To prevent this the total number of men employed will be divided into four groups, two of which groups are working at all times, but the work being so distributed that each group will overlap the other—thus providing for continuity of effect."

The new stories to be built will be used for selling floors. Two comparatively new departments will be much enlarged. The women's and misses' dresses will have an entire floor and the women's and misses' coats another. The improvement will be the major building project on State street for many months.

POLICE SMASH AUTO THEFT RING; EIGHT ARE HELD

Sergts. Charles Gleason and Jerry Dixon of the automobile detail were credited yesterday by Capt. Matthew Zimmer with breaking up an organized automobile theft ring. As a result of the arrests of two men, who are alleged to be the actual operators of the ring, and six men, who are charged with receiving stolen property, the two sergeants have been recommended for extra compensation.

Edward Flannery, 4648 West Adams street, one of the alleged ring operators, is being held pending the outcome of the inquest into the death of Sam Zemansky, 2250 Polk street on June 4. Flannery is alleged to have struck and killed Zemansky while driving in a stolen car. The other alleged ringleader is Albert Cicone, 2139 Flournoy street. Flannery and Cicone, according to the police, sold 25 stolen cars of which 12 have since been recovered by the police.

Also jailed as a result of the detective work of Gleason and Dixon are six alleged purchasers of stolen cars. They are under bonds of $2,000 each for receiving stolen property, and their cases will be heard in Felony court on July 13.

RECKLESS DRIVER FINED.

GIRL, 3, IS KILLED BY AUTO AS SHE PLAYS IN STREET

Struck by an automobile as she was playing in the street in front of her home, Dolores Schoot, 3 years old, 2951 Haynes court, was fatally injured late last night. She died at the Peoples hospital. The driver, John Duback, 28 years old, 3048 Lock street, was ordered to appear at the inquest today. This death increased the motor toll for Cook county to 665 since Jan. 1.

Paul Piskouwicz, 10 years old, 1909 Kimball avenue, was seriously injured in a freak accident at Springfield and Armitage avenues yesterday. The boy was hitch riding on an ice truck driven by Charles Ancouson, 1901 North Crawford avenue. The truck was struck by a west bound street car and pushed into the path of an east bound street car. The boy lost his hold and was crushed by the second street car.

County Highway Policeman Edward Scholer, 35 years old, 835 West 37th street, suffered a fractured left leg last night when his motorcycle collided with an automobile on Burnham avenue in Calumet City. The driver of the automobile did not stop.

GIRL OF 19 GETS 30 DAY TERM IN MAGAZINE FRAUD

De Vaughn Ashley, 19 years old, 1324 Bryn Mawr avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell and was fined $3 yesterday in Judge Leon Edelman's court on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Although her attorney, John P. Durita, said he would appeal, the young woman started serving her term immediately as no bond was posted.

Miss Ashley, it was charged by three of 72 men complaining to the police about her activities, received down payments on magazine subscriptions without bothering to see that the publication were delivered. The complainants were A. J. Wolff, 3349 North Irving avenue, D. Galighan, 871 Winthrop avenue, and S. H. Brawan, 2323 Cleveland avenue.

JURY INDICTS 12 FOR CONSPIRACY TO WRECK BUS

$30,000 Damages Asked by Alleged Plotters.

Indictments were returned by the grand jury yesterday against twelve persons accused of conspiring to wreck a motor bus plying between Chicago and St. Louis. One of those indicted was the driver, and nine of the others were passengers at the time the vehicle plunged into a shallow ditch near Pontiac, Ill., early in the morning of April 28.

Although insurance investigators said that no serious damage was done, claims amounting to $30,000 have been filed against the bus company by the passengers, who, it is alleged, made the trip in order to file claims after the fake accident.

Arrested as Plotters.

Those arrested are, Mrs. Marie Bastas, 739 South Leavitt street; James E. Kennedy, 6108 Blackstone avenue; Charles E. Jones, alias Martin, 6108 Blackstone avenue; William E. Jones, 6103 Blackstone avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Madix, 2240 Jackson boulevard; Clarence Sager, Calvert hotel; Jack Winters, Calvert hotel; Denis Zenos, 6317 Woodlawn avenue; Theodore Murphy, 6201 Dorchester avenue; and William H. May, Calvert hotel, driver of the bus. Miss Avis Winters, alias Zenos, alias Rutland, was indicted but has not yet been found by the police.

According to Assistant State's Attorney Julius Skrydlewsky and Wilkie Ham, a Miss Winters, Denis Zenos, and Ted Murphy met on April 26 at Zenos' home. At this meeting, it is said, plans were laid to wreck a bus belonging to the Colonial Bus stages, a subsidiary of the Interstate Transit company.

Story of Bus Trip.

On April 27 the bus left Chicago for St. Louis, with the entire party except Zenos and Murphy. The wreck was to occur on the way to St. Louis, but May lost his resolve when a man and woman with several children boarded the bus, the state's attorney's representatives said. Upon arriving in St. Louis the group was met by Zenos and Murphy, who are said to have threatened May in case he did not carry out the plan on the way back.

Early on the evening morning the bus began the return trip, with Zenos and Murphy following in a sedan, the prosecutors said, and ten miles from Pontiac it was driven into the ditch.

Pilot Says They Couldn't Spend a Cent.

BY WILEY POST.

[Pilot of the monoplane Winnie Mae. [World Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times company. publication in whole or in part forbidden.]

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—Now that the shouting is over and that great reception which New York gave us is a thing of the past, Gatty and I had a chance this afternoon to sit back, draw a breath, and get some of our impressions together.

First of all, let me take this opportunity to thank the city and everybody in it, from Mayor Walker and Dr. Finley to the street cleaners who are going to have to clean up the litter we caused, for that magnificent welcome to us today. I don't know that we earned it, but I'll admit we liked it.

The reception showed us something that I believe is important in the development of aviation. The reception was for the successful completion of a flight which could not have been made a few years ago and which could be made at this time because such excellent equipment was at our command in plane, motor, and instruments.

Frankly, we were surprised at the enthusiasm shown. We had wondered if, with so many flights, the public had lost its enthusiasm. But today showed that the public is still very much interested in aviation and is thrilled at each new event which brings the day of universal flying closer.

It Was a Cheap Trip.

One feature of our trip brings us a chuckle. Here we've been around the world and have spent a tremendous day in New York and we literally have not spent a cent. We had $35 when we left New York for incidental expenses. I had $34 and Gatty had the other dollar. And we've still got it. We never had a chance to buy anything. Of course, arrangements had been made in advance at all fields for our gasoline and oil, and these we purchased on credit. But on our personal expenses we were treated to such generous hospitality everywhere that we never got our hands near our pocketbooks.

As to our flight itself, we think we really have accomplished something more than tearing around the world faster than anybody ever made it before. We have great hopes that we may have helped bring the time closer when commercial aviation will span the seas and the land and bring all people closer together.

Think Route Is Practical.

We believe the route we followed is practicable from the standpoint of commercial aviation. Of course much would have to be done before it could be put to such use, but the route itself, from our experience, is the best that has yet been suggested. It turned out to be very much what we had expected, except that we ran into worse weather than we had counted on.

But the air fields which we found sprinkled around the world gave us good service and fields established to handle regular commercial traffic would of course be equipped to furnish even better. So we hope that we will see the time when planes carrying passengers will be dropping down on the fields and roaring across the spaces that we saw on our trip in the Winnie Mae.

We learned something from the flight, too. Any time any one makes a flight like the one we have just finished is bound to learn something. We learned things about navigation and tested out for ourselves recent improvements in instruments, though, so be accurate, there is much more to be learned about aerial navigation than is now known. It is a young science.

Proves Blind Flying Possible.

One thing I learned is that a man can sit in a plane, stay there for hours, be perfectly safe and get where he is going to even if he can't see anything beyond the instrument board. We did that repeatedly in this flight and I would think that the general public's just knowing that such a thing was possible would increase confidence in aviation.

We are finding from the questions that people ask us that they exaggerate the hardships and the strain on pilot and navigator due to a long fast trip such as ours. I'll admit we were tired when we landed and we still are tired. We had only four or five hours sleep last night after going on short rest rations most of the flight. But we don't feel any ill effects of it today. I'm still pretty deaf but I'll be able to hear pretty well by tomorrow. As a matter of fact I could hear better in the plane than I could on land."

Physical Condition Good.

I was in good condition when I started and I am now except that my leg is still sore from kicking the rubber.

We did not do any special training for our trip, but on the flight we took as good care of ourselves as circumstances permitted. We drank plenty of water and ate very little food—not more than one meal a day. We ate hardly at all in the plane. That kept us fresh. And we are not particularly hungry now.

We had no trouble keeping awake on the long stretches, which seems to surprise some people and I think we actually felt better late along in the flight, when we felt certain we were going to get there, than we did on the early stages. We didn't take any intoxicants. I don't use them at all and we simply didn't need any stimulants.

Ready to Fly Again.

Flying is a habit like lots of other things. If you get the habit you'll never get over it. You would think I had had enough flying to do me for a while, but in three or four days I know I'll be impatient to get in the air again.

Just what our future plans are neither Gatty nor I can say now. We have heard all sorts of reports about things we are supposed to be preparing, new flights and the like. We have no plans whatever. We both want to go home, of course, but we do not know when that will be. A number of offers of various sorts have come for us, we are told, but we have not had time to consider them and do not even know what most of them are. One was an offer to go on the stage. That's a joke. That's the last thing we would do.

GATTY TELLS OF 16,000 MILE JOB OF NAVIGATION

Says Radio Was No Help at All.

BY HAROLD GATTY.

Navigator of the monoplane Winnie Mae. [World Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times company. publication in whole or in part forbidden.]

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—As a navigator, our flight around the world impressed me with two facts. One is that instruments and mathematical tables used in determining position must be vastly improved. The other is that our radio was of virtually no use to us whatever.

I had looked forward to the flight for a long time for the opportunity it would offer to study the practical application of the latest developments in instruments and technique of aeronavigation. Ever since I was a cadet at the Australia Naval college, which I entered in 1917 when I was 14 years old, navigation has interested me. What I learned at the naval college I put to practical use for six or seven years as a deck officer on merchant ships.

Then, three and a half years ago, I took up the study of aeronavigation in this country with Lieutenant Commander Philip Weems, who is now an instructor at the Naval academy at Annapolis. This is different and offers more problems than navigation at sea because of the speed you are going and other factors peculiar to flight.

Weems System Helps.

Well, what he taught me I had a chance to put to some use in fairly long flights on the west coast. Weems and I worked up some new methods for calculations in celestial navigation, using what is known as the Weems system.

In this system you use a bubble sextant and an aerochronometer. As any one who has had anything to do with navigation knows, with a bubble sextant you don't have to worry about the horizon. Flying over the Siberian wilderness or the Bering sea or at any other point where it was possible to see the sun or the stars, we could count on the bubble sextant giving us an accurate reading, whether or not the horizon was hazy.

The aero chronometer is designed to offset the difficulty that the rapid speed of an airplane adds to making a calculation. At sea you can note the time of an observation by glancing at the second hand of a chronometer and remembering where it pointed. This is all right when you are traveling at the slow speed of a ship, but it leads to inaccuracies when you are flying. The advantage of the aero chronometer is that it provides a mechanical check on the exact instant of observation.

Sees Improvements on Way.

These instruments are just coming into use now. The more I learn about navigation the more impressed I am by how little is known of the subject. The army and navy are taking up these new instruments and I am sure that they will be used universally as time goes on.

I found that it was more satisfactory to take sights on the stars than on the sun because the sun only provides you one line to calculate on. If you have an adequate set of tables, sights on the stars are no more complicated than sights on the sun. The time may come when navigators may not depend so much on celestial observations and use the radio instead, as is done to a greater extent now than formerly by navigators on ships.

Our radio, however, proved to be very nearly just so much dead weight. We regarded the transmitter as more important than the receiver in the event of an emergency. We sent signals on it once as we were nearing Ireland, then again over the Aleutians, but as far as I know nobody heard us.

Weather Reports "in Russian."

As far as radio weather reports were concerned, we didn't get any. Of course, we didn't have much time to listen, and on a large part of our flight the part where weather reports would have been of most value, if there were any, they were sent in Russian, and we wouldn't have been able to understand them if we had got them. The weather reports are usually sent out on long waves, and long wave equipment weighs too much at present to be desirable on an airplane that is making a long distance flight and on which weight has to be conserved as far as possible in order to carry large stocks of fuel.

We sent out some signals while we were crossing the Atlantic, but have not heard of any ships having caught them.

Radios Must Improve.

Because of our experience with the radio, which has convinced us that airplane radios must be improved a lot if they are going to be of much use on such flights, I believe that we must look to improved methods of navigation by celestial navigation. In time, I believe, this work will be made virtually automatic. Mathematical tables have already eliminated much of the routine of calculation, but they can be improved still further. There will also be improvements in sextants.

One personal satisfaction that I had in the trip was the opportunity it gave me to try out in very thorough fashion a ground speed indicator that I have devised. It also indicates the drift, and since our drift while crossing the Atlantic was at times as high as 19 per cent, the importance of being able to measure it was great.

HER COMPLEXION COMPLIMENTED

Mrs. Rardin Praises Resinol

"I often wonder how many people know what a grand soap Resinol Soap is. I have been complimented on my complexion and it is due to Resinol Soap—nothing more. When my son came from the army his face and neck were badly broken out. After three different treatments failed to give good results I had him use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and the very first treatment helped him. I give it all the praise in the world." (Signed)

Mrs. C. W. Rardin, Zanesville, Ohio.

You, too, can have a clear, smooth complexion by using Resinol Soap daily with a touch of Resinol Ointment to heal the occasional pimple. At your druggists. Free sample. Write Resinol, Dept. 97, Baltimore, Md.

NEW YORK GIVES POST AND GATTY A N. Y. WELCOME

Greeting Is Second Only to Lindbergh's.

the party and talked with Post and Gatty for half an hour. Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, who may leave tomorrow on a flight designed to smash the Post and Gatty record, also paid a visit to the flyers.

Tonight the two men were guests at a dinner at the New York Athletic club given by two aircraft clubs. It was a stag affair and the flyers' wives attended a theater as guests of Miss Evelyn Wagner, one of Mayor Walker's secretaries.

Tomorrow the flyers will drive to Long Island, where they will board the yacht of William H. Todd for a week-end cruise. Monday they will fly to Washington to lunch with President Hoover, returning here Monday night or Tuesday morning. That is as far ahead as their plans have been made.

The meeting between Mrs. Gatty and her flying husband this morning was a public affair. When she was pushed through the crowd to Gatty's side she cried: "Gee, hello," as tears streamed down her cheeks. Gatty answered: "Hello," and threw his arms around her. Then an overeager welcomer knocked off Mrs. Gatty's hat, Gatty's coat was almost torn off and the party broke up.

Dump Loads of Weapons from Criminals Into River

Quincy, Ill., July 2.—(AP)—Hundreds of blackjacks, pistols, knives and other weapons taken from criminals were dumped into the Mississippi river today by police.

HOOVER HOST TO POST AND GATTY ON VISIT MONDAY

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—The feat of aviation's newest heroes, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, today quickened the pulse of the capital as it looked forward to their visit Monday.

President and Mrs. Hoover will lead officialdom in acclaiming the flyers with a luncheon for them, their wives, and F. C. Hall, backer of the flight.

The White House hoped to assemble the army flyers who were first to encircle the globe by air in 1925, but it found they were so widely scattered that time was too short.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, announced he would seek further official recognition of the birdmen's feat by proposing to congress that a special medal of honor be awarded.

Preparations were also made for a reception at 4 p. m. by the National Press club and a monster banquet at 7:30 p. m. sponsored by the Washington Board of Trade and the National Aeronautical association.

GATTY'S THREE BOYS LISTEN ON RADIO TO HONORS PAID TO DAD

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—(AP)—Three little boys stood transfixed before a radio today and listened to the acclaim from New York for their father, Harold Gattey, and his companion, Wiley Post, in the epochal round the world flight of the Winnie Mae.

Two of them, Alan, 5, and Lindsay, 3, knew what it was all about. Ronald, 3, knew that something important was in "the air." Billy Winkleman, 5, pal of the Gatty boys, popped a question after it was all over.

"What will we do when he comes back?"

Alan, spokesman, replied instantly: "We gotta decide. We're gonna give him a big time like they did in New York. It was swell but ours'll be sweller."

"He's swell," he said about "daddy." "Nobody could do what he did. He flew all the way around the world and he wasn't scared either."

TRY SEATTLE TO TOKIO NONSTOP HOP TOMORROW

Seattle, Wash., July 2.—(AP)—At dawn Saturday Reg L. Robbins and H. S. Jones, Texas aviators, hope to shoot their little white monoplane, Fort Worth, into the sky over Seattle and start their projected 5,100 mile, nonstop, midair refueling flight to Tokio, Japan.

With the exception of checking over their motor, which they plan to do tomorrow, the two Fort Worth airmen were ready tonight to leave on the dangerous adventure which has never been accomplished, although attempted a half dozen times.

Robbins tonight telephoned his refueling ship flyers, J. J. Mattern and Nick Greener, who are in Edmonton, Alberta, and learned they were ready to leave for Fairbanks, Alaska, tomorrow.

The Fort Worth will be refueled in midair at Fairbanks and at Nome by Mattern and Greener.

New York, July 2.—(AP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty have reduced the circumference of the world, in terms of time, to 3 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes, but their record is threatened and may fall within the month.

Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon are at Roosevelt field awaiting good weather. They hope to fly around the world in six days. Another pair of flyers, at Le Borget, Paris, revealed their hope of starting around the globe "in another 24 hours." This sudden announcement came from Joseph Lebrix, former flying partner of Dieudonne Coste, and Martin Dorr.

The French flyers said they hoped to lower the Post-Gatty time and would fly "toward Tokio."

Given Permission to Fly Over Siberia.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—Reg L. Robins of Fort Worth, Tex., and H. S. Jones of Chicago today were authorized by the soviet government to fly over Siberia on their projected flight from Seattle to Tokio.

There's no bite to parch out of CAMELS

WE WOULD never think of using heat to the extent of parching the delightful flavor and aroma out of the choice Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos we use in blending Camels.

On the contrary we do everything to preserve the original mildness and flavor of our choice tobaccos. And then we wrap Camels in moisture-proof Cellophane, making each package a humidor which keeps the cigarettes always in factory-fresh condition.

Wherever you buy Camels you are always sure to get fresh cigarettes. This Humidor Pack keeps out dust and germs and holds the natural moisture in.

If you are not a Camel smoker, just try them for one whole day.

After you have discovered how mild and cool they are to the throat; after you have learned how rich and flavorful a truly fresh cigarette can be; then go back to your old brand — if you can.

● Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against sweat, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until you smoke the last one

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons—Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

CAMELS

NO CIGARETTY AFTER-TASTE

THAT Humidor Pack was meant for me. First of all it always brings me fresh cigarettes and no matter how much I sweat, my Camels are always right

AUTOS TO FILL CHICAGOLAND'S ROADS ON 4TH

Million Here to Motor on Double Holiday.

BY HAL FOUST.

A quarter of a million Chicagoans, with favorable weather over the double holiday this week-end, will ride out of the city in automobiles for the resort districts of northern Illinois, southern Indiana, and Wisconsin and Michigan. With others spending at least part of the two day vacation on the road, there will be between 400,000 and 500,000 motor cars on the pavements of Chicagoland, carrying more than 1,000,000 passengers, traffic experts predict.

The exodus started last night, a few thousand being able to stretch the week-end into a three day vacation, getting out of the city before the expected rush tonight and tomorrow morning. On Independence day the green Chicago vehicle tag will be a familiar sight at lakes and golf links one or two hundred miles from the city, swinging through the palisades overlooking the Mississippi river, and exploring the hills and woods of the neighboring states to the north.

Warned to Be Careful.

The explosion of gasoline vapors in automobile engines has become a far more popular Fourth of July sport than exploding fireworks. And, the national safety council points out, motor travel during the holidays causes more casualties than pyrotechnics. Drivers are warned to exercise unusual caution.

The main problem in planning the week-end trip is how to get in and out of Chicago, where the congestion is heaviest and where highway construction work necessitates several detours.

Roads That Are Blocked.

LAKE STREET [ILL. 5]—Between Ottarioville and Elgin.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY [ILL. 22]—Between Crawford avenue and the Cook-Will county line, and between Ill. 83 and Sauk trail.

ROOSEVELT ROAD [ILL. 8]—For 13 miles east of Geneva; at railroad crossing in Westchester; and with a mile gravel ruh around for a mile near Glen Ellyn.

DIXIE HIGHWAY—Between I. C. subway in Homewood to Holbrook road.

Other Highways Closed.

Other highways which are closed are McHenry road, Dundee road to Lake county line; Central road, Rand road to Milwaukee avenue and from Barrington road to Roselle road; Lake avenue, Waukegan road to Shermer road; Shermer road, Waukegan road to Lake avenue; Algonquin road, Des Plaines to Algonquin; Roselle road, Higgins road to Ill.-53; Oakton street, Mannheim road west; Franklin avenue, Mannheim road to Wolf road; Madison street, at the I. H. B. R. R. west of Twenty-fifth avenue; Eighty-seventh street, Cicero avenue to Ridgeland avenue; Crawford avenue, Seventy-ninth street to 111th street; Ridgeland avenue, Ninety-fifth street to 111th street and 135th street to 146 street; Steger road, Western avenue to Dixie highway; Western avenue, Lincoln highway to Twenty-sixth street; Burnham avenue, Ridge road to Glenwood-Dyer road.

Each Barricade Marked.

Each barricade for construction jobs is with a marked detour, according to the Chicago Motor club.

In order to avoid the detour on Dempster street, motorists are advised to turn north over Waukegan road to route 53, turning west to connect with Milwaukee avenue, River road, Rand road, or the Northwest highway, without going through the busy section at Des Plaines.

Oakton street has been newly opened up from Lake Michigan to Evanston to River road and Mannheim road at Des Plaines.

Touhy avenue, which has been closed in several sections during the past few weeks, is now open from Chicago west to Higgins road.

Dempster street has just been paved connecting to Lawrence avenue at Mason avenue, providing a connection to Harlem avenue, River road and Mannheim road.

The greatest congestion over the week-end is expected on Sunday night, starting about 6:30 o'clock and lasting until 9 or 10 o'clock.

SILBERMANN IS OUSTED; PLAYED TO POLITICIANS

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—In a decision which exonerated him on the charge of corruption but found three other charges to comprise sufficient cause, the appellate division by a unanimous vote of the five justices today removed Jesse Silbermann from the bench of the Magistrates' court.

By setting a precedent as to cause for removal the decision dealt what Samuel Seabury, who prosecuted the case, believed may be a destructive blow to the existing political machine in New York City.

Mr. Silbermann, the decision said, was improperly influenced by political considerations in imposing sentence upon Philip Grabsky." The other two sustained charges each stated the same primary offense, that Mr. Silbermann had been unfair and prejudicial in the conduct of specified cases before him—most of them in the Women's court.

The decision caused to fall the fifth judicial head since the inquiry into the lower courts was begun last September, and the seventh since the beginning of 1930.

Plan to Test 50,000 Autos Safety Week

CITY TO TEST AUTOS FREE IN SAFETY DRIVE

Part of Council Plan to Cut Accidents.

Chicagoans will have an opportunity in the week beginning July 20 to test their automobiles, free of charge, for faulty brakes and other mechanical deficiencies at seven safety lanes to be installed in various sections of the city.

ALD. MASSEN. [Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

These tests will be part of a safety drive undertaken by the city council committee on traffic and public safety in cooperation with the Chicago safety council. Details of the drive were made public at a luncheon in the Palmer house yesterday which was attended by city officials, representatives of motor clubs, and others.

Ald. John A. Massen, chairman of the council committee, said that the drive was the first step in accordance with instructions given to his committee by the council directing an investigation into measures effective in reducing automobile accidents.

Places for Auto Tests.

Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, announced that the safety lanes would be installed at the following places:

Madison street and the outer drive, Broadway and Sheridan road, Diversey boulevard and Kedzie avenue, Kedzie avenue and Madison street, Ashland avenue between 63th and 69th streets, Stony Island avenue between 78th and 79th streets, and in the 700 block in Polk street.

The first six lanes are for passenger automobiles. The seventh will be for the use of trucks and buses.

How Tests Are Made.

A motorist tests his brakes in these safety lanes by driving at a given speed and suddenly applying his brakes. The resistance of the wheels to the floor is recorded on gauges. The headlights, horn, rear view mirror, windshield wiper, steering wheel play and wheel alignment also are tested.

Each lane will have a capacity of 1,000 cars a day. The testing in other cities has dropped the automobile accident toll 15 to 20 per cent, speakers at the luncheon yesterday declared.

U. S. CAUTIONS PARENTS ABOUT JULY 4 PERILS

Washington, D. C., July 2.—(AP)—Powder burns and indigestion, overexertion and overexcitement were subjects of a federal children's bureau Fourth of July warning.

Miss Katherine Lenroot, acting chief, asked communities to do the celebrating, thus "taking fireworks out of the hands of children."

She appealed to parents "absolutely to forbid" young children to handle the explosives and to supervise older children closely.

Nonunion Barber Shot by Two Gunmen in His Shop

Arthur Levitt, 37 years old, owner of a barber shop at 17 North Kedzie avenue, was shot in the shoulder by two unidentified men who invaded his shop yesterday morning. Levitt, who was taken to the Washington Boulevard hospital, told the police that he had been threatened by union agents because he ran an open shop and that on three occasions the window in his place had been shattered.

Bids 16 Cents Each for 32 Horses and Buys 'Em

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REALICO, Argentina, July 2.—Thirty-two good work horses were sold today for 16 cents apiece during a creditors' auction of a bankrupt farmers' properties, while 900 sacks of wheat were bought for less than 17 cents each by the creditor, who was the only bidder. The court, which ordered the auction, later refused to sanction the sale.

SHOT BY SON; LEGS PARALYZED.

Warsaw, Ind., July 2.—[Special.]—C. E. Bareham, 50, farmer, is in a local hospital with both legs paralyzed as a result of being shot in the back accidentally this afternoon by his son Maurice, 15, who was shooting birds with a target rifle.

EXPECT GRAND JURY TO INDICT MOTHER IN POISON CASE TODAY

Lebanon, Ind., July 2.—[Special.]—The Boone county grand jury will return an indictment tomorrow morning against Mrs. Carrie Barrett Simmons, 47, charging her with administering poison which resulted in the deaths here June 21 of her daughters, Virginia, 14, and Alice Jean, 10, it was reported authoritatively here tonight. Only the one true bill will be returned.

The grand jury completed a review of the evidence this afternoon and recessed till 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, when its report will be made.

Horace N. Jackson, brother-in-law of John W. Simmons, father of the girls who died after eating sandwiches prepared by their mother, was the only witness to appear before the deliberative body today. Jackson ate one of the poisoned sandwiches and was critically ill two days.

The remainder of the session was spent reviewing signed statements of other members of the reunion party. Neither parent of the girl victims was called before the jury, but their sworn statements were introduced.

Judge John W. Hornaday said if the jury returned an indictment, and a speedy trial were demanded, he would continue the present term of court, which is scheduled to close July 15.

Mrs. Simmons has been held in jail here for the last week, although no formal charges were placed against her.

4 CHILDREN SHOT AS MILWAUKEE POLICE KILL DOG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 2.—[Special.]—Four children were shot, and one critically wounded by a West Allis policeman, who fired into a group of 14 children today in killing a dog reported to have been mad in the streets of the suburb.

Angeline Valenza, 3, one of the children, underwent an emergency operation at County Emergency hospital. Physicians said she had been struck in the abdomen and that her condition was grave.

Here's List of Injured.

The other children injured were:

Josephin Aliota, 13, wounded in the chest. She also was said to be in a serious condition.

Vincent Russo, 8, hit in the thigh.

Vincent Randaczgo, 3, scalp wound.

All the injured children were taken to the County Emergency hospital for for treatment.

Henry T. Gillard, a veteran member of the West Allis police department, fired at the dog with a riot gun loaded with buckshot. The shot ricocheted from the pavement and into the group of children.

Denies Seeing Children.

Chief of Police Samuel Minturn of West Allis announced following an investigation that Gillard fired only one charge as the dog came toward him. Gillard said he did not see the children. When the animal was killed its body rolled almost under the wheels of the squad car from which Gillard fired.

Chief Minturn learned that Mrs. Arthur Werner had reported the dog terrorizing the neighborhood and asked that it be killed.

The squad car responded immediately, carrying Gillard and driven by Henry Grenwis. Gillard circled the dog on sighting it. In swinging around, the gun of the policeman came directly in line with the children.

SAFETY PATROLS TO ENFORCE RULES AT ALL AIRPORTS

Plan Special Watch for Holiday.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Aroused by the recent airplane accident in which Miss Betty Robinson, Olympic track star, and the novice pilot of the plane in which she was riding were seriously injured, the Chicago aero commission, through its chairman, M. C. Meigs, announced yesterday that all Chicago airports will be patrolled over the Fourth of July holidays in an effort to prevent the recurrence of such an accident.

M. C. MEIGS.

In coöperation with Sheriff Meyering, the commission will place representatives at each airport with instructions to arrest any pilot flying in violation of the regulations of the department of commerce. In the opinion of Mr. Meigs and the commission the accident in which the Robinson girl and the young pilot, Wilson Palmer, were badly injured, was indirectly caused by a disregard of these rules.

Points to Law Violations.

"That unfortunate accident," said Mr. Meigs, "calls attention to the fact that unlicensed pilots in unlicensed planes, flying from unsanctioned fields are still in operation. In this case three department of commerce rules were violated; the plane contained dual controls which were not removed; the license had expired on the airplane, and the pilot was a licensed student but not a licensed pilot, which did not permit him to carry passengers under any circumstance. Furthermore, he was not flying from a department of commerce rated airport, which, while not a violation of the law, is not conducive to safe flying.

"Unlicensed, reckless flying is almost in the category of plain murder and must, in the interests of safety, be stopped. Pilots are taking too many liberties from flying fields around Chicago. They know what the rules are and if they violate them they should be placed under arrest and this is what the commission is going to help accomplish."

Gives Rules For Public.

To the public, Mr. Meigs issued the following warnings:

Do not fly from a field which does not have properly laid out runways and hangar accommodations.

Ask to be shown the license of the plane which can be found in or near the cockpit.

Having taken these precautions, the passenger may fly with the maximum of safety, said Mr. Meigs.

The accident in which Miss Robinson and young Palmer were injured occurred when the motor of their plane cut out 400 feet in the air and the flyer, who had just obtained a student's permit, was unable to make a safe forced landing.

$150,000 in Rum, Billed as Grape Juice, Seized

Montgomery, Ala., July 2.—(AP)—A carload of liquor, billed as grape juice from Brooksville, Fla., to Wautaca, Wis., was seized in the railway yards here today by federal officers, who estimated the value of the shipment at $150,000. They said the car contained 600 cases of bottles, probably 50 of which contained grape juice.

FIND CITY GETS PAROLED FELONS OF OTHER STATES

Arrest of Gunman Bares Chicago Permits.

Cheerful information that nearby states are loosing their convicts on Chicago was received yesterday by Chief of Detectives Norton in anything but a cheerful manner. In fact, he said, there is no cheer in the news.

Joseph Benson, 39 years old, armed with a revolver, was capured yesterday morning by Sergt. Patrick McShane and squad after Benson and Ray Walker, 21 years olds, had committed three robberies. At the bureau of identification it was learned Benson had been paroled from the Michigan City, Ind., prison on May 28.

More Than 200 Paroled Here.

"Yes, certainly," said Dr. Emory Lyon, superintendent of the Central Howard association, "we have many convicts from other states paroled to Chicago. About 150 to 200 are entrusted to our care. The Volunteers of America, with headquarters at 2841 West Washington boulevard, and with Hope Hall on the north side, look after 25 to 35 more convicts on parole from others states."

Benson, it developed, was paroled to the Central Howard association. He informed the association he had a job in a west side hotel at $1 a day and room and on his last report made on Tuesday night he said that he had earned $28 during June but that he was then out of a job.

"What supervision do you have over the convicts paroled here from other states?" Dr. Lyon was asked.

Explains Their Supervision.

"We have men who watch over them," he replied. "They make monthly reports to us concerning their occupations and their earnings."

"What happens when they are out of jobs?" Dr. Lyon was asked.

"Then they are supposed to report to our headquarters every day and we tell them where to go to look for work."

"What excuse is there for other states unloading their criminals upon Chicago?" Dr. Lyon was asked.

"Oh, reform and care of criminals is an intercity and interstate problem," he answered. "There is an interchange of responsibility upon society as a whole, without boundary lines, to supervise the conduct of men released from prison. We don't want them to become greater menaces than they were. A Chicago criminal could make an overnight jump to Ohio, commit a crime there, and return."

Get Out—System in Ohio.

"Does Ohio release many of its convicts on parole to Chicago?" Dr. Lyon was asked.

"Ohio hasn't the proper conception of its responsibilities," came the reply. "Ohio grants what we call 'sunset' paroles. That is, a convict is freed with the only requirement that he make a report from Chicago and then Ohio knows he is out of that state and they don't care any more."

"Does Illinois reciprocate?" the supervisor of convicts was asked.

"In some instances, yes," he replied, "but only by executive action and in unusual cases. Because the governor must approve out of the state paroles are rare in Illinois."

"Quite a Few" from Indiana.

"Do we get many convicts from Indiana?"

"Yes, quite a few, and also a number from Michigan. That is justifiable if we consider that many of them had former residences here or worked here or have relatives here. Many convicts have no legal residences, and if they ask to be paroled to Chicago they usually are."

"What excuse was there for sending Benson here?"

"I can't see anything in our records on that subject. Benson was born in Indianapolis. He served thirteen years on the last sentence and he had been imprisoned twice before. Liquor was the cause of his offenses. As far as I can determine he has no relatives in Chicago."

LAMONT CALLS COAL OPERATORS' PARLEY; SEEK TO AID INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—Secretary of Commerce Lamont in response to a request by President Hoover, has called a conference of principal bituminous coal mine operators to be held at the department of commerce on July 9.

The conference is an outgrowth of a plea to President Hoover by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, that some action be taken by the government to remedy the ills of an industry which he said was beyond hope of self-aid. President Hoover laid the matter before the secretaries of commerce and labor.

Telegrams have been sent by Secretary Lamont to about thirty mine operators throughout the country notifying them of the conference, and it is expected that 12 or 15 of this number will attend. Mr. Lamont said he did not expect "any big things" to be accomplished as a result of the conference. He said it was intended primarily as an opportunity for operators to come together and discuss their problems and as a preliminary to whatever corrective measures may be taken.

BURIAL HALTED; CORONER IS TOLD TO SEEK POISON

Judge Acts on Plea of of Son.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Taibro Gastierres, carrying concealed weapons, sentenced to 1 year in the county jail by Judge Charles A. Williams.

Lawyer Clinkscale, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Joseph Sabath.

Judge John Prystalski of the Criminal court yesterday issued an order staying the burial of Frank Smidl, 62 years old, who died suddenly on June 25 at his home, 2415 61st avenue, Cicero. The court ordered the coroner's office to examine the body to determine if Smidl had been poisoned.

These actions were requested by the dead man's son, Frank Jr., 29 years old, 2131 South 59th court, Cicero. Accompanying him to the state's attorney's office were his brothers, James and Edward, and his sister, Mrs. Marie Nowak, 2517 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn.

Tells of Trouble with Wife.

"My father and step-mother, Mrs. Cecilia Smidl, whom he married two years ago, lived alone," Frank told Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne. "Recently he said he believed he was being slowly poisoned. He had noticed a burning sensation in his stomach after his meals and after drinking his daily bottle of wine.

"He begged me to have a thorough investigation made if he died suddenly," young Smidl said.

When these facts were told to Judge Prystalski, he ordered the body placed in a vault at the National Polish cemetery, 4600 North Crawford avenue, and postponed burial for two weeks. The coroner's office assigned Dr. Axel F. Benson to examine the viscera. The widow has not yet been questioned.

Steamer Tows Crippled Ship 1,335 Miles Into Port

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, July 2.—(AP)—After a 1,335 mile tow through heavy seas lasting nine days, the steamer Opawa today brought the City of Kimberley safely into the harbor. The City of Kimberley, from New York, had lost her propeller near Cook islands.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE UNPAID TEACHERS.

Representatives of the Chicago teachers got their case to Gov. Emmerson indirectly Wednesday, although their parade was stopped for lack of a park police permit and the hotel doormen prevented them from reaching the governor as a delegation. Nevertheless they accomplished most of their purpose and are promised that the state will endeavor to speed up a distribution of funds which will give them some money on account. The teachers are bearing heavily the consequences of financial collapse in local government. They have not been paid since the middle of April and their prospects are not much better than their past. Even where they are protected by their own savings it is an injustice to make them sacrifice funds because of lack of pay and many of them no doubt are embarrassed with bills due and credit strained.

Public sympathy does not do them much good and it is indeed quite indecent that a branch of service in the main conscientious should have to be so scurvily treated. The major scandals of school administration have not been found in the teachers' pay roll. The teachers will rate high in giving a dollar's worth of service for a dollar's worth of pay and that is unusual. It is not true of other school departments wherein costs have been outrageous and where organized graft is the only explanation.

The teachers, an honest body of public servants, rating high in intelligence and probity, have not, however, been without responsibility. Their several organizations through which they have sought to improve their conditions have made some serious mistakes. Some thirty years ago the Teachers' federation undertook to discover and disclose fugitive taxable values on the theory that if tax dodging could be stopped ample revenue would be obtained to increase the salary scale. The promoters of the campaign will say that important results were obtained, but many of them got a bent toward radicalism in politics. They became associated with a radical wing of labor and, what was of worse consequence, they became the victims of some of the worst scallawag politicians the city has known. They gave support to a city hall administration which was expert only in raiding the public treasury through every open door of appropriation. School administration was involved in the looting of funds through contracts, fees, excess costs, grand larceny and pilfering. Many years of this piled up deferred but unavoidable consequences. Many of the teachers politically supported the politicians responsible. Many of them helped to create the intolerable conditions to which Supt. McAndrew was reduced by the intrigue against him and the fantastic attack upon him.

They were misguided and beguiled by the plausibility of glib scoundrels. They saw their own just interests in a quarter which held only ruin for the school system and all other public services. They were deceived by political interests which contemplated only the enrichment of corruptionists and the destruction of public service. The wreckers had tried to work under the cover of a pretense of consideration for popular rights, the familiar duck blind for pot hunting rascals, and this old game bagged many of the influential teachers.

It was a great pity. The teachers should not have been so deluded, but they had been prepared to fall victim to such intrigue. The whole city is suffering from the consequences and does not yet see its way out. The teachers are without pay because the scoundrels they supported wrecked the finances of all public treasuries and reduced all public service to something like chaos.

AROUND THE WORLD.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the fortitude and skill of Post and Gatty in their flight around the world in less than nine days. Their record may be surpassed in future, but their achievement will remain as one of the outstanding accomplishments in aviation.

One aspect of their flight is likely to be overlooked. It was a private venture, privately organized and financed. It is a singular fact that governments, with all their resources of training, equipment and money, have never been able to duplicate the extraordinary feats performed by civilian flyers. Our army planes circumnavigated the globe, but it took them many weeks and they had every advantage of patrolled routes in their favor. An Italian squadron crossed the South Atlantic, a relatively far easier task, and in doing so suffered a number of casualties to men and planes. The record could be continued, but it would show nothing to match the civilian exploits.

Governments are bound by precedent and red tape and they lack imagination. Individual initiative will almost always achieve the objective while governments are weighing its pros and cons in interminable conferences. More than that, governments are subject to criticism and must prepare for it. If Post and Gatty had been flying an army or navy plane, their preparations would have been made with a view to withstanding a hostile senate inquiry. Their arrangements would have had to be approved by a half dozen chiefs of bureau, a couple of assistant secretaries, as many secretaries of department and probably the President as well. Men who understood the risks and men who did not would have had a word to say, and probably many words, about how the flight should be conducted. As it was, all these nuisances were avoided. Therefore the flight was undertaken and therefore it was successful. Pravda and Isvestia, please copy.

A MORATORIUM FOR CHICAGO.

The sanitary district has made its semi-annual report to the United States Supreme court, citing progress on the sewage treatment works ordered by the court in the lake diversion suit.

The district has completed work costing $96,000,000, and it has ahead of it $178,000,000 in construction. In the immediate future it proposes to spend $30,000,000.

Needless to say, these are enormous sums and they would be enormous even in ordinary times. At present, when business is poor, tax collections are running far behind expectations, and the essential services of the local governments are facing serious impairment because of a shortage of revenue, the strain imposed by the court on the taxpayers and credit of Chicago can only be described as oppressive.

"Under the circumstances it would seem to be entirely reasonable to request the court to declare a moratorium in the sanitary district's building program. Subsequent decisions of the court have provided a basis for the belief that the sanitary decree, written by the late chief justice, owes much of its severity to views and prejudices which Mr. Taft acquired when he was secretary of war. The conclusions which he reached, it may be noted, were markedly different from those which his successor, Mr. Hughes, reached as special master in the litigation; and the decision in the later New York diversion case also gives ground for the belief that the court as it is at present constituted might be disposed to reconsider some of the terms of the decree.

Meanwhile, too, the record of fluctuation of the great lakes has destroyed many of the contentions to the effect that the drainage canal was menacing navigation. A moratorium might well be declared while the new evidence is being examined.

SPARTA FOR THE ARTILLERY.

The taxpayers of Illinois have been spared the necessity of paying good money for the purchase of a midget artillery range for the National Guard at Camp Grant. Had the land been bought, it would have provided about as thorough a training in artillery fire as a midget golf course would provide in wooden club play to the gentlemen who compete in the American open tournament.

Now that the mistake has been avoided, the Illinois artillery brigade should be sent to Sparta, Wis., where a range of adequate size, presenting an adequate variety of problems, is to be found. There the Illinois artillerymen can acquire military training as opposed to the politics and parade ground soldiering which will await them if they are sent to Rockford for the annual encampment.

A PREMIUM ON INJUSTICE.

The defense of motorists from lawless pretended law enforcement has raised an interesting question in Indiana. In that state the fine system of compensating justices of the peace survives, and has now been challenged on the ground that if a judge is compensated by fines he can hardly be expected to be impartial. This would seem to be elementary, as the late Mr. Holmes would have put it, and yet the system was general not many years ago and must survive in more states than Indiana. A better scheme for corrupting justice could not be devised, yet it was not only adopted by lawmakers but meekly tolerated by the public for years. The Chicago Motor club should carry its very plausible law point to a final adjudication. We cannot believe that the courts will hold a defendant who interposes formal objection to trial by a judge having a monetary interest in convicting him has had "due process of law." The protection of motorists from petty persecutions in the name of the law may clear up some curious corners of our legal machinery.

MUSSOLINI AS THE STATE.

The last vestiges of his majesty's government in Italy seemed to disappear in the correspondence and interchanges evoked by President Hoover's debt payment suspension proposal. Mussolini replied with such phrases as: "I have examined President Hoover's proposal." "I, after mature consideration, have decided to give to it my cordial acceptance in principle." "It is my intention to send later on to the American government some observations of mine."

Mussolini is not even by a fiction the minister or agent of the crown. He is not the mayor of the palace. He is not the head of a government. He is the state. He is parliament and executive, the people and the throne, the one opinion and the one voice, the decision and the execution thereof. It is the most complete absorption of the state into one personality that Europe has known. It is even more than Napoleonic. We cannot find a counterpart even in the middle ages. There were despots in the olden days, but they were kings who backed their authority on the will of God.

Editorial of the Day

[Frederick (Md.) Daily News.]

The defense is now having its day in court, and an absolute acquittal is assured. One witness has refuted the many who have appeared against the defendant. The case is that of the press, which stands charged with promoting lawlessness and crime by the publication of sensational crime news.

Oddly, it was none other than Al Capone, the notorious Chicago gangster and racketeer, who saved the day for the newspapers. Or, rather, the newspapers saved themselves by calling the gang leader as a witness in their behalf.

Why does Capone stand today a confessed violator of several federal laws, awaiting an inevitable penitentiary sentence? Because the front pages of the newspapers have been filled for months with the sensational stories of his operations. As a public prosecutor puts it, the newspapers, merely by printing the crime news, shamed the officials into scattering the Capone gang and stripping its leader of his power.

Is there any one so fatuous as to believe that Chicago would have routed the Thompson gang, depriving Capone of his political protection, or that the federal authorities would have stepped in to break the back of gangland, if there had been no crime news to present the shocking facts to the public and to place Chicago in national disgrace?

TO PREVENT SUNBURN.

A CORRESPONDENT asks for an article on sunburn. He has two reasons for the request. Summer time is now here and the subject should interest many people. His second reason is personal. Two years ago he was out in the bright sunlight and then got wet. In consequence his skin blistered. Since then it has been very sensitive and even a slight exposure causes trouble.

So far as the personal problem is concerned, the answer is simple and it should be satisfactory. Our friend should begin now to tan himself. He should start with exposures of his feet and legs for, say, ten minutes daily. The sun rays should not come through glass. Next, the arms should be exposed, then the front and back and finally the head.

The duration of exposure should be gradually increased. The plan is to tan the skin without irritating it. While tanning is going on there is no objection to the use of ointments. Once the skin is well tanned there is no danger that any reasonable amount of exposure will cause blistering. This is a troublesome and time consuming method, but there is no other that compares with it. It is almost true that this gentleman's only alternatives are to carry it out, to keep out of the sun, or to put up with blistering.

The skin is very similar to a photographic plate in its physiology and chemistry. It has the power of being acted upon by sunlight, of picking out of the sun ray certain of its ingredients—or almost—and of making necessary elements out of them. Thus come some of the most necessary vitamins. In one way or another these sun provoked skin products promote growth, keep the bones and teeth in health, build up bodily tone and vigor, help resist scurvy and some infections.

However, every remedy is also a poison. The pendulum swings in two directions, not one. There is always danger of getting too much of a good thing. To protect against sun debauchery nature provides protective pigmentation of the skin. One type of this is tanning. In a well tanned skin there is a pigmented curtain that prevents the underlying tissues from becoming intoxicated by too much light.

Skins vary in their sensitiveness to light. Some are very tolerant. Others very intolerant. A hitherto tolerant skin can be sensitized so that a small dose of light blisters, just as a nose can be so sensitized to pollen that a small dose of ragweed causes hay fever. In some way water seems to add to the sensitizing capacities of light.

The process of gradual desensitization of light described above is akin in principle to the desensitization methods employed to prevent hay fever.

SWELLING ON SHOULDER.

A. T. F. writes: I am 51 years old and have a swelling about as big as a man's fist on the front part of my left shoulder. This swelling started about ten years ago and I think it is increasing slightly. It does not pain nor interfere with the movement of my shoulder in any way.

Would you advise that an operation be performed to remove whatever causes the swelling? I am informed that the operation is simple, and that the thing would peel out like an onion.

REPLY.

Plainly, you have had better advice than I can give you. Your physician thinks this is a benign tumor—a bursa, a cyst, or a fatty tumor that can be easily removed, and will probably do little harm if left.

GROWTH OF WARTS.

C. H. K. writes:

1. Can you tell me what conditions cause the growth and spread of warts?
2. What is your "blue ribbon" remedy for them?

REPLY.

1. There are several causes of warts. Those that spread are generally due to infection. Cancer may cause them. So may venereal disease, age, exposure to weather, and causes in the course of occupation.
2. The best treatment depends on the cause and the location.

WHEN BANK FAILS.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—With reference to the failure of a bank: 1. Is it necessary to file a claim with the receiver? 2. As a temporary nonresident does one have to execute a formal power of attorney, in case the owner of the bank account is out of town, or will a letter both to the bank and a resident relative be sufficient to appoint a representative? 3. Can the receiver demand the bank book at the time the claim is filed? 4. Do the depositors share equally with the bondholders and other creditors, or do they have priority? F. P.

1. We advise getting in touch with the receiver.
2. Comply with any such requirements as may be asked.
3. We do not consider such a demand reasonable.
4. They have no priority.

CAT HAVEN.

Chicago, June 29.—[Friend of the People.]—A woman who lives in the basement of our building harbors all the old stray cats that come along. I believe she also has dogs once in a while. At present she has thirty-nine cats, and the odor from this flat bespeaks an unsanitary condition there. Please have this investigated for the neighbors. G. H. J.

An inspector was assigned to make a thorough investigation, which resulted in the following notice being served on both the agent and the tenant:

Remove dogs and cats from basement. Abate odor nuisance caused by dogs and cats fouling basement flat.

BANK SETTLES THIS.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I had a checking account in one of the banks that recently closed. I also had a loan on some securities. The loan was about half of the deposit. If a receiver is appointed can I have him deduct that loan from the deposit? Can he sell this security without notifying me first? L. P.

In general, such accounts can be set off against one another.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gnips fall where they may. Walt

WHEN THEY HEARD ABOUT IT ON THE STYX.

"Hello," said Sir Walter Raleigh, looking up from his copy of the Daily Styx Clarion and Enterprise, "this news will make Chris Columbus pretty sore."

"What is it?" asked Will Shakespeare, who was sitting at the next table drinking beer with Mary, Queen of Scots.

"Why, over in the land of the living," said Sir Walter, "two flyers named Post and Gatty have flown around the world in eight days and eighteen hours. And it took Columbus sixty-nine days just to get as far as a little island down near Cuba."

"I should think," said Julius Cæsar, who was lunching with Junius Brutus, King Henry the Eighth, Thomas Jefferson, and Nebuchadnezzar, "that the one who would be the sorest about that would be Jules Verne. He thought he was stretching human imagination to the limit when he wrote 'Around the World in Eighty Days,' and those guys do it in a little over eight days."

"Oh, call him up," said Anne Boleyn, who was passing by on the arm of Gen. Cornwallis; it'll give him a terrible pain in the neck."

"Quite!" observed Henry the Eighth, looking at Anne with a quizzical smile, "and you, my dear, should certainly be an authority on pains in the neck."

Pausing for a moment to give Henry a very dirty look, Anne went herself to the phone and turned the dial. "Hello, is this you, Jules?"

"Talking," replied Mr. Verne.

"Have you heard the big news?"

"No, and never mind telling me; I've got a date with Cleopatra to go boat riding on the Styx, and I'm late now."

"Two men down on earth," said Anne Boleyn, "have gone around the world in eight days and eighteen hours."

"What of it?" said Mr. Verne.

"Well, you thought you were lying like a horse when you wrote a book about going around the world in eighty days."

"Well, my book was a best seller for years and years," said Mr. Verne, "and it's still selling big sixty years after it was first published. If these fellows who have gone around in eight days can tie that record all right. Who is this talking?"

"Anne Boleyn."

"Well, you've got an awful nerve trying to kid me. Anyhow, before I came over to this side of the Styx I didn't have to have my head sewed back on. Good-by."

Anne was blushing red as she walked back to the group standing around Sir Walter. "He didn't seem to care much," said Anne. "He had a date with Cleopatra, and when they have a date with that dame they seem to forget everything else."

"If you're trying to take a rap at me," said Marc Antony, angrily, from a table over in the corner of the room, "just lay off, if you please. But why not get back to the subject? It isn't hard to go around the world in eight days now that you've got airplanes. Yes, airplanes and maps and radio and everything. It took more nerve for Columbus, when everybody thought the world was flat, to sail out into the unknown and discover America."

"Who discovered what?" asked a voice back in the crowd.

"Who was that?" asked Marc Antony, irritably.

"Oh, that was Leif Ericson," spoke up Noah, who was sitting nearby with his sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. "Mr. Ericson, you know, discovered America several hundred years before Columbus thought of it."

"See you," snorted Marc Antony.

"Pa is right," spoke up Shem, Ham, and Japheth, together; "Mr. Ericson landed at Newport, and the old mill he built there is still——"

"If we can't talk about the flyers going around the world in eight days," said Sir Walter Raleigh, folding up his paper, putting it in his pocket, and starting for the door, "without dragging in that old wheeze about who discovered America, then I'll wait not upon the order of my going but go at once. Farewell!"

And the party broke up.

BEWILDERMENT.

'Tis finished now and I shall hear no more
Your voice caressing that this day apart
Should seem more gentle while it tore
My heart.
Your charming smile wherein I deemed me rich
Dear facile smile—dear smile so easily stilled—
A little thing, in truth, on which
To build.
We love, nor can believe we are alone
Within our dreams.
Some flame must kindle to our own—
So strong it seems.
Proud days of nearness! Days we slowly hate
And would forget.
The best we had—our useless gift to fate—
Regret.

JUDY SHEA.

AND IF FRANCE refuses the moratorium it will cost her just $111,000,000. But what France is trying to figure out is if it will cost her that much or more if she accepts the moratorium.

BUT SUPPOSE, FRANCE, that you say you will come in the debt holiday for a year if the U. S. A. will take off the embargo on French wines for a year. You could say that turn about is fair play and that if you are willing to swallow our moratorium we ought to be willing to swallow your wines. There's a lot of us over here, France, that will be with you to a man on this proposition. Go on and try it.

NOWADAYS, when you hear great shouting and hullabalooing and guns firing and whistles blowing, it's hard to tell whether it's a welcome to around the world flyers who have just come back or a good-by to around the world flyers who are just starting out. E. M. L.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 3, 1915.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Archbishop Quigley of Chicago was still alive at midnight and seemed to show slight improvement.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A tremendous explosion, believed to have been caused by some kind of a bomb or infernal machine, wrecked the public reception room on the east side of the capitol building shortly before midnight. No one was injured. Officials believe the explosive was placed by a crank who desired to create a sensation.

LONDON.—A British submarine on the Sea of Marmora on June 26 sank the Turkish transport No. 42, which was filled with troops, according to an Athens correspondent.

PARIS.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz, former president of Mexico, died here. He was 85 years old. He had been in failing health since reaching Europe in 1911 after his resignation from the presidency following the successful Madero revolution.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 3, 1901.

NEW YORK.—Two hundred and twenty-five deaths in Greater New York and 400 cases of prostration due to the intense heat was the record today when the mercury mounted to 99. The dead in Philadelphia number 50 and Pittsburgh reports the same number of fatalities.

CHICAGO.—Three deaths and numerous prostrations from the heat were reported yesterday and one man was struck by lightning in the thunderstorm which brought relief in the afternoon. Cooler weather is in prospect.

CHICAGO.—An English clergyman arrived here and began work at the Chicago Avenue church. He is the Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, who the followers of the late Dwight L. Moody believe is to succeed to that great revivalist's dignified mantle of leadership. Mr. Morgan is 36 years old. He disdains the title of evangelist and declares he is a Bible lecturer.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 3, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Garfield was shot twice as he was entering the ladies' room at the Pennsylvania depot at 9:28 o'clock this morning [July 2] by Charles J. Guiteau, an attorney from Chicago. The President was about to take a train for Long Branch and had arrived in company with Secretary Blaine, who was standing beside him when the assassin fired. The first bullet struck the President just above the kidneys on the left side. Mr. Garfield, stunned by the bullet, reeled and fell just as the second shot was fired, and the bullet only grazed his arm. As he fired the assassin shouted: "I have killed Garfield. Arthur will be President. I am a Stalwart. It had to be done."

Strong hands carried the stricken President to an upper office room, where he was laid upon a mattress obtained from a Pullman sleeper storeroom. Physicians were summoned by telephone and telegraph and Dr. D. W. Bliss and a score of the most prominent doctors in Washington soon appeared. About 10:30 o'clock the physicians decided to remove the President to the White House and he was taken there in an ambulance.

It is feared the wounds will be fatal. One venerable physician said as he stood beside the mattress in the station: "The President will die. The symptoms are very bad." Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, one of the first to be admitted to the room into which Mr. Garfield was taken at the depot, said: "Garfield is cool and brave, but I greatly fear the hand of death is laid upon him."

Immediately after the shooting Guiteau was overpowered by the crowd and secret service officers. It is believed that he also planned to shoot Blaine, but was prevented by the prompt action of those standing near. He was hurried at great speed to the district jail to prevent him being lynched, for the news of the shooting spread like wildfire and within a few minutes thousands surrounded the station.

Mrs. Garfield rushed from Long Branch to her husband's side. At 6 a. m. [July 3] physicians issued a bulletin stating that the President's symptoms were favorable.

MONEY WASTED.

Chicago, June 29.—Having read Oscar Hewitt's articles on taxes and THE TRIBUNE'S editorial on "Why the Taxpayers Complain," I desire to make a few remarks on the terrific increase in the cost of maintaining the public schools.

I served as a member of the board of education from 1913 until 1916 and know something about this subject.

For three years I was chairman of the board's adjustment committee and, together with the teachers, engineers, and other employés, worked out a comprehensive system of salary schedules. These schedules were so simplified that 14,000 employés were listed on a piece of paper 6 inches wide and 30 inches long. It was arranged in groups and years of service.

The following school boards became more and more part and parcel of a political machine. The school engineers at my time were paid on a square foot basis for maintaining the school buildings and thousands of elderly men and women who could not earn their living in regular employment were employed in this worthy way by the school engineers and the cost to the board was just one-third of what it now is.

At least $20,000,000 a year can be saved annually by a few changes in the Otis law. PETER C. CLEMMENSEN, M. D.

NINE MONTH SCHOOLS.

Chicago, June 29.—Does J. Mitchell Bruce, who suggests a nine month school year for the Chicago public schools, realize that the public school room has just about twice or more children to teach as compared with a room in a private school? How many private schools are there whose daily classes number from 42 to 50? The average schoolroom population must be 44 or a room in the school is closed, thus overcrowding some other room.

I have taught five years in Chicago and at no time has my membership been less than 46. In fact, I have had rooms of 50, thus entailing the seating of two at my table, and at this same time my neighbors had memberships of more than 50, with one teacher having three grades besides—5A, 5B, and 4A.

How, then, can the amount of training be given to pupils in nine months, when even ten months is short, considering conditions? ROSS LEVITAS.

THE POLICEMAN'S CHEST.

Chicago, June 30.—Who invented the new ruling that no one will be admitted to the police force if older than 28? Why not hire Boy Scouts? The royal Canadian mounted police take many older men into the service. Furthermore, the provision that a man must have not less than a 3 inch chest expansion is all pooh bah. Some of the best runners in the country have only 2 inches to 2½ inches expansion. Furthermore, we don't need runners on the force; what it needs most is fighting men.

HENRY BOFF.

AND THEN NO WATER.

Chicago, June 29.—It was bad enough for this loyal citizen of Chicago to have her bank closed, her little nest egg of real estate bonds defaulted, her taxes trebled, the only two wage earners of the family recently assigned school teachers, her home burglarized of clothing and money twice in two years, etc., etc., etc. However, it remained for the water situation in these days of suffocation to call forth complaint. For the several years I have occupied a third floor apartment in the Lawndale neighborhood there has always been difficulty in obtaining sufficient water during daylight hours in the summer time. However, during the last three withering days not one drop of water has reached either second or third floor from sunrise to sunset. Telephone calls to the police and water departments of the city evoke sympathy but no relief. Citizens of other large cities do not needlessly suffer in this manner, and, since this situation is an old and well known one, it seems that some measure of relief ought surely to have been planned long ago.

CHICAGO CITIZEN.

THE MAC CARTH BLOOD.

Chicago, June 29.—Who was the mountebank that called me a Scotchman? My family left that dismal country centuries ago to fight for the right with Gustavus Adolphus and afterwards, with the Dunbars and the Hamiltons, became the aristocracy of Sweden.

MACCARTH.

A HAY FEVER VICTIM.

Chicago, June 29.—The present heat wave has a tendency to increase the growth of the ragweed that is a great nuisance to the 75,000 people in this city who suffer from hay fever annually. Now is the time that our authorities can give this disease their honest attention by enforcing a city ordinance to cut weeds of all kinds on vacant property. Doing so now would prevent the pollen in the ragweed from spreading its seed and blowing in the noses and eyes of those infected. W. F. LOVELL.

THE ART INSTITUTE.

Chicago, June 16.—I have just returned to Chicago after an absence of several days, and one of my first pleasures has been to read the Bennett articles in THE TRIBUNE about the Art institute.

As a minor light in the constellation of the Art institute trustees, may I tell you how much I appreciate the attention THE TRIBUNE has given us? If it is true that newspapers typify the spirit of a community, the Art institute can well be proud of the place it holds in the heart of the community.

I am quite sure also that Chicago will benefit from this gesture of yours. We have so much in this town to be proud of that we can well afford to call it to our own attention.

JAPANESE TROOPS RUSHED TO CHINA RAILROAD ROUTE

Manchuria Scene of Many Recent Clashes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 2.—Owing to the increasing seriousness and frequency of clashes between Chinese and Japanese troops, Chinese civilians and Japanese troops and Chinese troops and Koreans in Manchuria, the Japanese military authorities here today announced an immediate increase in Japanese garrisons in Manchuria.

To Scatter Troops.

According to a preliminary plan telegraphed here from Tokio, the Japanese general staff has decided to transfer an entire division, which will be stationed in Manchuria permanently. The division transferred will either be the eighth division from Hirosaki or the ninth division from Kanazawa, and the troops will be stationed in Manchuria as follows:

Liaoyang, south of Mukden, one infantry brigade and one regiment of infantry with staff headquarters; Changchun, midway between Mukden and Harbin, one infantry brigade, one regiment of infantry and also staff headquarters; Port Arthur, near Dairen, one regimentof infantry; Mukden, headquarters of Chang Hsueh-liang and Chinese administration of Manchuria, one regiment of infantry; Kungchuling, a few miles northwest of Kirin, one cavalary regiment; Antung, on the south Manchuria railway midway between Mukden and Dairen, one artillery regiment; Tiehling, a few miles northeast of Mukden, where the Japanese iron and coal mines are located, one engineering battalion.

Chinese and Koreans Clash.

According to Chinese reports from Kirin, a serious clash occurred yesterday between Chinese and Korean farmers at the town of Wanpaoshan, north of Changchun, as result of a dispute over a Japanese irrigation and colonization enterprise. The Chinese farmers were assisted by native police, who destroyed the works. The Japanese lodged a strong protest with Chinese authorities.

While the Japanese state there is increasing tension in Chinese-Japanese interests in Manchuria, the chief reason for strengthening the garrisons is said to be that the soviet authorities have increased their garrisons along the borders of outer Mongolia adjacent to Manchuria. Officials of the Nanking government, however, allege that the Japanese motive is to bring pressure against Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Manchurian war lord, to prevent him from lending military assistance to the national government and force him to withdraw troops from Peiping back to Manchuria.

Kinkaid Replies to British Propaganda on Battleships

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—The British inspired drive to effect a general reduction in the tonnage of future built battleship was assailed today by Commander T. C. Kinkaid, American naval limitations expert, as an attempt to bolster up England's sea power at the expense of the United States fleet.

He asserted that progressive reduction of the battleship would work to the disadvantage of a power like the United States, which has few naval bases, while it would greatly enhance the power of a nation like Great Britain, which boasts a large chain of naval bases and an outstanding merchant fleet.

The Kinkaid article was written largely in answer to an article appearing in an American publication in April, written by Sir Herbert W. Richmond, who urged a reduction in the size of capital ships.

Hard for Layman to Understand.

"It is difficult for the average citizen," states Commander Kinkaid, "clearly to visualize the efforts made toward the limitation and reduction of naval armaments.

"The article by Admiral Richmond is an outstanding example. In that article Admiral Richmond states that the question of size of ships was shirked at the London conference; that decisions regarding cruiser size and numbers were not 'made in accordance with the principles upon which men in all other concerns in life base their practice.' He says that a navy is one of the instruments for completing a state's security against the dangers of invasion and isolation which he claims are the only injuries to which a nation is exposed.

"He rejects the necessity for the defense of neutral rights and prestige as not coming within his definition of security, although he devotes considerable space to the discussion of these two elements. His 'principles' of strategy and tactics are developed without a single reference to aviation or any other of the many recent technical developments. Finally he says that he 'can find neither strategical nor tactical reasons for any fighting ship being larger than 6,500 tons.'"

After pointing out steps taken toward naval limitation, Commander Kinkaid outlined the reasons which made it imperative that the battleship be retained at its present size. He urged that the United States stand firm against any reduction below the present tonnage limit of 25,000 tons.

Aimed at United States.

"The present agitation to reduce the size and fighting strength of battleships is aimed at the one type of particular importance to the United States, and is a first step toward the abolition of that type, which is relatively less important to the other powers.

"A fair method of reduction would be a proportionate reduction of each type, not the elimination of one.

"The capital ship is the only type that can take the sea and remain at sea for long periods under all conditions of service and weather. It is less dependent upon a well placed chain of bases. It is the only type that can be constructed to withstand reasonably well the attack of modern weapons. Today the speed of the airplane permits it to overtake any surface vessel, and only the capital ship can be adequately armed, protected and subdivided to survive bombing from the air."

The Wholesale and Retail Stores will be closed all day Saturday, July 4th. As has been our custom for years, the Retail Store will close all other Saturday afternoons at 1 o'clock during July and August. The Wholesale closes Saturday afternoons at 1 o'clock the year round.

CURTIS TAKES UP BATTLE FOR WHEAT GROWERS

Will Ask Hoover for New Farm Board Policy.

Topeka, Kas., July 2.—(AP)—Speculation as to whether Charles Curtis will be a candidate again for Vice President, or for his old seat in the senate, became intensified tonight as he assumed the rôle of spokesman for Kansas wheat farmers who are dissatisfied with sales policies of the federal farm board.

CHARLES CURTIS.

After a conference here today it was announced the Vice President and Senator Arthur Capper, Republican, would seek a conference next Monday with President Hoover and the farm board to urge anew a "clear cut" statement by the board that wheat holdings of the Grain Stabilization corporation will not be sold until the price reaches 85 cents a bushel at Chicago.

No Intention to Criticise.

Mr. Curtis previously had stated his belief that the board "made a mistake" by not acceding to the demands of the growers and announcing instead a policy under which an average monthly maximum of 5,000,000 bushels of stabilization wheat will be placed on the market.

When interviewers suggested his attitude might be interpreted as a break with the Hoover administration and an indication he had decided to run for the senate next year, Mr. Curtis said:

"I had no intention to criticize the farm board. I simply said I believed it had made a mistake and that I could not understand where the members got the information which induced them to take the course they did.

Millions to Farmers.

A statement by the farm board that its wheat holdings would not be sold under 85 cents a bushel would mean "millions of dollars to the farmers," Mr. Curtis said.

E. Halderman-Julius, book publisher of Girard, announced today he would run next year as "a third party candidate" for the senate and said, "I feel Curtis will be my opponent."

Senator George McGill of Wichita, Democrat, is expected to be a candidate for reelection. He has been outspoken in his criticism of the farm board's handling of the wheat problem.

Stone Bucks Grain Trade.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—Chairman James C. Stone of the federal farm board threw down the gage of battle today and dared the private grain trade to pick it up.

The grain trade, he charged, was behind the pressure for a statement of policy from the board. He accused them of trying to wield a club over the board. What they wanted, he said, was a promise that the board would keep its wheat holdings off the market. He asserted that they had sought to dictate to the board.

They had got their statement, said Mr. Stone, referring to the board's pronouncement of last Tuesday in answer to President Hoover's request for a more definite assertion of policy.

Charges Attempt to Dictate.

And having got it, Mr. Stone challenged, let the grain trade make good its boast that improved wheat prices would follow.

"Some of those in the grain trade criticize and condemn anything the farm board and the Stabilization corporation do," said Mr. Stone. "As far as I, personally, am concerned, I am not going to let these people dictate to us what is in the best interest of the farmers. I think this pressure for a statement was started by them.

Mr. Stone's remarks were made at his regular conference with the press. The movement to force the farm board into what was hoped would be a changed policy instead of the restatement of the policy of March 23—to which last Tuesday's announcement amounted—did not start with the wheat growers, said Mr. Stone, but with the grain dealers.

Have Definite Reply.

"Some of the grain men," he continued, "have been saying in the newspapers that if the farm board will do this and that and the other thing wheat will rise 20 cents a bushel. In our announcement we definitely stated that we would not sell in the next 12 months more than 7 per cent of the bushelage of the 1931 crop. If these fellows want to get out and tear their shirts and boost the market, let them demonstrate. There is no reason why they should not. They have insisted the statement of March 23 was not definite. Now they have something definite."

Behind the grain trade's criticism of the farm board, Mr. Stone charged, was their desire to wreck the growth of the cooperative movement.

"They don't want the farmers to organize," he said. "That is the underlying motive. We think, on the other hand, that the farmer has a right to organize if he wants to and it is our duty under this law to aid him in doing it and to guide him in capable and honest management and sound finance."

Having failed in a direct attack on the cooperative movement, said Mr. Stone, the grain trade now seeks to pose as the farmers' friend and in this guise is trying to discredit and undermine the board.

Borah Assails Farm Board.

Boise, Idaho, July 2.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, Republican, attacked today the newly announced wheat policy of the federal farm board.

"Nothing could be more unfortunate than this policy," he said. "This surplus of wheat should be taken off the market by a definite announcement that it will be held until the price reaches, say, $1.25. At least, there should be some definite policy which would take it off the market."

PROHIBITIONISTS SEEK TO COMPEL STRATTON TO O. K. DRY FOR JUDGE

Urbana, Ill., July 2.—[Special.]—Harley W. Kidder, Urbana, Prohibition party national committeeman, announced today that he had taken steps to engage Clarence S. Darrow, noted criminal lawyer of Chicago, to mandamus Secretary of State Stratton, compelling him to certify the name of the Prohibition candidate for judge of the Sixth judicial circuit to the various county clerks.

H. W. KIDDER.

Mr. Kidder's announcement climaxes a legal controversy with the secretary of state and the attorney general which is now entering its tenth week. The dispute arose in May, when the office of the attorney general ruled that the official call for the special Prohibition judicial convention was "not sufficient, and that the Prohibition party would have no right to nominate candidates for the judicial in this manner."

Disregarding this advisory opinion, the convention met in Urbana on May 29 and nominated its candidate, the certificate of nomination reaching Springfield the following week. In due season the office of the attorney general ruled that the document should have been filed at least fifty days before the election, this requirement applying to "candidates for political office."

Mr. Kidder takes exception to this statement and points out the fact that the office of Circuit judge is not a political office, but is a judicial office.

RUMOR OF BEER O. K. BY HOOVER INSPIRES G. O. P.

New York Party Meeting Cheered Up.

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—Republican leaders gathering here for a routine meeting of the state committee were stirred almost to the point of excitement and enthusiasm, and that in spite of the heat, by the rumors that President Hoover is to issue a statement declaring in favor of 4 per cent beer.

Again demonstrating the power of the prohibition question to rouse political interest even among hard boiled county leaders, the report overshadowed all other considerations in the discussions incidental to the formal meeting of the state committee.

Denials Can't Halt Speculation.

The county chairman had been advised unofficially from Washington that there was no basis for the rumor and that a statement might be forthcoming from the White House at an early date repudiating the story. Yet in spite of that, the party leaders insisted they believed there must be some good reason for the report and eagerly expressed the hope that it might be true.

Their attitude plainly indicated the views of the Republican organization leaders in this state on the liquor issue.

They are as anxious for some kind of modification as the Democrats or the professional wets.

Viewing the issue only in its political aspects, the county chairmen were of one mind in saying that if the President should make a move in favor of beer and light wine his stock would go skyrocketing and there would be no question about his carrying New York in 1932.

Debt Plan Gains Friends.

The President's move in dealing with the international debt problem has had an almost unbelievable effect on public sentiment in this state as elsewhere in the nation, the country chairmen reported. Overnight, the severest Hoover critic has become a booster for the President and the state leaders maintained that if the moratorium plan were a success and really brought results, it would mark the end of the anti-Hoover sentiment generally.

Combined with that political advantage, a move from the White House to placate the wet eastern states would give the President such a boost that the 1932 campaign would be settled at the outset, according to these political bosses. Frankly they said they were expressing their own wish in predicting some such gesture might yet come from the White House as they see prohibition the big issue in the eastern states and New York, in particular, if the depression wanes.

Youth, Arrested as Thief, Identified as Auto Killer

Edward Flannery, 18 years old, 4649 West Adams street, was arrested yesterday as an automobile thief. Within a few hours he had been identified as the driver of the vampire car which on June 15 fatally injured Daniel Zemansky, 70 years old, 3209 West Polk street.

GOV. BRYAN AND BANK RECEIVERS TRADE CHARGES

Is Accused of Appointing Friends to Jobs.

Lincoln, Neb., July 2.—[Special.]—Gov. Charles W. Bryan, just well rid of a Republican legislature with which he couldn't agree, has a peck of new troubles on his hands, brought about, according to his side of the case, by rebellion in the ranks of his official family. The governor today summarily dismissed I. D. Beynon, a Republican, as assistant attorney for the division of trade and commerce, on charges of "insubordination," and criticized Clarence G. Bliss, receiver for about 200 state banks.

GOV. C. W. BRYAN.

The governor announced he had "discovered a plot" to remove receivership records from the statehouse.

Four men, including Bliss, who have been acting as receivers for failed state banks announced that they intended to leave the statehouse and conduct their work from other quarters, severing all connections with the department since conditions were "intolerable," with Bryan demanding that they appoint his Democratic lawyer friends to replace attorneys already appointed.

Denies Insubordination Charge.

Mr. Beynon denied the charges of insubordination as claimed by the executive.

Both the governor, through his attorney of trade and commerce, and the receivers were making an effort to gain possession of the records.

First intimation of the impending battle came at the morning conference of newspaper men with Bryan. At this time the governor dictated a long statement to his secretary in which he said he learned Beynon had attempted to have himself appointed general counsel for a group of banks in receivership.

"Insubordination on an audacious scale," was the way Bryan described it in dictating a statement dismissing Beynon.

"Nothing to it, at all," said Beynon. "The four receivers, who have charge of more than 250 banks, asked that I be made general counsel. I did not myself make the request."

Asks Judge to Halt Appointment.

Bryan quoted a letter from District Judge Louis Lightner in which the judge asked Bryan if there was any objection to the appointment. The governor instructed Franz Radke, recently appointed by him to take charge of the legal division of trade and commerce, to call Lightner on the phone and ask him to rescind the appointment.

RUNNING TIME OF CAPITOL LIMITED IS CUT 35 MINUTES

A thirty-five minute reduction in the running time of the Capitol limited of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad from Chicago to Washington, D. C., was announced yesterday. The new schedule will go into effect on July 12.

Under the new schedule the limited will leave Chicago at 1:45 p. m. instead of 1 p. m. as before. The train will arrive in Washington at 3:45 a. m. next morning, ten minutes later than the former arrival time. Westbound, the train will leave Washington at 4 p. m. instead of 3:15 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 9 a. m. the following morning, a saving of forty-five minutes.

The entire train will be cooled to 72 degrees Fahrenheit, the announcement stated.

BRITISH ACTRESS ACCUSES SOCIETY MAN OF ASSAULT

HAYWARDS HEATH, Surrey, England, July 2.—(AP)—Miss Winifred Shotter, actress, appeared in Magistrate's court today and was granted a summons against her brother-in-law, Capt. Alastrair Miller, widely known in London society, on a charge of assault.

Similar summonses were granted Mrs. Miller, who is Miss Shotter's sister, and another sister, Eva Shotter. They are returnable in Police court July 13.

CHINA BARS U. S. EXPLORER FROM THE GOBI DESERT

PEIPING, China, July 2.—(AP)—Roy Chapman Andrews has been refused permission to continue his explorations in eastern Mongolia for the American museum of natural history it became known today. The commission for preservation of antiquities opposed his resuming work in the Gobi desert, basing its objection on the grounds that the Chinese were contemplating an expedition into western Mongolia.

Andrews, however, pointed out that the operations of this group would be more than 1,000 miles away from the scene of his central Asiatic activities. The commission accused the American explorer of using discourteous expressions toward Chinese scientists, and of giving no credit to his Chinese collaborators in the accounts of the 1930 expedition, which Andrews published.

Andrews said he returned to Peiping last April to seek permission for resuming his exploration, but was not even granted an interview by the commission. Mr. Chapman said that his expedition has never collected art or historical objects of any kind, and "is thoroughly in sympathy with Chinese efforts to protect national antiquities. It has spent a quarter of a million dollars in gold in this country and has taken out not one thing of commercial value."

DE PRIEST CALLS NEGRO RALLY FOR POLITICAL ACTION

Race to Put Pleas to Both Parties.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A call for a non-partisan convention of Negroes has been issued by Congressman Oscar De Priest, Republican, of the 1st district, with a view to formulating planks for presentation to the Republican and Democratic national conventions. The gathering is to be held in Washington, D. C., the first week in December and the delegates are to represent the various Negro educational, religious, political, civic, and fraternal organizations.

CONGRESSMAN OSCAR DE PRIEST. [Acme Photo.]

The convention is the outgrowth of conferences in the east between leaders of the race in education, business, and politics, and it is termed by its sponsors a new departure in political leadership of the Negro voters.

To Put Forth Negroes' Demands.

The call for the meeting, issued in Washington last week, sets forth that the meeting will focus upon a few definite demands to be made upon both national conventions.

One is a plank against lynching. Another is a plank for enforcement of the civil service law without race discrimination.

"It is to be a non-partisan race-wide convention," said Congressman De Priest here last night, "and it is a practical way of advancing matters of racial welfare in the same method followed by other groups which are working for political action."

Tells of Convention Plan.

Dean Kelly Miller of Howard university, Washington, D. C., one of the leaders in the movement, sets forth that the convention of Negroes will follow the method of the wets and drys, the farm bloc, the equal suffragists, the labor movement.

"The suggested method of procedure," he says, "is in harmony with that pursued by other minority groups with special claims and grievances or with special reforms to be achieved.

"The woman suffragists made a united appeal to both parties and won. The labor movement presents its claims to Democrats and Republicans alike. The dry forces have united in a solid phalanx regardless of religious creed or party faith. The wets have followed the method of the drys.

"It would be expecting too much of human nature to suppose that all Negroes are going to vote for that party which shows the race the greater consideration in its platform. There are many dyed in the wool partisans."

WOMEN'S GROUP LAUNCHES WAR ON DIPHTHERIA

Members of the Illinois Women's Athletic club started yesterday on a campaign to eradicate diphtheria in Chicago by the inoculation of every child with toxin antitoxin. The 2,000 women members have the support of Health Commissioner Bundesen in the city-wide drive. Through posters and study groups the campaign will be carried to churches, clubs and school organizations.

"There has been 140 deaths from diphtheria in Chicago this year," said Dr. Bundesen, "and most of them were children under ten who were not protected with toxin antitoxin.

"Complete conquest of diphtheria may be expected when we succeed in immunizing 85 per cent of our child population. Last year about 125,000 out of some 600,000 children were protected and we are beginning to see the good results. Toxin antitoxin is a safe and sure means of prevention."

DUCE AND KING EASY ON COOKS; TASTES SIMPLE

Mussolini Has No Sauce on His Spaghetti.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 2.—The easiest job in Italy is cooking for Premier Benito Mussolini or for King Victor Emmanuel. Jobs in the kitchen of the king's royal palace or of Mussolini's Villa Torlonia are even easier than serving in the Italian chamber of deputies or driving a two horse cab in Naples, for both Signor Mussolini and the royal family are distinguished for their frugality.

Mussolini, who suffers from stomach illness and has to keep on special diet, is even more sparing of his food than the king. The regular items of his diet are milk, boiled vegetables, cooked or very ripe fruit and milk or vegetable soups.

Special Sauces Barred.

Il Duce gets some spaghetti, but he is allowed none of those special sauces of tomatoes and ground meat which Italians love with it. His is just the plain spaghetti. And although spaghetti is the staple diet of Italy, the king of Italy and his family eat no spaghetti at all. They don't like it, and besides it is a dish that can rarely be eaten with elegance.

For breakfast Mussolini gets no coffee or tea. He drinks milk and eats fruit in season. Only occasionally on Il Duce's table is there any meat, and when he does have meat it is roasted veal and chicken. And, of course, there is never any wine or liquor.

Il Duce's family, on the contrary, has regular Italian fare, that is, plenty of spaghetti, highly seasoned meats with sauces, vegetables cooked in oil and cheese, principally Bel Paese and Gorgonola.

Wine on King's Table.

King Victor Emmanuel's cook neither has to strain his imagination to concoct new and palatable dishes. On special occasions foreign guests of high rank are received at the Quirinale palace, and then the fare is the usual menu customary for official occasions in all western European countries, running from soup to fruit, through supreme de sole and lobster. Italian wines, however, are always served.

The ordinary fare of the king and his family includes soup, mostly vegetable soup, which is served both for lunch at 1 o'clock and dinner at eight. The king has fish or meat, mostly veal, vegetables in season and cheese and fruit. Wines are always on the king's table, but neither he nor the queen drink any. It is there for the usual guests.

Game After Hunt.

Game appears on the king's table when there has been a hunting party at one of the royal preservations, and it takes the place of the customary meat or fish.

For breakfast, the king and Princess Maria, the only unmarried daughter, whose engagement to young Prince Otto of Hungary is believed imminent, prefer coffee and milk which comes from the king's own farms. Queen Helena likes tea better, probably because she was brought up at the court of the Russian czar.

All have rolls and butter in the Italian fashion together with marmalades, orange marmalade preferred, and fresh fruit. Breakfast is an early affair at the Quirinale and Villa Savoia, where the royal family resides most of the time, and is taken separately. The king is an early riser and has his breakfast nearly always before 7 o'clock.

King Catches Own Fish.

When the royal family is at the summer homes at San Rossore, near Pisa, or in the mountains at Sant' Anna di Valdieri in Piedmont, the bill of fare is even more simplified. At Marina di Pisa the king provides fish for his own table. He is as fond of fishing as any of the enthusiasts on the Florida coast, and the fish he gets appear on his table the same day.

At Sant' Anna di Valdieri big game takes the place of fish and other meats. The king is a very good shot, and hunting is a traditional pastime in the Italian royal family. His father, King Humbert, was said to be only really happy when in Piedmont at the foot of the Alps shooting roebucks. His grandfather, the great King Victor Emmanuel II., who made Italy a united nation, spent all the time he could spare hunting.

Victor Emmanuel III. is no exception to this rule, but his son, Prince Humbert, heir apparent, on the contrary, shows no inclination to follow the sporting habits of his forefathers.

As regards the king personally, it is always noted that vegetables form the chief articles of his diet and his drinks are milk and water.

20 Bushels of Potatoes Will Last 5 for 8 Months

Twenty bushels of potatoes are sufficient for two servings a day for a family of five for eight months, according to food economists. With this information comes a report that potato yields in nineteen states promise to be 9 per cent larger than last year and 12 per cent above the five-year average.

PUBLIC WARNED AGAINST FRAUDS IN FRUIT JUICES

Check Contents from the Labels.

When the housewife goes to the store for fruit juice for her thirsty family or guests, she has a right to know the nature and purity, as well as the quantity, of the beverage in the can or bottle, says J. W. Sale of the United States department of agriculture.

She should read the label for statements of quantity in the container and for declarations of sugar that may be added. Mr. Sale, who is in charge of the beverage unit of the food and drug administrations, says:

Warns Against "Cheats."

"It is legal to add sugar or sugar sirup to fruit juices if the addition of these substances is declared on the label. But the buyer who wishes a pure juice should not be obliged to pay for one which has been sweetened or watered. Furthermore, there is a definite financial cheat involved in the sale of a beverage whose label makes false statements as to the quantity of contents.

"For 20 years the administration has included fruit juices among its major projects and the rapid growth of the industry in the last few years has made necessary rather strict regulation, under the pure food laws, of these beverages.

"The success of this booming business has been determined largely by the fact that those engaged in it have produced a high quality beverage, but government officials are always obliged to take legal action against operators who violate the food and drugs act."

Government Seizes Juice.

Mr. Sale cites as an example of such action recent seizures by the administration of more than 2,000 cases of canned grapefruit juice, all of which had either been adulterated with undeclared sugar or sugar sirup or had been misbranded as to quantity of contents.

All of this juice was shipped by Florida concerns but, of approximately 40 canneries in that state, only a small number have been found, in a four months' survey, to have violated the law.

"The unusually large grapefruit crop of this season," says Mr. Sale, "may have brought into the business new operators who have been either careless or ignorant of the provisions of the law."

RELIEVE THE HEAT BY SERVING OF PROPER MEALS

Much of the fatigue caused by hot weather can be relieved by serving meals containing fresh vegetables, fruit, and easily digested foods, say specialists in nutrition in the department of home economics at the Ohio State university.

Foods rich in fat which retard digestion are best limited during the summer months, they state, and foods rich in protein which alone deserve the term "heating food" should be used in moderation and by those whose occupation is sedentary. Eggs, milk, or other foods containing protein with a moderate amount of lean meat are recommended. Cold dessert and crisp salads are also tempting during hot weather.

Some good summertime dinners, according to the specialists, are as follows: boiled ham, boiled potatoes, spinach, bread and butter, fruit sherbet or fruit sauce, milk; sliced ham, potato salad, sliced tomatoes, bread and butter, fresh fruit, cookies, milk; cottage cheese, corn on cob, green bread and butter, Dutch apple cake, milk; and stewed chicken, steamed rice, lettuce and cucumber salad, bread and butter, sliced peaches, and milk.

HOT WEATHER SUGGESTIONS TO RELIEVE THIRST

Cold Water Old Reliable; Fruit Juices Help.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

Just a little drink—try it—say for the weather's sake and its frequent humidities. Take a lemonade, or if your tastes point that way, iced tea. But look not upon the wine when the sun is red.

What is there to do on a hot day but take a shower every hour or two sandwiched in between cold drinks? The water pressure may go down, but then the weather may get cool. Optimist!

What will you have? Fruit juices of one variety or another, ginger ale, pop, iced coffee, or will you fall back on orange juice? Here's a suggestion. Try some good old Lake Michigan water, with or without the chlorine, however they're serving it that day, and mixed with the perfume of perch. Shake up with cracked or cubed ice and drink heartily.

After fortifying yourself with three or four glasses maybe you'll be ready to try a lemonade fancied up with fresh fruit, that good old standby of the 17 year old out with a boy whose allowance doesn't hold up under many Saturday night excursions.

Easy to Prepare.

The best thing about most drinks is the fact that they don't give the housewife heat prostration while she's preparing them. Cold weather foods have the way of generally overheating preparer.

But except for the exertion of squeezing lemons and oranges, and you can get a machine to do that for you, drinks are fairly easy and cool to prepare. Sometimes there's nothing that tastes as good as water, but after the first gallon or two you sort of want a change of flavor.

Lemonade and iced tea probably vie for highest favors during the hot weather, probably because of easy availability and custom. Almost every one knows how to make either and has his own preferences as to how much tea or lemon and how much sugar make the perfect combinations.

Various Fruit Mixtures.

For nourishment as well as a cooling effect pure fruit juices are recommended in various mixtures. The best way is to make a fruit salad of all your favorite fresh fruits, pour off the juice into glasses, add ice and throw away the salad.

Loganberry juice can be acquired in bottled form to add color and tang to your mixture, grape juice, likewise, will color up a lemonade.

If you are serving up a punch to party guests, or if the family is large, it might be worth while to make up this mixture: 2 cups each of water and sugar boiled together, 1 cup of fresh pineapple juice and pulp, 1 cup fresh raspberries, 1 cup sweet cherries, 1 cup green grapes, juice of six lemons, juice of six oranges, 2 quarts charged water, or ginger ale and water.

Unless you mix your sugar with the lemon juice, your drink will be smoother and more satisfactorily sweetened if the sugar is cooked with water into a syrup for your drink. Then it does not sink to the bottom as unmelted sugar does.

Sweetening Takes Care.

Almost any variation of fruit punch or lemonade with fruit juice added may be made, according to your tastes or what is available. Sweetening may be added to your taste from previously prepared sugar syrup. Pineapple juice, fresh or canned, adds a mellow taste to any drink, but if canned, should be used with lemon juice. Grape fruit juice adds character to any drink that tastes flat, and any of the red berries will add interest as well as color, if that be needed.

Creamed Foods in Cans Offer Something New in Food World

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

There's something new in this world of foods! Something never before accomplished is here to help the housewife find a happy holiday from the hot, steamy kitchen during these summer months!

Best of all it's the principal course. For three new creamed products now on the market may form the main dish of a luncheon or dinner, or even help out on the breakfast menu. Creamed codfish and creamed chipped beef put up in tins are real innovations, while canned creamed chicken is a variation of a product already known to most of us.

You may look in wonder when we say that you have never before tasted foods canned with real honest to goodness cream sauce. But it's true! A new process now makes it possible for the first time to cream canned foods. The story goes that a doctor friend of the manufacturer of these three products was responsible for the discovery of the process which prevents the curdling of the milk heretofore encountered.

Pleasure for Hot Day.

But whatever the scientific background, the cook who presides over the kitchen will find the fish, fowl, or meat a godsend on a hot July or August day, and quite to her liking. For the menu planner in the wilderness far from the ministrations of the friendly iceman or the automatic refrigerator, the products are an even greater help.

All that is necessary in preparing these dishes is to heat the contents of the can in a double boiler. The use of this type boiler prevents the scorching that usually endangers creamed dishes. If a less rich cream sauce is desired milk may be added, for the cream on the products is heavy and well flavored.

Codfish put up in this new manner does away with the modern housewife's objection to the traditional New England breakfast. No longer need the fishy odor produced at cooking time penetrate every nook and cranny of the house. Although losing its less pleasant characteristics, this canned product retains its deliciously salty, smoked flavor.

Beef Finely Shredded.

The mild flavor particularly recommends the chipped beef, canned like the cod in a creamed sauce. It is finely shredded and carefully blended.

The third product—canned creamed chicken—is without the a la king ingredients of pimiento, peppers, etc., so it may be combined with peas or any vegetable desired. It also may be served plain on toast or made into a cream of chicken soup by thinning with milk and straining the large pieces of chicken for salad or sandwiches. The chicken in the cans is about equally divided between white and dark meat.

In each one of these products everything is present but the seasoning. Some cooks will want to use paprika as well as salt and pepper, while others will prefer the addition of one of the sharp sauces.

A Convenient Dish.

In addition to making a good basis for a meal, creamed chicken, creamed chipped beef, or creamed codfish fits in perfectly when the occasion calls for a quick bite after the theater or when a light luncheon is planned for an afternoon bridge.

PRICE OF LEMONS SOARS AS HEAT WAVE HOLDS CITY

Chicago Turns to Drinks for Relief.

Lemons went skyrocketing with the mercury of Chicago's thermometers this week.

Suddenly in demand at the close of the growing season, lemons seemed to be vying with electric fans for popularity as sought means to forget the discomforts brought about by Old Sol.

Last week more lemons were consumed in Chicago than in any previous week in its history. Last Monday set a record in the sale of lemons by the carload, while prices went soaring. Yesterday this suddenly popular fruit was selling for five and six cents each wholesale. Retailers were lucky to be able to meet all their orders at prices as high as fifteen cents per lemon.

Fruit traders, trying to recoup earlier losses from declining prices, made as high as $15,000 per carload on lemons within 24 hours. A shortage of lemons is threatening the entire nation if another hot spell should soon follow, they said.

Oranges followed the rise in price with popularity of all forms of hot weather drinks, while limes are a rare find in most sections of the city. They are being used in all forms of drinks, from plain juices to punches, plain and spiked, and rickeys of varied sorts.

HARD BOILED EGG GIVEN NEW NAME BY U. S. EXPERTS

An important change in the terminology of home cookery has just been put forth by the home economists in the federal government's testing kitchens at Washington.

It seems that the term "hard boiled" is just as out of place in describing the modern well cooked egg as it is in expressing the demeanor of some citizens.

"We prefer not to have our eggs for the egg salad of a warm weather supper 'hard boiled,'" declare the women employed in the bureau in Washington. "Rather we would call them 'hard cooked,' since a warning should be given against overcooking eggs to be used in a salad. We advise simmering, not boiling, for both soft and hard cooked eggs."

Breakfast Appetite!

. . . serve Welch's as the morning fruit for just one month—then check results

BREAKFAST, neglected by so many as a distasteful ordeal, can be the most zestful meal of the day. Welch's, with its concentrated goodness of full-ripe Concord grapes, its cheery bright purple, its exciting fragrance, captivates sulky morning appetites and starts digestions working contentedly.

Welch's is Nature's most delightful tonic-food. It unstintingly supplies the mineral salts, neutralizing acids and fruit proteins which build up bodily vigor. Yet it does not add an undesired ounce to the weight. In Europe they call this the "Grape Cure."

Science and experience enable Welch's to bring you the exact equivalent of fresh vine-ripened grapes, regardless of season, every day throughout the year. It is fruit in the most convenient form. There is no squeezing, no preparing. Welch's is pure and rich. Many prefer to dilute it one-third to one-half water. It is pasteurized grape juice bottled under rigid laboratory control.

Now is the ideal time to put Welch's to the test. Drink it before breakfast, with your meals and between meals. Here is a Spring tonic that will bring you a new surge of life and new enthusiasm.

POLISH COOKING IS PLEASING TO ALIEN PALATES

Shows Great Skill in Use of Mushrooms.

BY META GIVEN.

There is something in the culinary art of every nation that appeals to the cosmopolitan appetite. In Poland the ingenious use of mushrooms, or sour cream, and of beets at once strikes the foreigner's fancy. Mushrooms are used to flavor all sorts of sauces, soups, stuffings, and they are used in a most delicious dish in which sauerkraut is the main constituent. Beets are handled as skillfuly as they are in Russia. The most pleasing of beet dishes is "barshch." Sour cream is used in the making of gravies, soups, and salad dressings.

According to Mrs. Theophile Dutt of 616 Noble street (a Polish housewife born in Tarnow, Poland) buckwheat and barley are the most important cereals. Often these cereals are cooked and served just as we do rice. Beef and pork are the important meats. Cheese, milk, and eggs are also important in the common dietary.

Gives Clear Directions.

Cheese cake made with cottage cheese, fried doughnuts, and chrusicks are all popular foods. Mrs. Dutt supplies us with the detailed directions for making a yeast dough, jelly filled doughnut. This recipe with very brief directions appeared in THE TRIBUNE of March 27. Some readers who tried the recipe were very pleased with the doughnut part of the recipe, but they did not succeed in keeping the jelly inside the doughnut. Her directions, which follow, are clear and adequate, and should be detailed enough to enable the most amateur of cooks to succeed. The menu and the first seven recipes are supplied by Mrs. Dutt.

Clear Beef Soup or Cauliflower Soup
Golumbki or "Doves" Nalesniks or Meat Rolls
Lettuce Salad
Cooked Fruit for Dessert with Chrusicks
Coffee or Tea

Cauliflower Soup.

First, make a good stock using left over chicken or beef. Any good beef or chicken stock can be used. Clean and wash one good sized cauliflower. Put the whole cauliflowers into boiling unsalted water cooking rapidly for 2 minutes. Drain off water, break cauliflower apart into flowerets leaving the green leaves attached. Put the cauliflower into three quarts of beef or chicken stock and cook until cauliflower is tender, about 10 minutes. Strain the soup. Reserve some of the flowerets for garnish. Take the rest of it and press through a coarse sieve. Put sifted vegetable back into the soup. Add 1 tbsp. of butter. Beat 2 egg yolks, add a little soup to heat yolks up then add to soup. This method of adding yolks prevents curdling. When ready to serve add the reserved whole flowerets for garnish.

¼ tsp. salt.
1 tsp. sugar.
2 tbsp. milk.
½ cup flour or enough to make a thin batter, even one thinner than used for ordinary pancakes.

Beat eggs, add salt and sugar and milk and gradually add the flour to form a smooth batter. To make smooth it may be necessary to beat with a rotary egg beater. Pour batter in a very thin layer all over the bottom of a frying pan that has first been buttered and heated piping hot. Care must be taken so the cakes will not harden or brown. As the batter is spread so thin it is not necessary to turn it. Have a meat mixture prepared ready to spread on these cakes and quickly roll them like a jelly roll. When ready set them in the oven for half an hour. A meat paste made of finely chopped boiled meat combined with chopped onion that has been cooked until yellow and soft in a little butter and some chopped parsley is a favorite filling, too. Cooked calf brains highly seasoned is also another choice filling. Crushed berries are also often used for a filling and then the nalesniks become a dessert rather than a main course dish.

Golombki or "Doves."

2 large dry onions.
¾ lb. head rice.
¼ lb. fresh pork fat.
1 large head of cabbage.
1 small bottle catsup.
Salt and pepper to taste [about 2 tsp. salt.]

Select a cabbage with nice large leaves and one that is not too solid. Trim off the outer tough leaves, wash cabbage and then drop into enough boiling water to cover and to which has been added 2 tbsp. vinegar. Boil 5 minutes. This makes the leaves pliable. Turn cabbage into a colander to drain, saving some of the water. When cabbage cools, carefully remove the leaves, keeping them as whole as possible. Have rice boiled as for chop suey but not until soft. [Buckwheat may be used instead of rice and is very delicious. It is left in the whole grain and is cooked like the rice and in the same quantity for the doves.] Cut the fat pork into dices and fry to a golden brown. Turn in the meat, salt, pepper and cook the whole thing for 10 minutes over a slow flame turning carefully so that meat will cook evenly. Take from the fire and mix with the rice. Into each whole cabbage leaf place 2 heaping tbsp. of the meat mixture. Make a meat package folding leaf firmly around meat. If done in the right way these packages will not need to be tied. Line the bottom of a four quart kettle with the torn cabbage leaves that cannot be used, lay in the meat packages side by side, turn in the catsup and enough of the water drained from the cabbage not quite covering the whole. Cover with the rest of the cabbage leaves. Cook in a slow oven for 2½ hours. If done right the doves will remain whole throughout the cooking. Yield: 8 servings.

Lettuce Salad.

Clean and wash lettuce. Add salt and let stand 1 hour. Then squeeze lightly. Mix sour cream with diluted vinegar seasoned with sugar and pepper. Decorate before serving with slices of hard cooked eggs.

Polish [Jelly-Filled] Doughnuts.

1 quart milk, a little more may be necessary.
4 pennys' worth loose yeast or 2 cakes compressed yeast.
2½ lbs. flour.
8 egg yolks.
4 whole eggs.
1 tsp. salt.
1 cup butter
1 tsp. vanilla or lemon extract.
1 pt. tart jelly like plum or currant.

Heat milk to scalding point, then cool to lukewarm. Dissolve the yeast in this lukewarm milk. Add a little flour; mix until smooth and let stand in a warm place for about 1 hour. Mix in the eggs and the yolks very slightly beaten, the sugar, salt, butter, rest of flour and the flavoring. Knead until smooth and elastic. It takes almost half an hour to knead the dough. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Roll dough out to about ½ inch thickness, using as little flour as possible for rolling. Dampen the top with water just enough to take the flour off the dough. Set the jelly in little heaps using about one teaspoon of it every 2½ inches apart each way across the half of the sheet of dough. Fold the dough over. Mrs. Dutt uses an ordinary glass tumbler with thin edge to cut out the doughnuts. Place the glass over the dough covering the jelly heaps, being sure the jelly is in the center. Let these doughnuts rise until light, about ¾ hour. Then fry in the usual way in hot fat to 360 degrees F. Drain and dust with powdered sugar. Another way which she suggests is much better for those who are not experienced. Cut off small pieces of dough about the size of a small egg and flatten them in the palm of the hand. Set a teaspoon of jelly in the center, then close it as on ordinary fruit dumpling by pressing the edges firmly together. Shape it nicely and set it to rise for about ¾ of an hour. Then fry.

Chrusicks.

2 tbsp. milk or
2 tbsp. sour cream.
2 tbsp. sugar.
Few grains salt.
¼ tsp. baking powder [If sour cream is used this may be omitted.]

Beat egg yolks. Add milk or cream and sugar and salt. Then add enough pastry flour to make a dough as stiff as one for noodles. Add all the other ingredients and mix until dough is smooth. Then roll it very thin [as thin as paper] cut into strips about 2½ inches long and 1 inch wide. Make a lengthwise slit in the center of the strip, pull one end through the center to give the appearance of a buckle. Fry in deep fat as for doughnuts.

Clam Chowder.

1 dozen large clams [quohaugs.]
¼ lb. salt pork.
5 potatoes.
4 large dry onions.

Open clams but be careful not to lose the juice. Remove clams from shells. Fry salt pork dice to a golden brown in cooking pot. Then add 6 cups water. Strain clam juice through a double cheese cloth. Wait till water starts boiling. Then add clam meat and onions which have been put through a food chopper. Add potatoes and cook until tender. As a rule no salt is needed, but add ¼ tsp. black pepper. More clams may be used if desired. Yield: 6 servings.

Barsheh.

Few sprigs parsley.
Few sprigs dill.
2 ounces dried mushrooms.
2 medium onions.
2 medium potatoes.
¼ small head cabbage.
3 medium beets.
5 medium tomatoes.
Vinegar.
3 hard cooked eggs.

First prepare the beef stock from ordinary soup bones. Chop the pork, parsley, dill and the onion very fine. Soak the mushrooms in warm water until soft then add them with the diced potatoes, shredded cabbage and diced beets to stock with finely chopped meat and onions and cook until the vegetables are tender, perhaps for half an hour. Saute the tomatoes in two tbsp. butter until soft. Then put through a strainer to remove the seeds. Put the tomato pulp into the soup. When ready to serve add enough vinegar to give a pleasantly sour taste. Serve hot with sliced hard cooked eggs.

Time Is a Factor When Planning Hot Weather Meal

Hot weather meal planning includes not only a wise selection of foods, but a time schedule that arranges cooking so it is not necessary to spend so much time at the range, in the opinion of women experts in the federal bureau of home economics at Washington.

They find that a succession of cold meals is likely to lose the family appeal, and suggest alternating the cold meals with hot ones that will provide cold servings.

The delicate flavor of lamb makes it a favorite hot weather meat and its present low cost brings it within reach of all pocketbooks. Breast of lamb can be bought for about 12 cents a pound throughout the country and shoulder averages about 20 cents a pound. Either cut can be stuffed and served cold but the shoulder makes a much more satisfactory cold dish.

Green Vegetable on Side.

New peas or some other fresh green vegetable makes an easy to cook and refreshing vegetable for a hot day. Rice is a pleasant variation from potatoes, but make a gravy from the lamb drippings, for many occidentals do not relish rice unless it is served with a sauce or plenty of butter. In low cost meals it is obvious that gravy is more economical. It also carries with it some of the nutriment of the meat. Cook enough rice to serve next day with scalloped tomatoes, cold meat, green lettuce salad, and diced pineapple.

Fresh pineapples are inexpensive just now, costing about 10 cents apiece. They add variety and zest to any meal. Cut one pineapple in small pieces and serve it with other fruits in a fruit cup or sliced and eaten alone, with or without sugar, depending on individual taste and the ripeness of the fruit.

Here's a Recipe.

ROAST STUFFED SHOULDER OF LAMB.
[Serves Five Persons.]

Select a shoulder of lamb weighing from 3 to 4 pounds. Have the butcher remove all the bones and the fell. Save the bones for making soup. A lamb shoulder may be stuffed and either left flat or rolled. The flat shoulder is easier to sew up than the rolled, and the pocket holds twice as much stuffing. Either of these completely boned, stuffed shoulders can be carved straight through in attractive slices of part meat and part stuffing.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Sprinkle the inside of the pocket with salt and pepper, pile the hot stuffing in lightly, and sew the edges together. Rub salt, pepper, and flour over the outside. If the shoulder has only a very thin covering of fat, lay several strips of bacon over the top. Place the roast on a rack in an open pan without water. Sear for 30 minutes in a hot oven [450 degrees F.]. If bacon is laid over the roast, shorten the time of searing so as to avoid overbrowning. Reduce the temperature of the oven to 300 degrees F. and cook the meat at this temperature until tender. From two and one-half to three hours will be required to cook a medium sized stuffed shoulder at these oven temperatures. Serve hot, with brown gravy.

FORCEMEAT STUFFING.

2 cups fine dry bread crumbs.	1 sprig parsley, cut fine.
2 tablespoons butter or other fat.	½ teaspoon celery seed.
¼ cup chopped celery.	¼ teaspoon savory
1 tablespoon chopped onion.	1 teaspoon salt.
	⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Melt the butter in a skillet, add the celery and onion, and cook for two or three minutes. Add the bread crumbs and seasonings and stir until well mixed.

CHICAGO FAMILY OF 3 CAN LIVE A WEEK ON $4.61

A family of three, two adults and one child, can be fed on a modest but tasty and nutritious fare for one week in Chicago for the sum of but $4.61.

Authority for this good news is the federal bureau of home economics, which announced yesterday the items in a week's food needs for such a family. The food can be purchased cheaper in Chicago than in any of 12 other large cities of the nation, it was said.

Stores of average price were used in determining the cost of the meal, the following items being considered:

Bread	10-15 lbs.
Flour	1- 2 lbs.
Cereal	3- 4 lbs.
Whole fresh milk or	9-14 qts. tall
Canned evaporated milk	9-14 cans
Potatoes	8-10 lbs.
Dried beans, peas, peanut butter	1- 2 lbs.
Tomatoes, fresh or canned, or citrus fruits	4 lbs.
Other vegetables [including some of green or yellow color] and inexpensive fruits	13-14 lbs.
Fats, such as lard, salt pork, bacon, margarin, butter, etc.	2 lbs.
Sugar and molasses	2½ lbs.

TITANIA'S SIMPLE WAY TO BE COOL STILL EFFECTIVE

Fruits and Juices Best for Hot Weather.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Midsummer night's dream? Unless you've mastered the art of keeping cool, it is more likely to be a nightmare. For the hot, deep, golden moon that Tin Pan Alley rhymes with June never seems to attain its celebrated potency if the thermometer drops below the eighties. And of course the kind hearted weather man frequently obliges.

Yes, it requires art to keep cool on a midsummer night when the moon is at its most golden over the garden pool or lake and the katydids hum sonorously. Even the little breezes which draw the perfume from the white syringa bushes are warm and bring no relief. Yet how simple an art to achieve coolness after all!

Revealed to Mortals.

Once it was a magic art, but back in Queen Elizabeth's reign Shakespeare's fairy queen, Titania, revealed it to mortals. And for the special benefit of a mortal, too, to the annoyance of her royal consort, Oberon, if you recall.

In the queen's own words to her sprites:

"Be kind and courteous to this gentleman;
Feed him apricocks and dewberries,
With purple grapes, green figs, and mulberries."

This was her prescription for a midsummer feast, and mere mortals have been forswearing fats and carbohydrates to follow it ever since. Dewberries and "apricocks," mulberries, grapes and figs have their place on the modern summer menu, and how many more fruits that Titania never enjoyed three centuries ago.

Citrous Fruits First.

Citrons first of all, lemons, oranges, grapefruit, limes. A front page story announced that last Monday more lemons were sold than on any other day in Chicago's history. Oranges and limes ran close seconds that same day as favorite hot weather standbys. Then the pineapple, fragrant and juicy, and luscious melons. And those others Titania omitted to mention, but surely knew—strawberries, cherries, raspberries, peaches and plums.

If you would be kind and courteous to your friends, and cool to boot, these will be your mainstay as appetizer, dessert, and between meal refreshment this summer. Fruits have long been recognized as soothing to choleric dispositions in warm weather.

Try them mixed in a drink on the hottest midsummer eve, and you will feel sprightly, even if you approximate a sprite in height, weight and wit at no other season of the year. Take a glass of orange juice two-thirds full, fill it to the brim with grapefruit juice, add a bit of crushed raspberry juice and sweeten according to your taste. A floating sweet cherry or two is all the concoction needs to rouse the envy of Titania herself.

Ideal Summer Salad.

Or place your fruits on a crisp lettuce leaf and feast on a midsummer salad confident that you are enjoying a delicacy which queens, even fairy queens, never sampled until two hundred years after Shakespeare's time. Fresh sweet cherries, raspberries, fresh pineapple, grapefruit, and orange together make a jeweled, luscious mound on a lettuce leaf, crowned with mayonnaise.

For a more formal salad place half a fresh apricot in a ring of fresh pineapple on a lettuce leaf. Top the apricot with cream cheese. Place melon balls in two colors alternately about the pineapple ring. Place halves of fresh strawberries about the cream cheese. Top the cream cheese with a fresh cherry.

Your Dollars Buy More Now, Uncle Sam Reports

Gradual declines in living costs over a period of five years are responsible for a dollar today being worth $1.40, according to statistics compiled by the United States department of labor.

DON'T NEGLECT THE ESSENTIALS OF DIET FOR YOUR FAMILY

The essentials of a family diet, no matter how closely the housewife is budgeting, are pointed out by Miss Aneta Beadle, home economics specialist at Purdue university. She declares that each child should have at least a pint, and preferably a quart of milk daily, and that when the family gets little or no fruits and vegetables, the bread should be made of whole grain cereals.

"For breakfast," Miss Beadle suggests, "serve a fresh or dried fruit. If the fruit is not available, use tomatoes. Also use whole grain cereal, such as wheat. It may be soaked over night to soften the fiber, before cooking, or may be put through a coffee grinder. Cocoa may be served to the children who do not care for warm milk. Use one-half teaspoonful to the cup."

For dinner, three times a week the main dish can be meat or fish, such as mutton stew (mutton at the present time is quite inexpensive, as are some cuts of lamb) with vegetables, or escalloped salmon. Twice a week a cheese or egg dish may be served; and about twice baked beans or a thick bean, pea, or lentil soup.

"Potatoes, with the addition of one other vegetable or fruit should be served every day," says Miss Beadle. "If the potatoes are pared, these peelings can be cleaned and cooked and the liquid from them used in the soup served for supper. A sweet dessert, made from leftover cereal, or dried bread, may be added.

"For supper, a thick vegetable chowder or soup creamed vegetables or cereal mush may be served. Fresh or dried fruit or custard may be used for dessert."

POINTS TO COSTS IN DISTRIBUTION OF QUALITY MILK

Professor Tells Benefits Consumer Receives.

Ithaca, N. Y., July 2.—There is milk, and milk; but the bottle delivered to the city consumer is a protected bottle shielded from any contaminating influences that farmers, distributors, and health regulations can devise.

Professor Leland Spencer of New York state college of agriculture here says there is as much difference between the sanitary standard of today's market milk producers and those supplying the old fashioned creameries as between the sanitary standards of large cities in the United States and those of southern Europe.

Twenty years ago epidemics were frequently traced to unsanitary production or handling of milk. Many persons considered milk undesirable as a food or drink because of bad flavors and too quick souring. Today, thanks to health officials, leading distributors, and dairymen's cooperative organizations, milk is now considered safe, healthful, and sanitary.

Price Makes Quality Possible.

"Such progress would not have been possible," explains Professor Spencer, "unless the retail prices had been high enough to pay distributors and farmers for the increased costs. To the distributor this increased quality meant increased investment for inspections of dairies, the maintenance of laboratories, refrigeration, pasteurization, and more thorough cleaning of equipment, cans, and bottles.

"The farmer, in addition to his feed, labor, barns, and cows, spends more for sanitary stables, cleaning cows, stables and other equipment, and refrigeration. These high sanitary standards for market milk have brought higher prices and a widening between the prices of milk delivered to consumers and that used for butter, cheese, evaporated milk, and other manufactured dairy products.

Slight Price Decline.

"During the recent period of falling prices, prices of market milk have declined less than those of other foods. This is due to better organization of distributors and producers and because the industry is protected from excessive competition by health regulations. It is impossible to maintain high sanitary standards when prices fall below costs of production and distribution."

In the long run, Professor Spencer says, it is the consumer who suffers most from drastic reductions in milk prices. Milk is occupying a more and more prominent place in the diet and it is extremely important to protect this food from any relaxation of sanitary practices, he declares.

Beef, Ham Economical Purchase for Week-End

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Chicago Meat council states:

"Pot roast of beef is recommended to the housewife of Chicago as the most economical meat buy over the coming week-end. Ham and picnics also represent unusually attractive buys for the housewife."

"I'VE TRIED 'EM ALL—and it's Black Flag Liquid for me, every time! It's priced to save me money, yet it kills flies and mosquitoes, ants, bedbugs, roaches and moths like magic."

Black Flag Liquid's more powerful killing ingredients make it work quicker—and surer. Just close the windows and spray the whole room with Black Flag's pure, pleasant-smelling, stainless mist. Every last fly or mosquito drops—and stays dead. Yet it's absolutely harmless to humans and pets. Sold to you on a money-back guarantee.

This very day, get Black Flag Liquid—the safest, surest, quickest insect-killer you ever used. And think! It saves you money, too!

P. S. Black Flag comes in Powder form, too. Just as deadly. Kills all insect pests. Many people prefer Black Flag Powder for crawling pests. It stays where you put it—kills pests when they crawl through it.

3 GREAT FORCES MAKE FOOD PURE FOR HOUSEWIVES

Competition, Science and U. S. Laws Have Done It.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Three great forces, two of them economic, and the third legislative, have been at work for a quarter century to develop the present high plane on which the housewives of the nation may purchase, with an assurance bordering on abandon, her family's provisions.

They are competition, commonly called the "life of trade"; science, which has served the food industry from production through distribution and processing to the consumer's very door, and the federal pure food law, which this week marks its twenty-fifth anniversary.

Assemble to Rich, Poor.

To any one willing to meditate a few moments, the transcending changes that have marked the last quarter century of progress in feeding a nation are little short of miraculous. In fact, if any, former eras in history have the luxuries of transportation and refrigeration, wide selection of foods both in and out of season, convenience at low cost, and definite assurance of purity and full measure, been so widely accessible to rich and poor alike.

The legislators, and even President Roosevelt, who signed the federal food and drugs measure as congress presented it to him on June 30, 1906, may now imagined but little realized the value of this safeguard to the coming generations.

It was born of necessity, this pure food law. In the years immediately preceding and following its passage an awakened public consciousness of "the evils and malpractices of the day" were ample incentive for government intervention.

Stuffens Exposes Government.

"Lincoln Steffens was exposing the forms of misgovernment in large American cities," explains Walter G. Campbell, the federal department of agriculture's chief law enforcement officer, who is in charge of pure food administration. "Upton Sinclair had written 'The Jungle' pillorying the meat packers. Ida M. Tarbell was unearthing the cynicism and dishonesty of early Standard Oil operations. It was an age of exposure of unethical practices, and a wave of public indignation against the evils of food and drug manufacturing."

Campbell describes the condition of the food and drug industry of those unregulated days as "an industry ripe in its chrome stage."

"As a result of crude methods in food manufacturing, the buyer suspected commercially prepared foods and with reason. The medical quack and the patent medicine charlatan plied their trade from the itinerant bandwagon and the mixing tub. Unexposed nostrums, worthless in the treatment or cure of diseases, were sold everywhere.

Dyes and Preservatives.

"Commercially packed foods were usually adulterated, sometimes with dangerous chemicals, as ingredients of dyes and preservatives. So unethical were the practices of some food manufacturers and dealers that the many honest producers had little opportunity of profiting by the sale of quality goods."

The change for the better from this condition was not immediate as the law went into operation. A carry over of opposition to its contents and inability to promptly readjust manufacturing practices delayed compliance. But regulatory agencies enforcing it had no difficulty in finding violations.

"Adulteration and misbranding were common in the early days, but it was not possible to secure immediate correction," Campbell reports. "Officials were handicapped by the lack of technical means of detecting all forms of adulteration."

Tests for Fraud Detection.

While some government scientists were perfecting chemical and medical tests for fraud detection, others were seizing products existing in violation of the law. Some 18,000 lawsuits were pressed. Then, as now, there was complaint that "the government is ruining our business."

But the protected and law abiding manufacturers of foods and drugs stood, until the industry was selling products amounting annually to several billion dollars in value."

According to Campbell's observation, the 25 years of the law's existence have witnessed some of the most important developments that have ever occurred in the history of food and nutrition.

"The dietary habits of Americans have changed materially," he comments. "The use of such foods as milk, sugar, vegetables, fruits, has increased greatly and the consumption of cereal grains has declined. Vitamins, a comparatively recent discovery, have assumed an important place in the thought of the consuming public and in the regulatory activities under the law's administration."

For Study of Vitamins.

So important have these become that a federal laboratory now is planned for the study of vitamins in order to check on the correctness of food labels. Many chemical laboratories are already in operation in this work. Three of them are located at 908 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Here chemists check constantly on the purity of foods and drugs for interstate commerce in the middle west. J. O. Clarke and Dr. Paul have charge of this area. Other district offices are at New York and San Francisco. Fifteen stations are operating in the federal chemical and regulatory work, with six laws to enforce.

The immediate Chicagoland area is subject to the jurisdiction of H. D. Garrett. Comprising as it does some of the largest food and drug manufacturing industries in the world, operations are constantly subject to increase in this Chicago office.

"The quarter century has also witnessed pioneer work in the technic of processing fruits and vegetables," declares Chief Campbell. "The American today, unquestionably, is able to purchase as a result of this regulatory measure foods and drugs of as high quality as are found upon the world market."

Safeguard Food Purity.

The initial purposes of the act, to safeguard the purity of foods and drugs and to protect consumers from economic fraud through the purchase of mislabeled or adulterated goods, have not been changed although amendments have strengthened and modified the law's administration in its quarter century's existence.

The most recent of these is the McNary-Mapes amendment, which Campbell says is proof that "the food manufacturing trade itself would be the last to desire to have the law weakened or abolished."

And the price of this mobilized force of federal vigilantes to safeguard the health and happiness of a nation, he says, is approximately one cent per capita per year—"an excellent bargain."

MELONS BY CARLOAD HELP CHICAGO KEEP COOL IN HOT WEATHER

Trainloads of melons from California, Arizona, Texas, Georgia, and other areas were suddenly in demand with the advent of hot weather, and hundreds of truckloads were sent each morning from Chicago railroad terminals to every center of the metropolitan area in a frantic attempt to satiate the droughty appetites.

W. H. Hall, federal marketing specialist at South Water street, reported the following receipts of melons up to July here: Cantaloupes, 14,945 carloads; honeydews, 2,053 cars; honeyballs, 774 cars; watermelons, 14,843 cars; mixed cars of melons, 1,451. A portion of these melons were sent into other markets, but most of them found ready buyers in Chicago, the market for some five nearby states.

HERE ARE TIPS ABOUT MEALS FOR REAL DINER

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 2.—[Special.]—He has served Hungarian goulash to the Hungarian envoy, and he has placed fish pudding before the Norwegian foreign minister. Years ago he concocted a Crêpe Suzette for the then French ambassador, Jusserand, and last winter he got up such a fine banquet for the visiting Japanese royalty that the menu was sent back to the mikado.

So Fred Weisinger, maître d'hotel for the Mayflower hotel, scene of many official dinners, speaks with experience when he warns hostesses about to entertain foreign diplomats, not to imitate their native meals absolutely, and imperfectly, but to serve American food, with a dish or two reminiscent of the guest's home dining table.

For instance, if you're entertaining a Japanese don't make rice the conspicuous headliner of the meal. Rather, serve it, as he did to the Japanese prince and princess, with chicken and mushrooms and artichokes and truffles. This dish, by the way, so appealed to the princess that she took a second helping.

Maitre D'Hotel Epigrams.

As Mr. Weisinger sat in his office today recollecting the important personages whose palates he had pleased, he grew epigrammatic. Here are some of his comments:

"I have lived in this country 36 years, but there are two things I cannot get used to—ice water, and hot rolls.

"The real chef is a gourmet. His tongue is his guide. Show me a chef eating his own meal. If he is gobbling down roast beef and mashed potatoes he is no chef.

"Take all the Russian dressing, the thousand island dressing, the mayonnaise dressing and throw into the ocean. Follow it with marshmallow and whipped cream dressing. Imagine that for a salad. The correct salad dressing is oil and lemon juice. Lemon juice is better than vinegar. For myself, I use just lemon juice.

"There is a difference between eating and dining. Too many banquets are merely 'eatings'; with the guests more interested in the toy balloons than the food. But when I discover a real diner, I will go through fire to see that he is pleased."

Tastes Every Dish Served.

So interested is Mr. Weisinger in seeing that his guests at a dinner get the food flavored properly that he, himself, tastes every dish before it is served.

The sauce for the lobster must be piquant; the sauce for the meat must be subtle. The rice for the Italian dishes must come from Italy; South Carolina rice is all right for rice pudding.

When he is in charge of a banquet for a foreigner he gives the guest of honor an American dish, but serves it in the guest's native way. For instance, he would serve a German fine capon, but he wouldn't think of serving potatoes and vegetables with it. When Dr. Hugo Eckener of Graf Zeppelin fame was in Washington, William P. MacCracken Jr., then assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, gave him a big dinner at the Mayflower. The capon was served with a fruit compote. At the end of the banquet Dr. Eckener said to Mrs. MacCracken: "Madame, you have taken away the prestige from the German housefrau." Mrs. MacCracken smiled, and so did Fred Weisinger.

And whenever Joseph Tumulty comes to town he has Mr. Weisinger get him a terrapin dinner. In the old pre-prohibition days terrapin and champagne made a Washington dinner. The terrapin, of course, was preserved for twenty-four hours in brandy before being fixed.

Ideal Terrapin Dinner.

Now, what with the Volstead act and the high cost of a Chesapeake diamond back terrapin, the dish is reserved for the gourmet. Here is Mr. Weisinger's special recipe:

Drop the terrapin in sufficient tepid water to allow it to swim for half an hour. Change water several times and wash them well. Scald by plunging them into boiling water—take them out as soon as skin on head and feet can be removed with cloth.

Cook in water, add small amount of carrots, onions and celery [30-45 minutes]. If the feet meat yields easily under pressure, they are done. Let them get cold, break the shell on flat side, cut off nails, detach meat from shell, empty out the insides, take out liver and place in cold water.

Lay the terrapin in sauce pan with the liver and terrapin eggs, terrapin meat to be cut into inch or inch and quarter slices.

Put terrapin in sauce pan, smother with one-eighth pound sweet butter, very slowly for five minutes. Add glass of Newburg sauce, smother for five more minutes; add 1 pint of 40 per cent grade cream and boil five minutes. Season with salt and cayenne and add a small pinch of nutmeg. At the very last add five yolks of eggs and a little milk.

Just before serving, add unsalted Old Sherry.

By the way, the first celebrity whose menus Fred Weisinger ever superintended was William Howard Taft, who loved his food.

HERE'S LIST OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES ON CHICAGO MARKETS

The housewives of Chicagoland, looking over today's markets for variety and tastiness in her holiday week-end menus, will find both a simple matter.

In the fruit and vegetable markets through the metropolitan area these choice fresh edibles are to be found, according to federal department of agriculture experts here: Apples, beans, cabbage, carrots, cantaloupes, honeydew and honeyball melons, cauliflower, chard, cherries, celery, sweet corn, cucumbers, grapes, lettuce, lemons, oranges, onions, peas, peaches, pears, apricots, plums, prunes, peppers, potatoes, tomatoes, watermelons, asparagus, avacados, strawberries, blueberries, dewberries, eggplant, garlic, parsley, radishes, raspberries, rhubarb, rutabagas, spinach, sweet potatoes, and turnips.

MAKE FOURTH A HOLIDAY WITH AID OF THIS MENU

Are you looking for a little different kind of menu for tomorrow's meals? If you would avoid overexertion of the mind in warm weather and still have time to do a little celebrating of the Fourth with the others in the family, consider this menu offered by home economists of the United States department of agriculture.

Breakfast.
Fresh Fruit
Cooked Cereal with Milk
Cornmeal Muffins
Coffee or Milk

Dinner.
Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb
New Peas or other Green Vegetable
Rice with Gravy Sliced Pineapple
Tea

Supper.
Egg Salad
Toasted Cornmeal Muffins
Milk for All

CORN MEAL MUFFINS.
[Serves 5 persons.]

2 cups corn meal 2 tsps. salt
½ tsp. soda 2 cups sour milk
2 tsps. baking powder 2 eggs
2 tbsps. melted fat

Sift the dry ingredients and add the milk. Add the well beaten eggs and the fat. Pour into very hot, well buttered muffin pans. Bake from 25 to 30 minutes in a hot oven [400 to 425 degrees Fahrenheit].

TELL WHAT KIND OF SIRUP TO USE IN FRUIT CANNING

Different kinds of fruit should be canned in different thicknesses of sirup. Some fruits need a thin sirup, some a medium, and some a thick, say home economics specialists at Cornell university.

Raspberries and other sweet berries, apples, and pears may be canned in a thin sirup, made by boiling one and a half cups of sugar to four cups of water for three minutes.

Sweet cherries, sweet plums, and blackberries should be canned in a medium sirups, the college says. This is made by using two and a fourth cups of sugar to four cups of water and boiling it for three minutes. A thick sirup of four cups of sugar to four cups of water, boiled for three minutes, may be used for peaches, cherries, and pineapples when a particularly sweet product is desired.

TRY HORSERADISH TO MAKE MEAL MORE APPETIZING

Adds Flavor to the Meat Course.

BY FLORA MARTIN.

Second to no other condiment as a relish and appetizer is the old fashioned dish of horseradish. Not only does it change an uninteresting meal into an appetizing one but it is useful in promoting digestion. Serve it with meats at luncheons or dinners or spread it on sandwiches. You will find that it is a cure for lagging appetites.

If you like your meats flavored with spicy sauces, you'll like horseradish. Horseradish does not tolerate indifference. You are either all for it, or you don't like it at all.

Enlivens Taste of Food.

A bit of horseradish or a sauce seasoned with horseradish enlivens the taste of foods that are mild in flavor. Beware, however, of playing with fire and using this condiment with meats that are inclined to have a high flavor of their own. If you doubt the wisdom of these words, try it. For instance, you might take a frankfurter flavored with garlic and spread horseradish over it. After the first mouthful, you are liable to exhaust the water supply in an attempt to alleviate the fiery pangs that threaten to burn your mouth out. It will be one lesson that will never be forgotten.

Have you ever tried to grate your own horseradish? Or do you use the variety that is already grated and bottled, which can be found on the shelves of the neighborhood stores?

If you have never tried your hand at making horseradish you will find it an interesting experiment. You may be assured that the preparation of this condiment will initiate you into new mysteries. The strong odor of sliced onions are mild compared to the powerful fumes from grated horseradish which play havoc with your eyes.

Better Use a Gas Mask.

To be properly equipped for this task, one should really invest in a gas mask. Lacking such equipment, the next best way to save your eyes would be to move all of the paraphernalia out on the back porch, where there is plenty of fresh air in circulation.

Horseradish roots may be obtained at almost any vegetable store. To prepare the roots, scrape well. Then grate very fine, cutting out any discolored parts. Mix with enough vinegar to moisten thoroughly and bottle. Jars and bottles in which the grated horseradish is put up should be hermetically sealed and kept in a cool place, as the pungent characteristics which are so refreshing are lost when exposed to heat and air. When used without vinegar, it is best grated just before serving.

Try This One.

A more elaborate preparation can be made with the following ingredients:

1 teaspoon mustard.
1 tablespoon vinegar.
3 tablespoons cream.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
3 tablespoons [about] grated horseradish.
1 teaspoon salt.

Mix all of the ingredients together thoroughly.

You might try a salad dressing flavored with horseradish. To ½ cup of mayonnaise add ½ cup of cream, whipped, ¼ cup of grated horseradish, and 1 teaspoon of salt. Beat well. One-half cup of ground nutmeats and 1 teaspoon of minced parsley may be added. The horseradish may be increased or diminished according to taste.

Or there is the horseradish sauce which is tasty with slices of hot roast beef. Here is how it is prepared:

1½ tablespoons horseradish.
2 tablespoons water.
1½ tablespoons vinegar.
Few grains cayenne.
½ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
¼ cupful whipped cream.

Mix the horseradish and water and let stand ten minutes. Add the vinegar, salt, cayenne, and paprika, and let stand five minutes longer. Fold in the whipped cream and serve immediately.

The above recipes call for the bottled horseradish, since that is probably more generally used. If the freshly grated is used cut the amount of horseradish one-third to one-half.

CHICAGO EATING MORE CABBAGE, U. S. REPORTS

That Chicagoland has a keener appetite for cabbage this summer than it had last year was indicated in a federal report, issued this week, on shipments of cabbage into the Chicago market. A total of 12,851 carloads of cabbage from Kansas, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio, Virginia, and a few other states had been received here up to last Wednesday. Last year only 15,942 carloads had been received in the same period.

ICE CREAM 'AGE' REDUCED AFTER RESEARCH TESTS

Commercial Plants Scan Laboratory Study.

Confirmation of laboratory findings in what is described as the first piece of ice cream research from an agricultural experiment station to be tried out on a commercial scale is reported by H. F. Judkins, chairman of the research committee of the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers.

It has been determined that a substantial reduction in length of the "aging" period of ice cream is made possible by studies conducted in the dairy laboratory of the state experiment station at Geneva, N. Y., and elsewhere in the United States.

Old Method Too Long.

Heretofore, says Mr. Judkins, it was believed that the ice cream mix had to be held at 40 degrees Fahrenheit for periods ranging from 12 to 48 hours before freezing. With improved methods of manufacture and with the use of additional milk solids in the ice cream mixes, however, research workers in dairy laboratories in experiment stations in this country have found that this period can be reduced to 2 to 4 hours.

Just as high quality a product is claimed for the shorter aging periods. Under Mr. Judkins' direction the new procedure has been given a thorough trial in 11 commercial ice cream plants with complete satisfaction.

Different Products Used Now.

In commenting on the problem, J. C. Hening, dairy specialist at the New York state experiment station where this and other ice cream problems are under investigation, says, "In the early days of the ice cream industry a smoother textured, firmer bodied ice cream was produced when the cream was held at 40 degrees F. for periods of 24, or 48 hours prior to freezing. The improvement due to 'aging' as this practice was called, was most noticeable with pasteurized cream.

"With improvements in the manufacture of ice cream and with the use of more milk solids to supplement the cream, we have found that the aging of ice cream mixes for more than 2 to 4 hours is of such slight advantage that its commercial advantage is questionable."

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Clare, young daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, is kidnaped and held for ransom. Iris has been separated for years from her dissolute husband, Marcel. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical aunt, the Countess de Castelmaurou. Iris planned to divorce Marcel and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. After a long and dangerous search Charnwood and his friend, Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, find out that it was Clare's father who instigated the kidnaping, with a pair of criminals, Yetta and Pietro, the actual abductors, the motive being the monetary reward. Alan and Tommy engage in a battle with Marcel and his partners in crime in a deserted quarry near their hideout just as they are about to do away with a boy known as the half witted son of the couple to prevent his disclosing information detrimental to them. Marcel is killed. The couple escape. The supposed boy is rescued and discovered to be Clare, who is in a state of exhaustion. She is taken to the infirmary of a local physician. Iris arrives. She desires to keep Clare from learning her father's part in her kidnaping.

INSTALLMENT LXV.

A COMPLETE RECOVERY.

Toward daybreak Charnwood slept, and he was still engulfed in slumber when the maid shook him to say that he was wanted on the telephone. It was 9 o'clock, the sun poured into the surgery. Staggering to the instrument, he was greeted by Tommy's cheerful voice.

"Seen the papers? No? Then stand by while I read you a little light fiction. Ready?—Here goes."

Half in a trance Charnwood listened to a romantic misrepresentation of last night's adventure, so deftly clothed in the reach me down phrases of journalism, and with such masterly dovetailing of fact and fancy, that he could hardly believe he heard aright. He learned how one of the most baffling crimes of recent years was brought to a dramatic conclusion in an abandoned quarry, near Chartres, and culminated in the tragic death of M. Marcel de Bertincourt, vilely assassinated while rescuing his daughter from unscrupulous ruffians. Two Englishmen figured in the final denouement—Maj. Alan Charters Charnwood ("They've given you a V. C. instead of the D. S. O.," interpolated Tommy) and M. Thomas Blake Rostetter, the international journalist, whose comments on the last Hague conference will be remembered ("I'll bet they will").

These gentlemen, friends of the deceased, arrived on the scene too late to prevent the criminals' escape, but were able to convey the unconscious girl to the town of Antoine Eglise, where she received prompt medical attention.

And so on and so on. A complimentary account of de Bertincourt's undaunted efforts to find his child followed, giving the assumption that it was during his encounter with the kidnapers on the previous night that he obtained information as to the whereabouts of their lair. Few men, it said, could have attained such heights of heroism.

"That's the Matin," Tommy wound up. "You haven't got a photograph of yourself knocking about, have you? Because the Daily Mail's just rung up to inquire."

"Certainly not!" cried Charnwood, aghast. "But hold on! Do you honestly expect that confounded twaddle to be accepted?"

"Why not?" came the injured retort. "If we're involved in a free fight later on who minds calling Lepin and Warshavsky a couple of blanked liars? Not I, for one."

The day passed. Clare's condition still caused anxiety, but the specialist summoned from Paris declared not merely that she would recover but that the nervous derangement they feared would in all probability not materialize.

The long, murderous six-shooter.

By evening her delirium had ceased and on Sunday she was conscious, still extremely weak, but definitely out of danger.

Before that, however, news reached them that the comtesse de Castelmaurou was dead of a stroke.

What had happened was this. The iron old woman, confined to her bed, had been kept in ignorance of everything except her greatniece's rescue, her urgent demands to see a newspaper refused. Snatching a brief moment when she was left alone, she managed to creep to the lower floor where she found the butler's copy of Le Matin. The returning Ursule stumbled over her lifeless body huddled at the foot of the servants' stairs, one hand clutching the newssheet which bore the lying account just outlined.

"You think she knew?" Iris asked in an awed tone.

"I am sure she did," Charnwood answered. "What further proof could she want than the sureness with which her nephew went straight to Clare's hiding place?"

On the heels of this came two bulletins from the police. First, a hospital in Chartres made known the reception, on Oct. 7, of a mentally deficient boy, registered by his father as Jacques Lepin. This patient was in a pitiable state of malnutrition, and at some previous time had worn a brace on one leg.

The second item revealed the fact that Lepin's corpse had been found along a roadside in Ariege, near the Spanish border. Death had resulted from the bullet wound in the hip, of itself not necessarily fatal, but loss of blood and infection had done their work.

But what had become of Roche Anna? That a marked woman could slip through the close drawn net was regarded as a sheer impossibility, yet day after day went by and nothing more was heard until, towards the end of the week, the abandoned Renault, covered with bloodstains, was discovered by some peasants in a lonely mountain pass.

Streams and lakes were dragged, forests ransacked, all to no purpose. Whether it was indeed a matter of suicide, or whether she had bribed some denizen of the underworld to get her off the coast in a speedboat, no one could say. At any rate she had two million francs secreted on her person, and money works many miracles. Thus, as far as the present chronicle is concerned, her vile history ends.

In Pietro's shattered hip was found a bullet corresponding to de Bertincourt's revolver—a neat bit of evidence to support the Rostetter version.

"I daresay you thought of that," ventured Charnwood when the modest author next appeared. "But there's one risky point which has bothered me no end. What about your own bullet, the one that finished de Bertincourt? If that's come to light, as it may have done for all we know, won't it knock your romance into a cocked hat?"

"Good heavens! Didn't I tell you?" he explained, and fumbling in the pocket of his Burberry he brought forth an object which he regarded with affection. "Here, this is what I plunked him with. My own fell in the water, and I picked up this inside the shack."

And to Charnwood's stupefaction he laid on the table the long, murderous six shooter belonging to the dead Lepin.

"Mummy, please let me talk! See how absolutely calm and strong I am now!"—and Clare, lying upon the chaise longue in her mother's salon, threw wide her arms to demonstrate exactly how calm and how strong she was.

Iris smoothed the soft ends of hair which were just beginning to turn up, like a hyacinth's petals, round the edge of the bandage.

"A little, then—but only a very little! I think she may be allowed to tell us, don't you, Alan?"

Flushing, the girl leveled at Charnwood one of those appraising glances he found it so hard to meet. She was a mixture of child and woman, one moment naïve, the next endowed with a sphinxlike poise. She had the long legs of a colt, but her body faintly moulded by her thin blue dressing gown was so feminine that it was incredible she could ever have been taken for a boy.

What was she thinking of him? Did she condemn him utterly for persuading her mother to fly over to London the day before to be married by special license? The ardours of riper years are always ridiculous to those in their teens. Besides, with her mind filled by her dead father, she might easily regard this Englishman as a person to be resented and held at a distance.

He lit a cigaret to hide his confusion, then, looking up, saw with a great sense of reprieve that the long lashed eyes had softened, that a smile like sudden sunshine had broken through the cloud of her reserve.

"You're Alan, aren't you? I can't tell you anything but that. O, to think neither you nor mummy knows what actually went on that night I left! Let me tell you both about it."

So, without awkwardness or hesitation, she had coupled his name with Iris'! Perhaps after all she might come to him.

Iris sat on the floor, one hand in his, the other holding fast to Clare's slender one. The moment had come when they were to learn the secret of that swift, silent departure. A current of tense eagerness passed between the husband and wife, although they did not look at each other. In spite of all they were both feeling apprehensive.

Free Ice Fund Helped as Heat Wave Recedes

Two exceedingly pleasant things happened yesterday to gladden the heart of THE TRIBUNE free ice fund editor. First, there was that change in the weather, bringing relief, at least temporarily, to inhabitants of stuffy tenements. And, almost as important, the arrival of more than $400 in gifts, the largest day's total yet this year.

It was an inspiring stack of letters, fifty-three in all. Nearly every contributor had taken the pains to pen a note of sympathy, a wish that the gift might lift a little the suffering in a household. Some of the notes were written on scraps of paper accompanying dollar gifts from persons who could not easily spare the money, but every gift came graciously and willingly, a testimony to the kindness of a community during a summer when giving is more often a sacrifice than not.

"If it is hot in River Forest, where the name sounds cool, it must be much worse in the city, so I'm sending my bit to help some of the children there," wrote M. H. H. "Every little bit helps some," wrote another. "Hope this will bring a little comfort to some one in need of it," wrote a third.

It was H. C. who led yesterday's list by digging deep down in his (or her) pocket and discovering $100 for the ice fund.

Another large contributor was Mrs. Oliver S. Picher of Hubbard Woods, who slipped a check for $50 into the ice fund.

"I read in the paper of the many pleas for free ice and I wanted to send a donation as soon as possible," H. C. declared. "The babies and small children of needy families in Chicago depend upon THE TRIBUNE for the distribution of free ice to keep milk sweet and cool and on the contributions of readers to THE TRIBUNE free ice fund. I hope the inclosed will provide relief to a few needy families."

Selling lemonade at five cents a glass brought the fund $1.11. The energetic venders were Mary Ann Erman, Elizabeth Felsenthal, and Betty Clarke.

White City Party Party Delights Sally and Her 100 Guests

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

White City Amusement park was the scene of our first party of the summer season yesterday afternoon. And what a party it was! From the moment it started until the close of a glorious day one hundred boys and girls were in a constant state of excitement. And one couldn't expect them to be otherwise.

We began the festivities with a most enjoyable and interesting trip through the canals of a miniature Venice which was just the thing to put us in condition for the thrilling rides that followed. There was the Lindy Loop, where we were tossed back and forth in our red chariots. There was that exciting ride called Dodgem, where our skill at driving was tested, and there was the Pep with its curves and plunges that kept us fairly breathless.

Then we took time for refreshments in the cool of the picnic grove, where we had our pictures taken, too, and hurried back for the rest of the rides. We traveled through the complications of the Mysterious Sensation and in the Magic Maze we shrieked with laughter to see ourselves in all sorts of crazy shapes that came back to us from the wobbly and peculiar mirrors with which the placed is well stocked.

Because there wasn't a great deal of time left we rushed from Ferris Wheel to Giant Coast, to the Flash and to the Fun House, where a perfectly hilarious group of boys and girls found gobs of things to keep them busy. There was a spinning saucer and wobbly walks and high slides and rolling barrels and what every one was ready to enjoy by that time—more refreshments.

Then came the final, and by no means the least, of the attractions—a real circus with acrobats and performing dogs and a diving act that produced about as big a thrill as we've ever experienced. Capt. Lavalli, champion high diver, perched himself upon a small platform, eighty feet above the ground, and, with the grace of a swan and all of the bravado that such a feat takes, dived into a tank.

With such an afternoon behind us can you wonder that more than one young guest said, "Sally, this is the best party we've ever had." And, of course it was for Mr. Weber, manager of White City, and his aids did everything they could to make it a perfect day.

Princess Daisy Tells Pomp of Kings' Heyday

Palaces More Museums Than Homes, She Says.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"Better Left Unsaid" [Dutton], Daisy, princess of Pless, turns back the pages of time and reveals the pomp and circumstance, the pleasure and the heartaches of life in the palaces of pre-war Europe. In an earlier volume, composed, like this one, of selections from her diary, she was mainly concerned with presenting a picture of social and political life in the highest European circles and in giving an inside account of life in Germany throughout the great war.

DAISY, PRINCESS OF PLESS.

In this new book, however, she draws aside the curtain on her own personal life. She tells of her domestic joys and sorrows, of her children, of her gardens and the routine of her palace days, of her travels, and of her friends, among whom were all the crowned heads of Europe. She gathers together the sections of her diary that describe her life most vividly and prints them verbatim.

Her father was Col. Cornwallis-West and her mother, always spoken of as Patsy in the diary, was one of the most beautiful women in England. Her great-grandfather was lord chamberlain to Queen Victoria [the highest office in the English royal household] and her grandmother, who had a very great influence on her life, was brought up in Queen Victoria's court. The princess and her sister were reared in the usual English fashion: "From our birth onward until we 'came out' at the age of 17 or 18, we were secluded in a nursery and, when we did happen to meet any one from the outside world, were admonished to keep our [as yet unopened] eyes demurely fixed on the ground."

When still very young Daisy was married to Prince Hans of Pless, and went to live on his estates in Germany. Her husband was many years older than she, and a man about whom she knew nothing. He never came really to know or understand her, and her life, therefore, while outwardly gay and serene knew many moments of sadness.

From a carefree, jolly youth spent in rambling old country houses in the England she adored, this young princess was transplanted to a land alien to her in every way and was told to become a German, a thing, of course, that was quite impossible of achievement. She was surrounded by all the stiff and unyielding formality of small court life in a country whose nobles placed the utmost emphasis on trivialities of ceremony. Her husband, for instance, used to grow furious if he was not seated in a certain place at dinner parties and became insulted if he felt he was not being treated as befitting his rank. The in-laws, while pleasant enough in their own way, were stiff and unbending, critical and domineering. It was, all in all, enough to break the spirit of the strongest girl.

But Daisy was not average. As beautiful as her mother, with shining masses of golden hair, deep blue eyes, adorable smile and a regal bearing, she never lost her sense of proportion or her love for people and nature, and thus sustained her. She won friends on every side. Among them were the German emperor and empress and their sons, the czar and czarina of Russia, the king and queen of Spain, and a long assortment of German dukes and duchesses.

She says of her life abroad: "Life in Germany brought me many glad and happy things. I had great social success and perhaps did some useful political and serious work. My three sons came; I spent joyous, happy hours amongst friends and loved ones. Yet I think I never quite succeeded in stilling the deep sense of exile that follows nearly all English people who have to dwell in a foreign land. Behind everything lay a quenchless ache for Irish bogs, Welsh mountains—the pregnant peace of English gardens."

"I had many houses in Germany, but never anything that I felt was really a home." She compares her palaces there to museums and says, "How few people really care to visit museums—much less live in one."

At Fürstenstein, where much of her married life was spent, she never felt any real freedom. The place was said to have 500 or 600 rooms and overlooked a magnificent tract of land about 50 miles from Breslau. The author says: "If, against this background I have attempted to sketch, you envisage numberless great estates and amongst the greatest Fürstenstein with its guard, foresters, house marshal, grooms of the chambers, innumerable footmen, outriders, postilions, and all the rest of it, and the endless going and coming of visitors from all over Europe, you will perhaps realize what a terrible incubus to freedom such conditions can be."

One does not ask for literary style in a diary. It is not found in "Better Left Unsaid." Neither are any sensational or scandalous disclosures made. To many, these pages from the diary of a princess will appear as dated and outmoded as Queen Mary's pompadour and her confectionery hats. But to others, to many others who were young when the princess was young, who lived in that Victorian and Edwardian epoch, it will hold much interest.

Good morning!

Frothy, amusing, tuneful; a bit naughty, and a lot nice, "The Smiling Lieutenant" has come to the United Artists' screen. [For a prolonged stay, the management hopes.]

Remember "The Waltz Dream"—German operetta? Well, it emerges in English from an American studio as "The Smiling Lieutenant." The latter version tells the former's story with variations. Some incidents and music have been omitted. Some added. But the tout ensemble is thoroughly pleasing.

When Ernst Lubitsch directs a picture—that picture is directed! The film at the United Artists' is just one more demonstration of this man's genius. It is lush with the inspired touches, the unexpected and beguiling bits of "business" that proclaim genius at the wheel. It surprises you with a lump in your throat—when you thought you were laughing!

And the photography, sets, lighting! Mon Dieu! as they do not say in Vienna where the story starts.

"The Smiling Lieutenant" is an officer of the Imperial Guard, stationed in Vienna. While engaged in a passionate love affair with a fair feminine violinist—leader of a woman's orchestra—it is his fate to first offend and then be looked upon with favor by a visiting princess—relative of the emperor.

The princess, demure, a bit dowdy and entirely unsophisticated, wants to marry Niki, who, before he knows what is happening, is swept willy nilly into a royal alliance. He is taken, an unhappy captive, to the small kingdom where his father-in-law and bride have their court. Here he languishes until—comes Franzi with her orchestra.

Life takes on new interest.

Maurice Chevalier was never more co-la-la than as Niki. What a LOT of charm he has! Claudette Colbert does a grand job as Franzi. Miriam Hopkins plays the princess with understanding and considerable humor. These two have several delightful scenes together. George Barbier and Elizabeth Patterson contribute excellent character studies as the king and a lady in waiting.

See you tomorrow!

WOMEN'S EQUAL RIGHTS GROUPS CONFER OVER NATIONALITY LAWS

GENEVA, July 2.—(AP)—American women's equal rights leaders met here today with representative women of other countries to agree on a plan of action on the question of the nationality of women.

The group is a consultative committee of sixteen delegates from eight women's international organizations. It is meeting under league of nations auspices and will submit its recommendations for discussion by the league assembly in September.

The American representatives are Miss Madeleine Z. Doty and Miss Doris Stevens, of New York; Miss Alice Paul and Miss Emily G. Balch of Washington; Miss Margaret Whittemore of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Mrs. Clara Guthrie D'Arcis of Geneva.

They are seeking action at the Hague nationality convention. Through their activities, the question of nationality of women has been reopened and placed on the league assembly's agenda for this year. At the conference for codification of international law at the Hague last year, a convention upon the nationality of women was adopted. Women's rights bodies denounced the convention as containing discriminations against members of their sex. The United States' delegation opposed the convention and although 37 nations signed the convention, it has been ratified by none.

Berkeley, Cal., July 2.—(AP)—Bookkeepers bungled and sometimes juggled their accounts and secretaries were poor spellers about 4,000 years ago, Prof. H. F. Lutz of the University of California has found.

Prof. Lutz, head of the department of Egyptology and Assyriology, said today he had translated 200 legal and economic documents dug out of the ruins of the ancient city of Ashjaly in Asia Minor. He found one account especially interesting. That was the report of Ilushu-Nasir, son of Bur-sin, a business man in the Elamite city of Dur-rimush, 1,860 years before the birth of Christ.

Ilushu, on papyrus and clay tablets, recounted the history of about every place in his vicinity and discussed all manner of economic and financial matters.

Bookkeepers, Prof. Lutz said, made serious mistakes, some of which may have been purposeful, despite a death penalty.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—Things got too realistic during the filming of the cavalry's battle with Indians in the Tom Tyler-Rex Bell story "Battling with Buffalo Bill" yesterday, with the result that five actors went to the hospital.

The battle was staged on the back lot at Universal City. Bill Patton, Joe Wills, and Fred Haynes, film cowboys, suffered broken bones. William Rambeau and Edward Anton were treated for severe cuts. Anton was burned about the back from the wadding of an old-fashioned musket and stabbed in the hand with a spear. Rambeau also suffered a cut hand. The others were injured in falls from and kicks from plunging horses, so that all the yelling you hear if you see this Universal serial thriller won't be synthetic by any means.

Kathleen Kay, actress and gown shop partner of Lina Basquette, made what she explained as "a small, inadvertent error playing bridge with my husband" to Judge William Frederickson, hearing her divorce suit. Kathleen told the judge her husband, Bernard J. Abrahams, reproached her mildly with "you jackass, you don't have brains enough to stay alive," after which, she said, "there were hot words."

The couple also quarrel over the proper way to feed their child, she said, and the net result was a decree handed to the actress, together with the 5 year old child's custody. By the way, Kathleen Kay is not to be confused with Kathleen Key, who dropped out of sight here after she and Buster Keaton reached a settlement of the differences which caused her arrest after she had wrecked Buster's dressing room.

Credit for the week's best wisecrack to Richard Dix: "You know, actors behave that way because they're all punch drunk from smacking themselves with powder puffs."

In these days when far more contracts are dropped than renewed Fox delighted the following by taking up options and renewing contracts: Janet Gaynor, Greta Nissen, Tom Meighan, Elisha Landi, and Directors David Butler and Hamilton McFadden.

Conrad Nagel was elected head of the motion picture relief fund at its annual meeting, with Mike Levee, Paramount executive, as treasurer. The organization provided funds or supplies to 2,500 needy cases during the last year.

Because his own studio, United Artists, lacks space enough, Howard Hughes has leased practically the whole Metropolitan studio and constructed 62 sets in preparation for filming "Scarface."

Chicago Artist Paints Cardinal Hayes' Portrait

New York Prelate Poses for Charles S. Williams.

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—Now that it can be told it may surprise a lot of interested inquirers to learn that his eminence, Cardinal Hayes, supposedly "in retreat" for the current hot spell, has not been out of the city at all.

He has been devoting some of the sultriest hours of his "rest" to posing for Charles Sneed Williams, Chicago portrait painter. Both prelate and artist declare they have enjoyed the experience immensely.

"I had a wonderful time," the artist said today, as he prepared to return to Chicago to put the finishing touches on his work. "His eminence is one of the most interesting men I have ever met. A great conversationalist, a wonderful story teller, amazing in his great simplicity; at times he actually made me forget what we were about."

"My aim was to paint the man rather than the prelate," Williams said, adding that the cardinal declared he was "much pleased" with the result.

Three sittings of two hours each were devoted to the work by the Cardinal and Mr. Williams.

The painting will be three-quarters length, 4½ by 5 feet. The portrait shows the cardinal in academic rather than sacerdotal garb and therefore will contrast rather strikingly with two other portraits showing him in the scarlet robes. One is by Sir John Lavery, Irish painter, the other by Muller-Ury, a Swiss residing in Pasadena, Cal.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An attack on the so-called power trust, written by Theodore Dreiser, given out to the public by the Washington office of Senator Norris of Nebraska, and printed in part in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, contained this statement regarding the International Paper company: "To be exact, it owns 250,000 shares of preferred and 5,000 shares of common stock of the Chicago Daily News.

Charles H. Dennis, editor of the Daily News, writes to THE TRIBUNE as follows: "Neither the International Paper company nor Mr. A. R. Graustein, its president, owns a single share of stock in the Chicago Daily News. Instead of being exact, as Mr. Dreiser asserts, the statement attributed to him is ridiculously untrue."

THE STAGE

CHICAGO'S theatrical calendar is no longer barren of assignments. The manager who promotes Channing Pollock's drama, "The House Beautiful," takes a firm grip on Time's forelock and announces a Chicago première for Dec. 27. The "original cast" is promised as usual, with Mary Phillips and James Bell in the leading rôles.

"The House Beautiful" represents a counter-revolution, defying the tendencies of "modernism." It deals, according to its prospectus, "with the ordinary man, whose soul and spirit remain clear and steady, and it enshrines the faithful love existing between the man and his wife."

The New York critics pinned the adjective which they regard as most poisonous—"sentimental"—to "The House Beautiful." The New York public answered, "What of it?" and the play was a hit.

Blanche Sweet, a famous personality of the cinema when it was called "the silver screen," will begin a vaudeville engagement at the Palace theater tomorrow. A one-act play, "Snobbishness," is her vehicle. Miss Sweet was born in Chicago; she danced in Gertrude Hoffman's ballets; and for three seasons she was the pretty Irish colleen to whom Chauncey Olcott cooed and trilled in Hibernian melodramas.

Not a week passes without a bulletin from Earl Carroll announcing a new wrinkle for the 3,000 chaired playhouse which he will dedicate in New York Aug. 27. An open counter ticket office, openly arrived at, was the subject of his first communiqué. An inexhaustible supply of ice-water, contained in thermos magnums, was his next theme.

Now he chants eloquently of program lights to be fixed on the back of the chair ahead, enabling the customer to read the playbill without eye-strain; and of a "continental café" in a modernistic basement, to which patrons may repair before, during and after the performances, to refresh themselves with food and drink Day by day in every way, Mr. Carroll's theater is getting better and better.

Casanova, the rapscallion who wrote the ruddy memoirs about which the "young moderns" twitter unblushingly, is about to become the hero of a comic opera. He will be acted by Dennis King, who hasn't graced the Chicago stage since "The Vagabond King" in 1927 or 1928, although many matinée maids pray daily for his return. Rudolph Friml has been commissioned to compose the score, and the show will be staged next fall.

Alexander Carr, recently of "Mendel Inc." and co-hero of the "Potash and Perlmutter" plays, has decided that author's royalties would be an agreeable source of income. So he wrote for his own use a piece called "The Wooden Soldier," and took it to Broadway. It lasted one week, and when its box office receipts were carefully added up they totaled less than $500. At its Saturday matinée the takings were $11.

Europe Forgets Sculptor's Art, Borglum Says

Cites Some Recent Stuff as Distorted.

BY JOHN AHL-NIELSEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, July 2.—"I have not seen anything of value in modern European sculpture," Gutzon Borglum told THE TRIBUNE correspondent in an interview here. He was here for a short vacation from his work in Poland. The American sculptor is completing a statue of President Wilson in Warsaw for the Polish government.

"Although I found a few fine things in Bremen, I must admit that European sculpture has been a disappointment to me," he said. "Why do European sculptors from the Atlantic to the Russian frontier try to compete with primitive Negro or jungle sculpture? I know art when I see it, but don't tell me that modeling a statute of a human being with a head as small as a bean, a neck as thin as a needle, and two immense breasts hanging down in front of a belly as slank as a match, resting on a pair of legs which resemble balloons, has anything to do with art.

"Any art must be the result of some feeling which is by way of artistic ideas transformed into the visible work of art. But in much modern art you cannot see any feelings at all, and still less ideas."

Mr. Borglum complained that in America sculptors also distort the human form, explaining that they want to create new forms for sculpture and map out the artistic ways of tomorrow. American schools also are trying to destroy art, he believes.

"When I view the European art which was born after the war," he continued, "I cannot but feel that the atmosphere of the moral and economic depression makes people think ugly thoughts and the artists try to maintain this ugly epoch for the coming generations by ugly art. You need fresh air, you need sunshine, comfort, and independence if you ever shall create beautiful art again.

"In Berlin I did not see anything of artistic value, but in Warsaw I found a few fine things, and here in Copenhagen I have visited the museum bearing the name of the greatest classic Scandinavian sculptor, Bertel Thorvaldsen, but I found him to be a good old Greek, whose works equal those of the Greek sculptors, but he has given nothing to the development or the progress of art. And without progress and development art will die.

"I have not seen anything over here that I can take home and tell America is as good as the best modern American sculptors are making. I can return to America and rest assured that you cannot teach us anything when it comes to developing sculpture."

War President's Widow Is Honored in Polish Capital

WARSAW, July 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, here for the unveiling at Poznan on July 4 of a statue commemorating her husband, went sightseeing today and was honored at several official functions. The principal event on her program was a dinner tonight at the American embassy, which was to be attended by President Mosciciki. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Baruch of New York and Mrs. John Edward Moeling, Mrs. Wilson's niece, are with her.

J. P. Morgan Declines Art Museum Presidency

New York, July 2.—[Special.]—J. P. Morgan has declined the presidency of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, it was learned today from an authoritative source, because the pressure of his business affairs does not give him time to serve in that office. Since the recent death of Robert W. De Forest, president of the museum for many years, it had been reported that his successor would be Mr. Morgan, whose father was head of the Metropolitan and did much to raise it to its present high standing among the world's museums.

Drive Crooks from Politics, McAndrew Plea

"Be a Nathan Hale," He Tells Teachers.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 2.—[Special.]—Asserting that the worst crooks in American government have been well educated and that "there are more crooked officials, more corrupt judges, more crime and rotten politics in this country than any in the world," William McAndrew, former superintendent of schools in Chicago, made the headline address here tonight at the annual convention of the National Education association. He also struck at the efforts of motion picture producers to influence teachers to induce children to attend movie theaters.

Mr. McAndrew, who now is editor of the Educational Review, was one of the convention's principal speakers. Another was Miss Mary McSkimmon, principal of the Pierce school in Brookline, Mass., and a past president of the National Education association. The two engaged in an interesting side conversation on the convention platform on the subject of motion pictures.

In his address on the topic of the relation of school and teacher to the community Mr. McAndrew became vehement and pounded his fist as he said: "We seem to be all for learning, for grades, we teachers.

"But the fact is that the crookedest crooks in our government have been well educated. And despite the early concept of our educational system as a system set up to insure the union, justice, domestic tranquillity, national security, and general welfare, there are more crooked officials, more corrupt judges, more crime and rotten politics in this country than any country in the world. And yet we ask for money for the schools to keep it away from police forces and jails, the need for which we school people said we were going to lessen.

"When I ask intending school teachers what they will do if crooks are nominated for office in their home towns they say they would do nothing. Why not? They are public servants to secure good governments. They say they would be fired if they did.

"We are laughed at because we fall for these promoters of bogus rubber plantations and what not. Are we, in addition, cowards? Why don't you organize in your own school if necessary? Be a Joan of Arc for a while. Teaching heroism in your classes is all right, but why don't you be a live heroine for once? Teach your children about the rotten politics in your state if such there be. Be a Nathan Hale and help our schools clean up rotten politics."

Mr. McAndrew in his conversation with Miss McSkimmon asked:

"Have you attended one of those conferences being held by Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors' association?"

"Yes," she said.

"Why, they're nothing but propaganda to try to get the teachers to induce school children to attend the movie theaters," McAndrew charged.

Miss McSkimmon said it seemed that way.

Ask Teachers to Chicago.

Los Angeles, July 2.—(AP)—William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, and "Miss Chicago," represented by Mrs. Hilma Wells, Chicago school teacher, today invited the National Education association to hold its 1933 convention in Chicago in connection with the world fair. W. J. Page, high school principal of Chicago, headed the Illinois delegation asking for the convention.

Consolidated schools, said Clarence Poe, editor of a Raleigh, N. C., magazine reaching rural residents, must be kept in the country and not verge on city limits. He said he believed the "school of tomorrow" will be the "little capital of a community republic" with rural districts defining their own boundaries, and "integrating themselves about the schools as centers of life."

'LOHENGRIN' ADDS ANOTHER SUCCESS TO SEASON AT RAVINIA

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For the first time in its history Ravinia presented "Lohengrin" last night with its second act, if not completely intact, at least in recognizable outlines. The addition proved several things, among them that Julia Claussen is a remarkable artist as Ortrud.

There was a suspicion of it in past seasons, but in the presence of such associates as Elisabeth Rethberg, Edward Johnson, and others, also from the fact that in the former version she merely took part in a concerted number in the first act and delivered a few shrieks in the last, her ability was somewhat obscured.

But last night, even with the cuts that it was necessary to make, she revealed herself as a quite extraordinary Ortrud. Malignancy was in every tone of her voice, every gesture, which, one takes it, is the secret of the Ortrud character, but which did not in the least prevent her singing from being beautiful beyond the common.

Beauty entirely normal and intensified was the basis of the Lohengrin by Mr. Johnson and the Elsa by Mme. Rethberg. They were figures who put aristocracy into voice and manner, charm into song, distinguished bearing into demeanor. A newcomer into the cast was Alfredo Gandolfi as Telramund. He is a baritone who was true to type in voice, language, and traditions of the role. He, Louis D'Angelo as the king, and George Cehanovsky as the herald, with the artists already mentioned, projected the first act in somewhat gentle mood, it is true, but at the same time so nearly to Wagnerian ideals that an evening spent in their observation was well spent.

Epsom Salt Baths Strenuous; Ones of Cornstarch Soothing

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I am asked about Epsom salt baths and starch baths, the first as to their reducing value, the second about their effect on the skin.

The Epsom salts bath method of weight reduction was a popular fad for a while. It still may be classified under the fad methods of reduction. The method was to put a couple of pounds of Epsom salts into a hot bath. The hotter the batter.

You were supposed to remain in the bath for fifteen minutes, adding hot water so that the high temperature would be maintained. Then, after that, you were supposed to wrap yourself in wool blankets for a half hour or so to permit a profuse flow of perspiration. Then you had a cool sponging off and a good rubdown.

Naturally there would be a loss of weight—but those who tried it found it most weakening. And the loss of weight was caused by the heavy perspiration. It's just an old system of "sweatout," at which three to five pounds may be disposed of.

The trouble with the system, besides its weakening effect, if repeated often is that when you begin to consume liquid again most of the weight returns. If the treatment is pursued with vigor—that is, if taken daily or even several times a week, the tissues sag and an aged look is often the final result. So it isn't what you'd call one of the successful reducing systems.

I should think, however, that any one with the stamina to see this kind of treatment through would be fine material for the saner diet and exercise programs that have proved, after years of fad experimentation, to be the only successful permanent fat separators.

As for the starch baths, they are drying and soothing. They are often used for sunburn treatment. Ordinary cornstarch is what is used. Dr. Irwin C. Sutton, noted dermatologist, prescribes this method: Boil a cup of cornstarch in a quart of water, allow it to cool, and add two cups of bicarbonated soda. Dump into the bathtub, which is one-third full of cold or tepid water.

Stay in this bath as long as possible, but do not become chilled. The cornstarch solution must be cool before the soda is added or you'll have to throw the stuff out and start over again. After the bath pat the skin dry and leave a coating of powder on the skin, which is soothing.

Fringe Coiffure Chic; Hat Styles Changing

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Hat fashions and styles of hair dressing tend toward the feathery as summer appears in Paris. A light headed aspect is quite the latest and smartest thing, girls. Antoine is reducing hair to something almost as short as the shingle, but far more flattering. He cuts it and thins it, but leaves a faint and feathery fringe at the sides, in front of the ear, and just behind it, too, like the sketch shown in the center.

No curling is necessary, or chic, with such a hair cut, the last word in Parisian coiffures. Princesse de Rohan wears her hair like this. So does Comtesse de Robilant, and Mme. Schiaparelli, and Mme. Agnès, whom it suits divinely. It's a kind of hair cut that brings relief to straight haired girls who like to swim through the summer, and it indicates the passing of long and curly hair from the smartest of Parisian circles.

Hats, too, are changing. No longer does the small hat sit in chic on the back of the head, showing a part and waves above the forehead. Tiny turbans and caps are worn rakishly posed over the right ear, and they cut off half the right side of the forehead, as shown in the top sketch, which is Agnès' latest colonial turban, with a padded roll and ball of silvery white feathers for trimming. Practically the whole left side of the head is bare, for the rough straw cap only covers the right side and the top.

When the midsummer French hat doesn't tilt perilously to one side, it has a brim and dips over the forehead, like the black straw hat from Suzanne Talbot shown in our third sketch. This hat, with its blue Mercury wing trimming across the front, is the most successful hat Paris has produced for summer.

Improved Appearance Often Means Brighter Chances, Happiness

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"D. L." is past 24. Looks are nothing to brag about, she reports. She has a large nose and terrible looking teeth. She has come to the conclusion that she probably will never get more than one opportunity to marry—the one now under consideration.

The man is considerably older than she, a steady worker, of different nationality. The girl has absolutely no feeling for him—but wonders where she will be, years hence. She's worked since she was 15; salary not large; doesn't suppose she'll ever earn more, and can't save anything to speak of.

"When I grow old, where will I be? In the poorhouse, probably—if I don't take this man."

—o—

The poorhouse might be a cheery abode compared to existence with a man you have no feeling for, a man you marry simply as an escape. But let's get down to rock bottom and what I think is wrong with you, "D. L."

You're suffering the well known inferiority complex about your looks, to begin with. Why are the teeth of a girl of 25 in terrible condition, these days? There are dental clinics where one can obtain treatment at little cost, if other treatment cannot be afforded. This physical disability alone would contribute to the feeling that you haven't a chance.

The large nose doesn't mean a thing. But something that can be corrected, like faulty teeth, does have a decided influence on the individual's own feelings and the reaction of other people to her.

—o—

I suspect that your hopelessness about progress in work has its root in what you believe to be a poor physical showing. Goodness, look around at the women who are married! They're not all Follies' candidates, you very well know. But they have enough faith in themselves to convince some man they are worth while.

There's a good deal of truth in "what a man thinketh, that he will be." If you think "poorhouse" you probably will land there. But if you thought a little harder about a brighter future life than either poorhouse of loveless marriage, you'd apply the energy for a better reward from life.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My little daughter was with me in the washroom on a train. She took up my wrist watch and I warned her to be careful. It slipped from her hand and fell to the floor. I took up the watch and held it to my ear, at which my daughter exclaimed, "O, mother, is it unconscious?"

Your old dressing gown, cleaned and rejuvenated a bit, would help to make Mrs. M. K. more comfortable during her stay in the sanitarium. Perhaps some one will have a pair of slippers for her, too.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Informal Greeting.

Recently I attended a movie with my wife, who stood at one side in the lobby while I bought the tickets. Being in a hurry and having quite a lot of change to put in my pocket I rushed up to "my wife" and exclaimed, "Here, hon, shake a leg and help me out."

Hearing a giggle I looked and saw that "my wife" was a strange woman. Needless to say I was in a greater hurry than before.

Plan Quiet Games to Rest the Youngsters on Hot Summer Days

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Money in the pocket is money in the bank. That's what we'd all like to have.

Changed into terms of health, that's what summer should mean for your children—health to spend as they go, and health in reserve for the trying, comparatively sunless period of winter. To insure this we need to do more than watch our children's food and their sleep. We need to watch the effect of extreme heat on them.

Heat takes it out of children—though one wouldn't think it to see them play! They are more impervious to it than older people, but it does affect them. It tires them, affects their appetite and sometimes their digestion, and often makes them seem irritable and discontented.

Of course, in extremely hot weather we all use modern common sense. We dress the children as lightly as possible, give them at least two tepid baths a day and don't allow long exposure to the sun. But we must also keep them from constant activity.

Some children will play in hot weather just as violently as in cool—whether they happen to be at the age for tag, or tennis. But we ought to limit their more violent play—though not by suggesting that they sit still and do nothing. They scarcely know what that means. It is practically an impossibility for a little child, and almost for a boy or girl. But by having plans in our head for some kind of quiet play we can reduce that constant vigorous activity.

No matter what the children's ages are you can find interesting things for them to do when you want them to cool off. There are quiet games like checkers and cards. There is the making and rigging of boats. There are sewing for the dolls and furnishing a doll's house. There are crafts of many kinds for both boys and girls, the expression of some talent like painting, drawing, modeling, and always that constant treasure of winter and summer—stories to be told and books to be read or to have read aloud.

For children up to 10 years our booklet called "The Littlest Bookshelf," which contains names and descriptions of books will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

CHILD'S DRESS.

Small children are always interested in their clothes, and this dress will surely appeal to any child fortunate enough to have one like it. The brief bodice is cut in one with the front panel of the skirt, and the side front skirt sections and back section are circular. The double collar, finished with a bow with long ends, is a pretty idea. Linen, dotted swiss, gingham, organdie, or any of the usual wash materials may be used.

The pattern, 3108, comes in sizes 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yards of 32 inch contrasting and 1 yard of ribbon.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Vast acreages of vegetable plantings throughout the Chicago area already are finding a ready demand for fresh local garden products in Chicago stores and along roadsides where growers have "hung up the shingle" or erected stands.

A word of caution about grading this product and securing better prices for quality goods has been issued by J. W. Lloyd, veteran chief in olericulture at the Illinois college of agriculture.

Prof. Lloyd is the author of that trite rule in marketing of garden produce: "One good tomato is worth more on the market than a good one and a bad one together." Too many gardeners send unmarketable produce to market and they suffer heavy penalties financially, he says.

"Too many tomatoes are sent to market that are not really marketable," he declares. "What is worse, they usually are mixed with the marketable stock and thus seriously interfere with the sale of the good tomatoes.

"Some people persist in hauling or shipping to market nearly all the tomatoes they pick, regardless of the fact that many are misshapen, small, badly cracked or even leaking, and then wonder why the price of tomatoes is low."

How to SUNBATHE HEALTHFULLY AND avoid SUNBURN

1 In the beginning, expose yourself to direct sun-rays for a short time—until your skin has become accustomed to the sun. In small doses the sun refreshes and benefits. In large doses it burns.

2 To have a safe, comfortable sunbath never expose your skin to the sun while it is wet.

3 While nothing in the world will positively prevent a burn if you expose yourself carelessly, you can avoid an ordinary burn and lessen a bad burn by sunbathing with the skin dried off and protected with an application of Nivea Creme before and during exposure. This precaution will assure you a fresh, healthy and invigorated skin.

4 When you have not taken these precautions and a sunburn or skin dryness develops after exposure, apply Nivea Creme—it will quickly soothe and cool your skin.

5 Druggists, department stores and chain stores will supply you with Nivea Creme.

Frances Wood, C. Fentress Jr. Are Engaged

BY THALIA

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert [illegible] Wood of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter Frances to Calvin Fentress Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress of Hubbard Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis of 1415 Lake street and Birchwood farm at Palos Springs, Mich., announce the engagement of their daughter Emily to Nathaniel A. Owings, son of Mrs. Eva M. Owings of Evanston, formerly of Indianapolis.

Frances Wood's engagement follows hard on the heels of the wedding last October of her sister, the former Miss Sarah Wood, to James Roland Fentress. Miss Frances was graduated in Cgents in 1929 and made her debut the following fall. Mr. Fentress was graduated from the Berkshire school and attended Princeton university.

Because so many of her close friends are away for the summer Miss Wood is not giving a party to announce her engagement. The wedding will be in early October. The bride-to-be and her sisters, Mrs. Addison Bell and Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis (Anne Wood), are prominent and popular among the young people of the north shore, so her wedding undoubtedly will be preceded by much entertaining for herself and her fiancé.

Miss Otis was graduated from Principia in 1924, and spent the following year at Miss Wickham's school in New York City. She made her debut in the fall of 1925, and has been active and popular in the younger social activities. She has devoted much of her time to the study of American Indians.

Mr. Fentress is a graduate of Cornell university, the college of architecture, class of 1927. At present he is the development supervisor of the architectural division of the 1933 Chicago World's Fair.

Miss Otis and her parents are at their summer home at Harbor Springs, and Mr. Owings is to be their guest over the Fourth of July week-end.

BRIDE

MRS. WELDON P. DANIELS.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Howe Welch of 332 North Elmwood avenue announce the marriage on June 19 of their daughter, Margaret, to Weldon Power Daniels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Daniels of Oak Park.

Rosamond Moore Visiting Ezra J. Warners, Fiance's Parents.

Miss Rosamond Moore, whose engagement to Ezra J. Warner Jr. was announced a month ago, has come on from New York for a few weeks' visit with her fiancé and his parents, the Ezra J. Warners, in Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Warner are giving a dance for Miss Moore this evening. There will be about 100 guests, and if the weather remains pleasant there'll be dancing in the garden as well as indoors. Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dick (Jane Warner) are to be hosts at a dinner beforehand. Several other parties are planned for Miss Moore during her stay here, among them a dinner to be given by Hoyt Smith next Wednesday evening at Knollwood.

Visitors and voyagers—Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hollis are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Payson at their summer place at Hyannisport on Cape Cod for a week. . . . Miss Mary S. Nixon, principal of the Florentine School for Girls, who is back in Chicago after a two years' absence, is staying at the Ambassador East, and is to spend the Fourth of July week-end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ryerson at Lake Geneva. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brace Patteu of Lake Forest and their youngsters departed on Tuesday for a motor trip to Canada, to be away until Aug. 1. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Emerson and their little girl, Joan, have gone to visit Mrs. Emerson senior at her camp at Lake Placid (Joan is to stay all summer, but her parents are to return in a fortnight).

Alken Polo Team Arrives Next Wednesday for Practice.

Polo—The Alken Polo team is to arrive next Wednesday to have a bit of practice before their first game with the Santa Paula team of Argentina on the 11th. Mrs. Howard Linn is entertaining for lunch the day of their arrival so that they may meet their Lake Forest hosts and also the members of their opposing team.

The Burt A. Massee household had an interesting and unexpected visitor the other day. A hot and apparently exhausted carrier pigeon walked into the lobby of the 209 Lake Shore drive building, and the doorman intrusted it to the care of Jonnie Massee. The bird had several bands and numerous numbers attached to its foot, and looked pretty important, so inquiries were made as to where to report the wanderer's whereabouts while it reposed comfortably in a bathtub.

The numbering on one band, Mrs. Massee was told, indicated that the pigeon was in a race, and there was lettering on another band showing that it had come from or was going to Cleveland. In the morning when the pigeon seemed spry again the window was opened, he hopped on to the sill, took a good look all around as though to get his bearings, and then wheeled swiftly and surely out over the lake. Mrs. Massee's ornithological informant also told her that the pigeon evidently was pretty well tuckered out or he never would have given up in a race.

The Massees have departed to visit the Neil C. Wards, who are at their camp at Batchawana bay in Ontario, Canada, for the summer.

This and That About Summer Plans, Visiting—

Jots—Mrs. Joseph B. Long is to depart eastward next Monday to occupy the Princess Hohenlohe's place on Long Island that she has let for the summer. . . . Mrs. Benjamin F. Taylor of the Ambassador East is visiting her son Stanley Taylor at his ranch near Tucson, Arizona . . . the Orville Taylors plan to make short stays through the summer at Lake Wauwasee, Ind., where Mrs. Taylor's sister has a summer place. . . . Miss Mabel Linn has been here from the east and has been visiting Mrs. Charles W. Hubbard in Winnetka and also her brother and sister-in-law, the Howard Linns.

The Lake Forest Garden club is to hold an Institute of Garden Design from Tuesday until Friday of next week under the chairmanship of Mrs. George W. Blossom Jr. Ralph Griswold of Pittsburgh, member of the American academy at Rome, is to lecture on each of the four mornings at the Gorton school. After luncheon the members will visit gardens to study illustrations of Mr. Griswold's subjects.

On Wednesday at the same hours subjects will be "Dwellers in the Far North" and "Plant and Animal Life of Long Ago," and on Friday "Textiles" and "Sea Life." On Tuesday and Thursday there will be general tours of the museum.

Austrian Noble Writes Drama About Columbus

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, July 2. — Archduke Francis Joseph of Hapsburg, son of the Archduke Joseph, has scored a success with his historical drama, "Columbus," produced by the National theater at Szeged. Hungarian newspapers point out that the drama should remind Americans of this little, torn up country which they declare is suffering from the injustices of the Trianon treaty by which the Magyars lost two-thirds of their country. The archduke, who is 36, is married to Anna, duchess of Saxony, and has three daughters.

Measuring the greatness of CHICAGO

CHICAGO could have no better assurance of a constructive solution to its problems than its present administration.

▼ DURING the many years he has held office, problems as knotty as those existing today have speedily yielded to the capable hands and the able executive talents of Mayor Anton J. Cermak.

▼ CHARACTERISTIC of his forthright method is the manner in which Mayor Cermak has selected his cabinet. To read its roster is to recognize that no considerations save uprightness, ability, and expert knowledge influenced his judgment.

▼ NOT LEAST important of the offices he had to fill was that of the City Sealer . . . whose task it is to see that you get an honest pound of beefsteak, a whole gallon of gasoline, and a full ton of coal or coke. Mayor Cermak's pro-tem appointee for this post is one who nearly a quarter of a century ago held the Portfolio under two Mayors and by his capable and faithful performance of his duties established a record of efficiency in that office which has never been surpassed. That man is Joe Grein. None recognizes more thoroughly the importance of his task than the Chicago Coal Merchants Association.

▼ SINCE its inception a quarter century ago it has striven to protect the buyer of fuel. Years ago it sponsored laws to assure the honest weight of every ton of coal you buy. It helped to write a statute into the municipal code to make sure that you get the grade of coal you pay for unadulterated with cheaper kinds.

▼ IT went even further, publishing a guarantee that every ton of coal or coke delivered by any one of its 237 members weighs the full 2,000 pounds. These members sell approximately 95% of the coal delivered to residences in Chicago and the outlying territories served by them.

▼ THEY congratulate Mayor Cermak on his City Sealer. They heartily welcome his aid, and hope that their long effort will lighten some of his duties. And they pledge their continued co-operation in seeing that Chicago fuel buyers get all they pay for.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., July 2.—It doesn't seem possible, but the Cubs and Phillies hooked up in a swell pitching battle this afternoon which went 11 innings before Bob Smith and associate Cubs gained a 2 to 1 verdict over Ray Benge and associate Phillies.

Charley Grimm, who had singled with one out, scored on Cuyler's single after two were out in the 11th to bring home the laurel wreath.

In view of the fact that the three games of the series included 11 to 10 and 10 to 9 victories for the Phils, and a 14 to 3 win for the Cubs, the air tight performance was indeed refreshing, as a spectacle and also because it gave the Cubs an even break in the series. It also was good for the nerves of Bob Smith, who on June 19 lost to the Giants 3 to 0 because his mates could only two hits off Carl Hubbell of them, on last Sunday, had a potential 3 to 0 win thrown into a Boston setback law tie because his support cracked behind him in the eighth.

Smith Cubs' Best Pitcher.

Today's victory was Smith's eighth of the year, and established him as the Cubs' winningest pitcher by a margin of two games.

The win enabled the Cubs to start home tonight 4½ games out of first place, the same span they were trailing the Cards when they left home on June 16.

The Cubs and Cincinnati Reds tonight ate on a special which will get them in Chicago late tomorrow afternoon. They will play each other in morning and afternoon games on the Fourth.

In the invasion just ended the Cubs won seven, lost nine and tied one. In the east this year they have won six and lost 12. Their next eastern trip will be in August.

Cubs Lead in First, 1-0.

The Cubs came out of the first inning in possession of a 1 to 0 lead. English singled with one down and moved when D. Taylor's drive bounced over Brickell's head for a triple. Wilson walked. Then Bell fouled to McCurdy. Dr. Taylor and Wilson attempted a double steal, but McCurdy made a throw to second and had Taylor trapped between third and home, only to lose him on a bad throw in the attempted run down. When the play was over, Taylor was back at third and Wilson on second, where they died when Benge fanned Hemsley.

Bartell led off the Philly fifth with a single to right. Benge attempted a sacrifice, but forced Mallon. Brickell in the third time refused to be put out, and walked. Bartell died to Wilson, but Klein slashed a single along the right foul line and Benge came home with tying run.

In the Cub sixth Bell doubled with one out, but died on second when Hemsley and Grimm flied out.

Cubs Fill Bases in Ninth.

And here's the detail of the Cub rally in the first of the ninth: Bell led off with a single to center. Hemsley batted and both he and Bell were safe when Whitney made a low throw to first. The runners moved up on Benge's sacrifice. Hornsby batted for Smith and was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Smith popped to Mallon, and after taking two great swings at Benge's first two pitches. Taylor fouled to Friberg for the third out. The Phils went out in order in their half of the ninth.

Wilson doubled with two out in the tenth, but Bell, who hit safely his two previous times up, furnished the third out with a fly to Brickell.

Cuyler Drives in Grimm.

Grimm singled to center with one out in the eleventh. Grimm reached second and Hornsby first when Mallon fumbled Hornsby's grounder. Grimm went to third while Smith was forcing Hornsby in what entailed a nice play by Mallon. Then Cuyler singled to right, scoring Grimm with the winning run. The ball got away from Klein for a few feet, and in the confusion that followed Cuyler was out, Klein to Bartell to Mallon to Friberg.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 2.—The clouded title of heavyweight champion of the world will go into competition tomorrow evening in a fight between Max Schmeling, the present holder, and Willie Stribling of Georgia in the great new municipal stadium of Cleveland. The bout will be of fifteen rounds or less and the gate receipts, notwithstanding an elaborate and determined ballyhoo, are not likely to pass $300,000, as against earlier estimates of $400,000.

The fact that Jack Sharkey beat Stribling and lost to Schmeling only by one erratic foul after punching him savagely and with impunity for three rounds naturally detracts from the dignity of this prize fight. The further fact that the Sharkey-Schmeling fight was designated as a heavyweight championship bout by the New York prize fight commission in payment of a political obligation and without regard for the realities further beclouds the championship pretensions of the present affair.

Max Has Had 50 Fights.

Schmeling, a German with a vague facial resemblance to Jack Dempsey, is 25 years old now and claims to have had about 50 fights. Most of his opponents were German boys, however, and novices in a land where fist fighting was a novelty. His American record consists principally of a decision over a common journeyman named Joe Sekyra, a knockout over Johnny Risko, and a decision over Paulino Uzcudun, both of them passed at the time, and his negative victory over Sharkey.

Stribling has been fighting about ten years and is notoriously bashful when he is fighting first class men in important bouts. He has won about 100 fights by knockouts, but the word mediocre would flatter all but a few of his victims. Against Tommy Loughran, Paul Berlenbach and Sharkey he showed the timidity that now enters into the probabilities to weigh against his obvious superiority over Schmeling in experience, ring guile and practical boxing skill.

America's Handsomest Athlete.

He is 26 years old, a daring, even reckless aviator, a magnificent physical specimen, the handsomest professional athlete of his time and, counting his childhood experience as a boxer of bouts against his younger brother, Herbert, when the family were touring the United States and Europe, he has entered the ring to put up his hands for pay more than a thousand times. The Stribling family were acrobats in vaudeville when the two boys were children and they used to

Four Pros Shoot Par 71 to Tie for Lead in U. S. Open

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Toledo, O., July 2.—The thirty-fifth United States Open Golf tournament, being played at the Inverness club here, became what a gallery wag called the "wide open" at the conclusion of the first round of 18 holes today, when four professionals tied for the leadership, another held second place, seven shared third, another seven were tied for fourth, and fourteen others were deadlocked in fifth position.

AL ESPINOSA.

The leaders, each of whom shot a par 71, were Mortie Dutra of Long Beach, Cal.; Charles Guest of Deal, N. J.; Eddie Williams of Cleveland, O., and Herman Barron of Port Chester, N. Y. They are comparative strangers in a tournament of the open's importance, and they'll have to keep hitting par from now on, because the headmen of golf are right behind them. There are 54 holes more to play. Eighteen of these will be disposed of tomorrow with the low 60 scorers at the end of the first 36 holes entering the 36 hole final Saturday.

Espinosa Is Second.

The solitary tenant of second place is Al Espinosa of Chicago, who went around in 72. Al led the country's qualifiers for the open with a record score of 135. On his first nine holes, excepting for the initial one, on which his second shot was short, he played strictly par golf. His second shot on the eleventh landed six feet from the pin and he holed out for a birdie three. He had a birdie on the short thirteenth, but was over par on the fifteenth and seventeenth, landing in the rough both times.

The seven tied for third, all with 73's, includes Frank Walsh, who used to caddy at Olympia Fields, and is now professional at the Bryn Mawr club near Chicago; Fred Robson and Willie Davies of the British Ryder cup team, the only foreign players of the day to make a good showing; Joe Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y.; Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn.; MacDonald Smith of New York, and Henry Ciuci of Stratford, Conn.

Hagen Shoots 74.

The second group of seven, all tied at 74, includes names that would be important in any golf tournament. There are Walter Hagen, Bobby Cruikshank, and Gene Sarazen. Among the

Thomas Holds Boston; Sox Win, 2 to 0

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Tommy Thomas came through yesterday in reply to a demand for some commendable reading notices in the public prints. He did this with a brilliant exhibition in which Boston's Red Sox, who for two days have been a nuisance, were able to produce only three hits. Meanwhile his White Hosed companions did a large amount of hitting against Bob Kline, the 20 year old 225 pound school boy, but because the hits were well scattered the south siders had to be content with victory by the margin of 2 to 0.

Thomas, in attaining his second whitewash of the season, really was a bit better than a three hit performer. Only one of the hits was unsullied. That was a line drive single to center by Earl Webb with two out in the seventh. The two others were mere scratches, one a pop fly which Reynolds and Kerr dodged in the fourth, and the other a grounder to short which Sweeney beat out in the ninth. The visitors got only one man to second.

Mr. Kline Is Lucky.

Kline, who in his limited big league career had rolled up four wins without a jolt, was both lucky and unlucky while assimilating his maiden setback. Dame Fortune favored him by letting him escape with only two runs resulting from ten hits, four of them for extra bases. The fickle dame made amends for this show of favoritism by twice giving the Chicagoans fielding breaks which helped them score.

As something strictly new in the way of lineups, Boss Bush came through with an assortment of talent which included Billy Sullivan Jr., son of the old catcher. The ex-collegian was put through the test as a third baseman, the experiment being made because of Jeffries' inability to thump the ball. Sullivan had a little trouble getting the range on throws to first but his lack of aim caused no trouble. As a batter he produced one neat bunt and one single.

The Chicagoans started off with a run in the first chapter because of some help provided by Catcher Berry. Blue led off with a single in right and went to second on a passed ball. Sullivan laid down a sacrifice bunt. Blue tore home on a hit to right center by Reynolds, who thus broke a slump involving 12 trips to the plate.

Wild Throw Helps.

Another home performer slipped over the plate in the fourth, making the score 2 to 0. This tally also was given aid by the enemy. After Appling had lined to short, Kerr poked a slow bounder to the right of Kline. The big boy was a bit slow about getting over to the ball and when he threw it was too late to prevent Kerr from getting a hit. In addition the throw went wild, Kerr going to second. He counted when Grube doubled off the left field wall.

The White Sox frittered away possible runs in the sixth and seventh. In the former, Blue doubled to left but two were gone and Sullivan was of no help. The seventh was even more of a disappointment. Reynolds led off with a triple to right center. He was quite confident that somebody would provide him with the means to reach home. They didn't as Fonseca was thrown out by Rhyne, Simons grounded to Miller, and Appling bounced to short.

The Sox can rest up today and if they need any mental exercise they can get it by trying to figure out just why they won only five while losing 12 during the home stay against the eastern invaders. Five of these 12 jolts were administered by the Yankees.

Howdy, Tommy

STRIBLING PLANS FURIOUS ATTACK IN EARLY ROUNDS

After That Circumstances Will Govern Challenger.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 2.—With critics agreed that tactics and determination will decide tomorrow night's championship fight, I can say with authority that Young Stribling plans an aggressive attack in the early rounds. Because Max Schmeling is notoriously easy to hit and because Stribling has blows of knockout possibilities when he uses them, the Georgian's camp followers expect an early ending and transfer of the title.

In fact, several close friends of the Striblings are seeking wagers on a knockout with correspondingly longer odds, rather than the 6 to 5 quotations with Stribling favorite which prevails in what title betting has been recorded. What will happen after the first four or five rounds is what concerns boxing writers. Even those who pick Schmeling to win, and there has been a recent veering in that direction, concede the early rounds to the challenger.

Circumstances to Govern.

But they think Max will take all Will has to offer, just as he did against Jack Sharkey, and still be looking for more. They expect Stribling to become discouraged when his best blows do not stop the German. From that point, they argue, Max will wear down his opponent by the very doggedness of his crowding in and eventually place in Stribling's record the first knockout of the latter's career. In my opinion, Stribling's tactics, if the battle goes over five rounds will be governed by circumstances.

If Max, by any chance, has been weakened or is in distress, the attack will continue in hope of a soporific punch. If Schmeling is taking it well, W. L. undoubtedly will try to outpoint his rival and add to his point lead, if he has a point lead. I do not credit the heralded advance plan of five fast first rounds, then coasting for five rounds, with a fast finish in the last five. That very thing may take place and no doubt has been considered, but events happening in the stadium arena will determine rather than what is planned weeks ahead.

Psychology Favors Max.

Now, what will Max be doing all this time? It may seem strange to readers to find critics devoting most of their discussion to Stribling, challenger, rather than to Schmeling, champion. That is because the Georgian is more experienced, ringwise from ten years in the ring and more skilful in his boxing. Schmeling has one purpose—to get where he can hit and then to hit.

Schmeling supporters have a psychological reason to advance for Max's expected victory. It is the German's single fixedness of purpose. His ambition is to continue as world champion. Outside of minor amusements he has no other interests. They contrast this with Stribling's love of flying, motoring, racing, baseball, ad infinitum. They think the bout to Stribling is just another fight, although his most important, and look for him to crack or become cautious, while Max is plodding along with his one idea of knocking out this present obstacle in his title path.

Stribling's Last Chance.

These contrasts are what cause such wide difference of opinion among writers, who admit Stribling has all the tangible advantages in advance of the bout. Certainly the Striblings know what critics think, for nearly every newspaperman in the country has written about Stribling caution and that Pa and Ma might advise him not to get hurt.

So if Stribling does not win he is not likely to get another shot at premier honors. In fact, many will doubt whether he has true championship caliber. Schmeling, if defeated, may fight his way up again to another opportunity. If he wins, his

Tribune Writers Pick Stribling to Defeat Champion

Arch Ward—Stribling will be the heavyweight champion of the world by 11 o'clock Friday night. He will win inside of ten rounds. Schmeling showed staying power against Sharkey, but he can't stand up under the kind of an attack Stribling used to stop Von Porat.

Westbrook Pegler—Willie Stribling is a better boxer than Max Schmeling. He has had about six fights to Schmeling's one without being hurt. Schmeling has fought twice in two years. He showed the need of experience in his bout with Sharkey a year ago. He excels Stribling only in his willingness to stand up to a beating. Physically they are an even match. Willie notoriously clinches, goes away when he is being punched. Schmeling is the better puncher. Because of Willie's superior experience and skill, I pick him to win on points. For once in an important fight, with the title and a great fortune to win, Willie should be willing to stand and fight, in violation of a life-long custom.

Harvey Woodruff—Ring experience and greater boxing skill impel one to pick Young Stribling as the class against Schmeling, either by knockout or decision. Yet that choice is made with the same reservations with which one backs a Derby favorite—fear of what may happen with a known strong finisher.

Wilfrid Smith—Will Stribling will be the next heavyweight champion of the world. Experienced, physically fit and a strong two-handed puncher, he can beat Max Schmeling in 15 rounds on points or stop him sooner if he elects to take the chance this style of fighting entails.

Future of Boxing Depends on How Well Max and W. L. Fight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., July 2.—The future of boxing—its popularity and box office appeal—depends in no small measure on the kind of bout Max Schmeling and Willie Stribling put up tomorrow night for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Heavyweight prize fighting has almost gone to seed since the passing of Jack Dempsey. The scarcity of personalities combined with too frequent fouls, poor bouts, and excessive prices have turned away most of the game's old following. A whirlwind match tomorrow night with a decisive ending, preferably a knockout, might revitalize the sport. Particularly if the winner comes back in the fall to meet Jack Sharkey, Mickey Walker or some other ranking battler.

Dempsey Was Ideal Champ.

Both Schmeling and Stribling tonight appear anxious to demonstrate their right to the championship of a division rich in blustery romance and truculent tradition. With the possible exceptions of Jess Willard and Gene Tunney, all of the ring monarchs have been colorful figures—Corbett with his revolutionary style, Fitzsimmons with a freak physique and his powerful hitting, Jeffries with his inexhaustible stamina, and Johnson with his defensive skill and offensive aggressiveness.

And who has forgotten Dempsey, a desperado in action if there ever was one? Jack, perhaps, combined better than any of his predecessors the characteristics one expects to find in a heavyweight champion. He ignored rules and referees, but was willing that the other fellow should do the same. Once the bell sent him out of his corner he wanted no restraining laws or refining influences. His objective was a knockout, and the sooner the better.

This then is the background for the Schmeling-Stribling battle, a setting which, for some reason hard to explain, fires the imagination of a civilized country far more than any other branch of athletics.

It was in this same state, about 100 miles from tomorrow's battleground, that modern boxing, with its tremendous crowds and million dollar gates was born. That hot afternoon 12 years ago when Dempsey almost tore the giant Willard limb from limb at Toledo ushered in a new era in the history of a primitive sport. It is a coincidence that it is up to Ohio to give to the game another fighter capable of carrying on with the old gusto.

Risko Bout Made Max.

Probably for the first time boxing has a heavyweight champion who has yet to prove he is a great fighter. Schmeling was presented with the title last summer because Jack Sharkey, in a heedless flurry, hit him out of bounds in a match at Yankee stadium, designated by the governing boards as a test of championship class.

Schmeling's greatest victory was his knockout of Johnny Risko, one of boxing's tough boys. His right cross in

MINOTAUR COMES BACK TO CAPTURE WABASH PURSE

BY FRENCH LANE.

It has been a long time since the blue and green racing jacket of John R. Thompson has been carried to victory on a Chicago track. When Minotaur wasn't winning the Thompson turf establishment was in the background, for Minotaur is the Thompson racing stable.

It was a year ago last May when Minotaur last won. It happened at Jamaica in New York. Since then turf folks regarded him as a "has been."

When he paraded out for the Wabash handicap at Arlington yesterday against such stalwarts as Hot Toddy, Ned O., Morsel, Pansy Walker, and Sister Zoe, folks thought he was still in the midst of that long losing streak. They wouldn't give him a tumble, even though he was coupled with Dowagiac in the betting, both horses being in the care of Valentine Crane.

Rewards His Backers Well.

But Minotaur proved before the mile struggle ended that he is back in the same fine running condition which made him quite famous as a 3 year old two summers ago. In midstretch he began running like Minotaur ran in all the 1929 three year old specials. He moved up past one horse after another. In the last strides he flew on past Hot Toddy, then withstood a desperate challenge from Sister Zoe to win by a good long neck.

The few who remembered his noble deeds of previous years and who bought a ticket on him continued to cheer long after Minotaur had been unsaddled and led away. For after running his mile in 1:38 1-5, which isn't particularly fast time at Arlington, Minotaur paid off in the mutuels at $27.34 to win, $9.86 to place, and $6.80 to show. Sister Zoe was $6.02 to place and $3.82 to show in the mutuels. Morsel, also running at 4 very lively clip in the stretch, landed third money and paid $4.80 to show.

Early Lead Too Strenuous.

Ned O. and Hot Toddy were the disappointments. They flattered their backers by galloping away from the others as the battle started. All the way down the back stretch they fought it out. It is possible their fight for the lead was a little too strenuous.

Not Toddy, the holder of the world's record at a mile and an eighth, found his younger rivals going too fast for him midway in the stretch. He dropped back out of the picture. Minotaur kept going long enough to get the decision, but he couldn't have withstood the late drive of Sister Zoe much longer.

Knight Commander, never far from the pace, came to the outside of Cheers at the stretch turn and, responding to the urging of Chas. Clarke, took command of the latter quickly, raced Wayne into submission but could not withstand challenge of the winner. Flag Time met with some interference around stretch turn, but continued gamely and was going well at the end. Bella Charla collared early speed and may have needed more room. Annan stepped badly. Minotaur moved up strongly on the outside approaching the far turn and after bearing in roundings for home, was taken up by Wimmer to pull up Sister Zoe. Sister Zoe, in close quarter, got in the front entering the stretch and lasted to hold Sister Zoe. Latter came with a great burst of speed in the final furlong and was gaining rapidly at the end. Morsel saved ground where possible and stood a hard stretch drive gamely to finish close up. Hot Toddy, in the run home, set the early pace but tired approaching the final bend. *Field. Time, :23 2-5, :47 2-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:40. Two dollar mutuels paid: Bob's Play, $20.08 straight, $6.14 place, $5.34 show; Englewood, $11.58 place, $8.24 show; Chas. Clarke, $14.58 show. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post at 5:15. At post 3 minutes. Trained by W. E. Caskey jr.

Bob's Play raced into contending position in the first quarter and, taking a good lead after leaving the back stretch, held away to the finish to win under urging. Englewood came fast in the last half mile and was gaining on winner at finish. Chas. Clarke saved ground around stretch turn to beat the others. Claret showed good early speed, but could not keep up. St. Agnes tired badly after racing in a contending position for the first half mile. Inheritor also weakened after displaying early speed.

Gallant Knight, champion of the western turf, is ready for his engagement in the Stars and Stripes handicap Saturday afternoon. He proved as much yesterday when he indicated some horse will have to run very fast to trim him in the mile and an eighth dash, which will net the winner about $30,000.

Appearing during the early morning work hours, he romped a mile and an eighth in 1:53 2-5 and was just galloping at the finish. He gave the impression that he was playing all the way and didn't show a sign of distress. Jockey Charley Allen has been engaged to ride him.

Besides Mike Hall, Paul Bunyan, Lady Broadcast and Satin Spar, horses Gallant Knight has been beating all spring, he will have plenty of fresh competition in the Stars and Stripes. Hot Toddy, The Nut, Flucky Play, Ned O, Ala Carte, Dowagiac, Pansy Walker and Sidney Grant are all here to participate. Several others will be in the battle trying to knock the crown off the Knight's brow.

They claim horses even at fashionable Arlington. C. E. Davidson took Cheers from Mrs. Emil Denemark after the running of the fourth race yesterday. It cost him $5,000.

In a communication signed by 160 owners and trainers racing their horses at Arlington, the directors of the Arlington Jockey club were thanked for the fine racing, living and stabling conditions provided the horsemen and their steeds.

When Seven Veils, a three-quarter sister to the famous Anita Peabody, took the lead as the first race started, the crowd thought there was to be another Hertz 2 year old victory hero. But Seven Veils faltered in the stretch and wasn't able to get any part of the purse. Modern Maiden, a Kentucky filly, owned by Hal Price Headley, turned up the winner.

It looked like Jockey Bobby Jones threw away a race when he continually rode Half Day into close quarters in the mile dash, second on the program. While Jones was turning in his bad ride, R. Watson was performing like a Sloan, bringing Albazano, the favorite, home in front.

STRIBLING MEETS SCHMELING FOR CROWN TONIGHT

Jacobs Conforms to Type.

Schmeling's manager is Joe Jacobs, a small, scrawny New York prize fight promoter of the familiar type, suspicious, tricky, schooled under Max [Boo Boo] Hoff, the celebrated sinister character of Philadelphia, and disarmingly frank about what might be called his ethics.

There is a report current in Cleveland that if Stribling should win the title from Schmeling, Jacobs, by prior agreement, will become a silent partner in the ownership of Stribling as a business property. Although such an arrangement might seem scandalous to persons unfamiliar with the business customs of pugilism, it is a common practice, nevertheless. Often a champion refuses to fight an opponent unless the opponent agrees to divide the proceeds of the title with him.

The promoters are the Madison Square Garden firm of Ohio, a dummy subsidiary of the New York Garden. The staff of the New York Garden has been moved to Cleveland some week ago and since then the publicity department has been doing weird things to stimulate interest.

Notorious Mike Jacobs, the New York ticket broker and professional booster for languid shows and contests, has toured the small cities within a wide radius in a car placarded, circus style, with prize fight posters, selling tickets to citizens by hand and placing batches of them with proprietors of cigar stores, barber shops, restaurants, and other local headquarters of the sporting element. Mr. Jacobs is a stockholder in the Garden firm of New York. He is no kin to Joe Jacobs.

Referee's O. K., But Judges?

The appointment of George Blake of Los Angeles, known to pugilism by his highly distinctive title of honest man, to referee the fight, cannot be accepted as complete assurance that the verdict will harmonize with the actual score. Mr. Blake will be only one of three officials, and the character and competence of two judges will be important considerations.

At a conference of the principals this afternoon it was decided to leave it to the discretion of the referee to decide whether, in case of a foul blow, the victim has been injured sufficiently to be disabled, and he may award the decision to the injured party. Before this ruling the referee was without authority to impose any adequate punishment.

Under that patched up state of the rules the fouled fighter was merely given credit for winning the round in which the foul occurred and allowed not more than five minutes to recuperate from a punch that may have disabled him. The miscreant may be disqualified for committing any of the other fouls, but nowadays a referee finds himself reluctant to disqualify a fighter in a bout of such prominence. The sponsors travel long distances, pay high prices and come to the ring with high expectations. When a claim of foul is allowed they feel that the result has been inconclusive and go away with a sense of having been defrauded.

Jacobs No Pal of Stribling's.

Joe Jacobs and the Striblings have been the parties to a picturesque feud of several years' duration. Jacobs and Mike McTigue, then light heavyweight champion, to their home town, Columbus, Ga., to fight Willie when Willie was still a high school boy, and, for safety's sake, imported his own referee from Jersey City, N. J. Stribling appears to have won the fight and Harry Ertle, the imported referee, dutifully awarded the decision to McTigue. For this all members of the northern party were threatened with lynching and chased from the roads to the northward by a vengeful party of indignant Georgians. It does not appear that the Striblings made any effort to deter their friends and neighbors.

Fans Won't Be Crowded.

The Cleveland stadium is built to hold 70,000 customers at a prize fight and there is at present no likelihood that the patrons will be unduly crowded. The prices range from a minimum of $1, formerly $5, to a maximum of $50, and for the occupancy of the latter the usual parties of rich sports, bankers, business executives, and politicians are coming from Chicago, Detroit, and New York.

The list of these, as given out by one of the several publicity offices of the Garden firm, is substantially the same as all the previous lists originally prepared under the direction of Tex Rickard.

There have been some eliminations due to death or bankruptcy, but such hundred names as George F. Getz, Patrick H. Joyce, Sheldon Clark, and Ed Kelly of Chicago, Jim Bush, Matt Brush, Bernard Gimbel, Gene Tunney, John Aylesworth, Will Hays, Rex Cole of New York, and Charlie Hughes and Walter Chrysler of Detroit are still listed.

LEITER AWAITS OFFICIAL BAN; TO MOVE STABLE

Joseph Leiter, millionaire sportsman, was wondering last night just what his status is in the turf world. Saturday's papers told of his being fined $250, suspended pending an inquiry by the stewards, and virtually ruled off the turf by the Arlington Park Jockey club.

Up to a late hour yesterday, however, he had heard nothing from the Arlington stewards, he said, and consequently was in receipt of no official information regarding his eligibility or lack of it. All he knew was what he had seen in the newspapers.

Leiter will move his horses from Arlington to Saratoga, N. Y., about June 10, he said last night. Most of Mr. Leiter stable is now in the east.

Chicago Fight Fans Go by Air, Rail, and Auto

By rail, air and auto, Chicago fight fans are going to Cleveland to see Willie Stribling and Max Schmeling fight for the world's heavyweight championship tonight.

This morning at 9:50 o'clock, the Steuben club's train will steam out of La Salle street station with 50 fight passengers. It will be followed by Sheldon Clark's special over the New York Central lines, which will carry a party of 24 prominent Chicagoans.

Engage Special Plane.

Immediately after the departure of the regular 4 o'clock Chicago to Cleveland airplane, a special section of the National Air Transport division of the United Airlines will speed to Cleveland, leaving the airport at 4:15 o'clock. Fifteen will be abroad.

"Although the depression has failed to keep crowds away from the outstanding sporting events such as the Kentucky Derby and the Indianapolis auto race, reservations did not come near our expectations," a railroad official remarked yesterday. "But, of course, a good number will motor to Cleveland."

Among the Chicagoans leaving yesterday afternoon was George Getz of the Illinois athletic commission. He will be the only member of the commission at the fight

Referee Flies to Fight.

George Blake, manager of Fidel La Barba, coast featherweight fighter, who will referee the fight, arrived in Chicago yesterday morning. He immediately boarded a plane for Cleveland.

Charlie Retzlaff, who will fight Marty Gallagher of Washington, D. C., in one of the preliminary bouts tonight; Al Horan, chief bailiff of the Municipal court, and Jack O'Keefe, manager of Tuffy Griffith, went on Sammy Wolff's special. Harry Sonnenschein, secretary to Mayor Cermak, also was aboard the train.

Title Fight Is Key to Future of Ring Game

he ninth round landed with paralyzing effect. But up to that moment he was losing on points. If Risko had pulled back his chin a fraction of an inch, he probably would have won the bout and you might have read little about Herr Max thereafter. The German later whipped Paulino Uzcudun, at that time the champion of the cabarets.

It is not Schmeling's fault, however that there have been few contemptuous maulers worthy of a championship consideration. He has defeated everybody they have set up in front of him, and that is all you can ask of any man.

As has happened before, the public has refused to acclaim Max as a real champion. Still there is no definite feeling of resentment against him as there was when Dempsey made the first important defense of his crown against Georges Carpentier. The few blows the Frenchman landed brought thousands to their feet roaring for a knockout. Yet Dempsey gained a stronger grip on the fans than any man since John L. Sullivan's time.

Victory Would Make Max.

If Schmeling is strong enough to win decisively from Stribling, he is entitled to all the honors the ring can bestow. The Georgia aviator unquestionably is the class of American heavyweights. He has had more than 300 professional fights, more than a third of which ended in knockouts. Schmeling has had only about 50 bouts and most of them were fought in Germany against unknown opponents.

Stribling's record is dotted with startling reversals of form. He looked every inch a champion the night he fought a headlong, reckless battle against Otto Von Porat at Chicago stadium, putting away the Norwegian in the first round. A short time later he looked boresome against Tuffy Griffith in the same arena.

Stribling, according to Westbrook Pegler, has developed mud turtle reflexes. Touched on the face, he pulls in his neck and quits fighting.

Kaye Don to Make Attack on Speed Record Sunday

GARDONE, Italy, July 2.—(AP)—Kaye Don, famed British sportsman, will attempt to lower his own world's speed boat record here on Sunday, he said today, after a trial run with his boat, the Miss England.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

TITLE TENURE.

CLEVELAND, O., July 2.—With Champion Max Schmeling and Young Stribling fighting for the world heavyweight championship tomorrow night, let us trace the history of that title from the time the marquis of Queensberry code with larger gloves supplanted the London prize ring rule bouts fought with skin tight gloves and bare knuckles.

Corbett stopped Charlie Mitchell of England in three rounds the following year at Jacksonville, Fla. On March 17, 1897, Corbett succumbed in the eleventh round to the solar plexus blow of Bob Fitzsimmons at Carson City, Nev.

James J. Jeffries, heavier than other contenders, then came along and stopped Fitzsimmons in eleven rounds at Coney Island in 1899. Jeff subsequently defeated Fitz in an eight round return bout at San Francisco, obtained a 25 round decision over Tough Tom Sharkey, and knocked out Jim Corbett with a body blow in the 23d round after Gentleman Jim had outpointed him up to the knockout and seemed in a fair way to regain the title he once held.

Jeffries retired in 1905 largely because of lack of formidable opponents. At once confusion ensued such as followed Tunney's retirement. Marvin Hart and Jack Root were matched and the bout was advertised as for the title. Jeffries refereed, but afterward claimed he did not award the title when Hart obtained the decision on a 12 round knockout. That was July 3, 1905, at Reno.

Tommy Burns, a Canadian, then obtained a 20 round decision over Marvin Hart at Los Angeles in 1906 and the following year obtained a similar verdict at Los Angeles over Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, a title claimant.

On Christmas day, 1908, Jack Johnson won from Burns at Sydney, Australia when police stopped the battle in the fourteenth round because the Negro, with greater poundage, reach, and all physical advantages, had his opponent all but helpless. That was the bout the result of which, because of the difference in time, was announced in American newspapers on the morning of the day that it took place in the afternoon.

Johnson moved through an indifferent array of challengers, most of whom he greatly outweighed. Likable personally, his escapades outside the ring brought disfavor and demand for a "white hope." Jeffries was dragged out of retirement for that purpose in 1910, but was only a shadow of his former self, losing by a knockout in fifteen rounds at Reno.

Jess Willard, a fighting behemoth, took the title from Johnson at Havanna, Cuba, April 15, 1915, by a knockout in 26 rounds. Johnson had passed his prime.

Willard held the crown until July 4, 1919, when Jack Dempsey stopped him in three rounds, at Toledo, O., with the thermometer over 100. Willard was ring rusty from inaction and on the floor practically helpless when the bell sounded at the end of the first round.

Dempsey, in turn, defended his title successfully against Billy Miske, Bill Brennan, Georges Carpentier of France, Tommy Gibbons, and Luis Firpo of Argentina.

Meanwhile Gene Tunney was moving up through the ranks, and the pair were matched to meet in Philadelphia on Sept. 23, 1926. Tunney was an elusive target and Dempsey's punches lacked their one-time sting, so he took a thorough but fame pommelling.

This Philadelphia bout drew nearly $2,000,000, the greatest purse up to that time. So Dempsey, after a comeback knockout of Jack Sharkey in seven rounds in New York, again was matched against Tunney in Chicago on Sept. 22, 1927. This bout established an all time gate record of $2,658,660. How near the Manassa mauler came to regaining his crown, the famous "long count," Tunney's subsequent ring record and retirement, are recent history.

Again the title was without a holder. This hiatus ended when Max Schmeling won in the fourth round on a foul from Jack Sharkey in New York on June 12, 1930.

Phelps Gives McFarland a Test Tonight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Owen Phelps, Phoenix, Ariz., light heavyweight, whose every punch in the ring is unorthodox, yet who continues to win, meets Mickey McFarland tonight at the Densmark stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. McFarland has had quite a string of victories, and if he gets past the Arizona jumping jack, he wants a battle with Maxie Rosenbloom, whom the N. B. A. recently deposed from the 175 pound title.

Billy Cepak will try to bring Rosenbloom here if McFarland wins tonight.

While McFarland has lost only one bout in his last fifteen, and that on a foul to Gary Leach at the Stadium, meeting Phelps is another proposition. Phelps not only whipped Tony Canzela but he holds decisions over Ted Ross, Roy Williams and Clyde Chastain.

Jack Moran vs. Bud Saltis [6].
Joed Finn vs. Mike Loizza [6].
Tony Sanders vs. Billy Keany [4].
Tony Bertucci vs. Mike Farah [4].
Eddie Stewart vs. Vic Morse [4].

Fred Marcotte vs. Howard Hindle.
Gene Weiss vs. Al Stills.
Chris Stamos vs. Roland Mines.
Bud Shannon vs. Ed Lewenstis.
John Rebo vs. Joe Ruhis.
Morris Graff vs. Lynn Thompson.

added experience plus the confidence he already possesses will make him even more formidable for future opponents.

Blake Studies Rules.

Referee George Blake of Los Angeles arrived by plane from Chicago and immediately began a study of the rules of the Cleveland boxing commission, which at first reading seem a bit complicated.

The Striblings deserted their Georgia lake cottage this morning. Pa established headquarters at a downtown hotel with a quiet apartment in reserve for W. L. on the final night before his battle. The challenger spent the afternoon at a picture show, about the only cool place in the city. Showers and cooling breezes are predicted for tonight to chase the mercury down from the height of 110 degrees, which prevailed in the sun this morning.

Schmeling's party motored in from Conneaut Lake Park, Pa., in the late afternoon and claimed its hotel reservations. Both boxers appeared at the weighing in at 8 o'clock.

Scouts Grin at White Water on Last Lap

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Big Falls, Wis., July 2.—Camping in a wilderness country far from house and roads, having their camp drenched by a series of thunderstorms and then shooting one stretch of rapids after another without a single tip-over, the Chicago Boy Scouts, who now are nearing the end of their canoeing and camping trip on the Flambeau river, have run the gamut of typical adventures which the canoeist can experience on this brawling, rough stream.

Tonight the scouts are encamped not far from the big power dam here at Big Falls where the expert swimmers in the crowd are enjoying the deep water swimming. Tomorrow the paddle swingers move down stream for their last march to conclude the trip at Ladysmith.

Yesterday's camp at the mouth of the south fork of the Flambeau climaxed a day of sport and thrills such as these boys had never experienced before on any canoeing or camping trip. For example, by 10:30 in the morning the scouts had seen eighteen deer while paddling around big bends in the stream. At one point the canoe flotilla shot through the fast water, dodged the big rocks and eased into a long quiet pool at a bend in the river and there, in a burned area, four deer stood spellbound at this sight of eleven green canoes drifting past their feeding grounds. For fully three minutes not a word was spoken by the wide eyed scouts as they watched these deer slowly move through the down timber.

But the number of deer observed in any one place was only a minor thrill compared to the porcupine rodeo staged at camp last night. The boys treed a young one, shook him loose from his perch in a dead spruce, lassoed him and then bore the astounded porcupine triumphantly to camp. One of the boys contributed his belt for a leash, and with the porky well strapped up, a parade of this new pet was staged even though it was raining hard at the time. Today dozens of freshly plucked porcupine quills decorated the clothes of the Scouts because the animal lost a lot of his armor before he was turned loose unharmed this morning.

FREAK BASEBALL HAPPENINGS
by Irving Vaughan

NUMEROUS players lay claim to hitting the shortest home run on record in the major league, but probably none can tie the one for which Norman McMillan, then the Cubs' third baseman, was responsible during the 1929 race, when the Bruins won the pennant. The ball didn't travel more than 60 feet behind third base. But it won a game.

On the afternoon of Aug. 26, 1929, about 30,000 at Wrigley field had been decidedly uncomfortable for seven and one-half innings. The Reds had sponsored some timely hitting against Charley Root and Eppa Rixey had stopped the Cubs cold. Going into the last of the eighth the score was 5 to 2 in favor of the Reds. A few minutes later the Cubs had staged a seven run rally, four of them because of McMillan's home run.

This big eighth began with a walk to Zach Taylor, who stepped aside to let Moore run for him. Stephenson batted for Root and was thrown out. English singled and Moore scored. Heathcote singled and that was all for Rixey. Rube Ehrhardt filled the vacancy and things became funnier. Hornsby singled to score English. Wilson singled and Heathcote carried home the tying run. A walk to Cuyler filled the bases. Tolson forced Hornsby and McMillan was next.

When it became evident that the Cubs were at least going to tie the score, McCarthy hurried Pitcher Penner to the bull pen. The young man ran from the dugout and on his way he threw down his leather jacket. It dropped close to the stand, about 60 feet behind third base.

McMillan drove a hit past third that was at least a double. The ball bounded past the base, turned suddenly toward the stand and finally rolled into the drain gutter. Swanson, Cincinnati's left fielder, raced over to retrieve it. He looked along the gutter, but it wasn't there. He bent on his knees and peeked under the steps, covering the gutter at each gate into the stand. No ball in sight anywhere. Finally he picked up Penner's jacket, shook it and threw it down. The ball simply had vanished.

Meanwhile Wilson, Cuyler and Tolson were tearing plateward. McMillan, much surprised, kept right on going. The umpires were scratching their heads and other Red players were scurrying over to assist Swanson. Finally McMillan scored. The ball was still missing, so there was nothing to do but forget about it.

With Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. 55 Years.

John H. Wood, for more than 55 years associated with Carson Pirie Scott & Co., resigned yesterday as manager of the company's retail store. He will continue to act in an advisory position, according to John T. Pirie, president of the company.

Mr. Wood began working as a boy in the West End Store of Carson Pirie & Co. at Madison and Peoria streets under the tutelage of his uncle, Andrew MacLeish. He worked his way up through various positions until he became manager when the company located at State and Washington streets in 1883. When, in 1904, the company bought the Selfridge store, Mr. Wood helped plan and carry out the undertaking.

Will Keep Directorship.

He was a partner in the concern for many years and later a director, in which capacity he will remain. He will retain an office in the store. He probably will travel, his associates said.

"Mr. Wood's long and successful career as a merchant is known the country over," said Mr. Pirie. "We are glad that, although he is withdrawing from his active duties to a leisure he richly deserves, we shall continue to have the privilege of his counsel in our business."

Discusses His Career.

"My long business association has been a rare one in that it has all been in one organization," Mr. Wood said. "I have had the unique privilege of working in close association with the founders of a great business. While I am relinquishing my active duties, my interest in the welfare of the company remains as great as ever."

EDA L. ERICSON SERVICES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the chapel at Rosehill cemetery for Mrs. Eda L. Ericson, who died on Wednesday night at the home of her son, Melvin B. Ericson, 210 Davis street, Evanston, a son-in-law of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes. Mrs. Ericson was the widow of Otto G. Ericson and was a resident of Chicago for 70 years. She was 76 years old.

Mrs. Ericson is survived by eight children—three daughters, Mrs. Harry Spearman, Miss Ruth Ericson, and Mrs. Dwight S. Derty, and five sons, Elmer O., Norman W., Willard E., Chester F., and Melvin B. Ericson.

Margaret Hough Funeral Services to Be Tomorrow

Solemn requiem services will be held at 9:30 tomorrow at St. Ignatius church for Mrs. Margaret Hough of 6467 Lakewood avenue. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Mrs. Hough died on Wednesday night on her 68th birthday. She was born in County Clare, Ireland, and lived most of her life in Chicago. Surviving her are eight children. They are Joseph M., foreman of the engraving department of THE TRIBUNE; Dr. John F., Dr. Michael F., James, Margaret and Cell Hough, and Mrs. Sue Rogerson and Mrs. Mariellen McDonald.

BABCOCK, DAIRY TEST INVENTOR, DIES SUDDENLY

Hailed as Benefactor of Milk Producers.

Madison, Wis., July 2.—[Special.]—Dr. Stephen Moulton Babcock, 88, who took dairying from an erratic profession and made it a business of scientific accuracy, was found dead in his home here today, a victim of the long heat wave.

Funeral services for Dr. Babcock will be held at 4 p. m. Sunday in the rotunda of the State Historical library.

As a professor of agricultural chemistry at the University of Wisconsin Dr. Babcock was assigned the task of finding some way to determine easily the amount of butter fat in milk. There were methods at the time but they were slow, cumbersome and inaccurate. As a result milk was sold and priced by bulk weight and a high butter fat content brought no more on the market than the milk of low quality.

In 1890 Dr. Babcock announced that he had perfected his milk test and the bulletin carried the significant last line, "The test is not patented."

Dr. Babcock was born at Bridgewater, N. Y., in 1843, studied at Tufts college, Cornell university and the University of Gottingen, later teaching at Cornell. He came to the University of Wisconsin as professor of agricultural chemistry in 1887, spending a lifetime on the problems of milk chemistry.

Attorney Dies of Heart Attack in Courtroom

ATTORNEY WEINMAN.

Fred F. Weinman, 40 years old, an attorney living at 6607 South Albany avenue, collapsed and died yesterday afternoon while listening to a case in Municipal Judge Joseph Schulman's court in the city hall. Physicians attributed his death to a heart attack. Judge Schulman noticed that Attorney Weinman appeared ill and instructed Bailiff Ike Weil to assist him. The attorney collapsed and was carried to the counsel table, where Dr. J. L. Veit of the health department administered a stimulant and ordered the man taken to a hospital. The attorney was dead before an ambulance arrived.

ZIONISTS IN ROW OVER HITLERISM; ADJOURN SESSION

BASEL, Switzerland, July 2.—(AP)—Beri Locker, an American delegate, representing the Jewish Socialist Labor party, tonight precipitated so serious a disturbance at a meeting of the Zionist congress that the session was temporarily adjourned. He charged that the official opposition to the regime of Dr. Chaim Weizmann was following the teachings of Adolf Hitler, German anti-Semite, and revisionist delegates shouted him down.

It was then, says the Jewish Telegraphic agency, that the excitement assumed such proportions that the chairman declared a temporary adjournment. Vladimir Jabotinsky, leader of the Zionist revisionists and an opponent of the policies of Dr. Weizmann, was applauded earlier today when he appealed to the Zionist congress for "one last experiment with Great Britain."

SWIFT UPTURN IN STOCK MARKET BOOMS BUYING

Brokers' Loans Rise 73 Millions.

Independence day will be observed tomorrow by a suspension of trading in all commodity and security exchanges in this country. Banks and business houses will also be closed.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Evidence that the swift upturn of the stock market last month encouraged moderate speculative buying toward the end of June was contained in the weekly report on brokers' loans issued by the federal reserve board last night. The report showed an increase in loans of $73,000,000, which ended the first expansion since the peak ended April 15.

However, the volume of speculative credit still is abnormally low. The present total is only $1,479,000,000, which is $1,740,000,000 below the total of $3,219,000,000 recorded a year ago. Thus, the current total is less than half that of a year ago, which, in turn, was considerably less than half of the peak figure of $6,804,000,000 established on Oct. 3, 1929, or just before the stock market collapsed.

New York Loans Rise.

The bulk of the increase in the last week resulted from the fact that the New York banks expanded their own loans by $64,000,000, while interior banks added $11,000,000 and nonbanking lenders withdrew $2,000,000. But the New York banks still are lending $521,000,000 less than a year ago, while the interior banks are offering $472,000,000 less and nonbanking lenders are furnishing $887,000,000 less.

Another sidelight on the low volume of credit now being used in speculation was afforded in the monthly report of the New York Stock exchange. Collateral borrowings of its members on June 30 totaled only $1,291,324,922, a decline of $43,358,738 during June and a new low record since the exchange began publication of such data in 1926. Member borrowings at the end of June, 1930, totaled $3,727,711,-113, which was well over twice as much as the current borrowings. The previous low level was established at the end of May, this year, when the total was $1,434,683,650. The high record was $8,549,283,979, established at the end of September, 1929.

With the authorities of several states yesterday calling for midyear reports from state banks and with a similar call on national banks expected today, the weekly report of the federal reserve system showed the usual efforts of banks to exhibit a strong position. During the last week the member banks reduced their borrowings from the reserve banks by $47,-000,000, bringing the total down to $730,000,000.

Buy Government Securities.

However, the reserve banks purchased their policy of maintaining easy money rates. While their holdings of bankers' acceptances receded $3,-000,000, they purchased an additional $80,000,000 of government securities, which had the effect of throwing that much additional credit into the open market and nearly canceled the shrinkage of credit resulting from the member banks reducing their loans.

The statement also shows that federal reserve note circulation rose $64,-000,000, while deposits fell $56,990,000. Gold and total reserves increased $29,-000,000 and $21,650,000 respectively. The ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 84.4 per cent, compared with 84.1 per cent last week.

Decline in Borrowings.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its 1½ per cent rediscount rate. Its statement showed a decline of $6,191,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at $27,-000,000. The reserve bank sold $1,495,-000 of bankers' acceptances but bought $16,817,000 of government securities. Deposits dropped $80,085,000. Reserves declined $58,154,000 and the reserve ratio sagged to 89.7 per cent. Compared with 90.4 per cent a week ago.

The Chicago reserve banks reported a decline of $6,851,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $10,222,-000. The reserve bank sold $2,000,000 of bankers' acceptances but bought $3,351,000 of government securities. Deposits expanded $4,640,000. Reserves increased $25,994,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 89.8 per cent compared with 88.5 per cent last week.

Paul Troup Ends 40 Years' Service with Ad Company

Paul V. Troup, for many years head of Lord & Thomas & Logan's media department, has retired, Albert D. Lasker, chairman of the board of the company announces. Commenting on Mr. Troup's retirement, Mr. Lasker said: "Mr. Troup's retirement from active service as the head of our media department marks the inauguration of a retirement policy we have recently adopted whereby members of our organization who have given meritorius service over a period of years become entitled upon request. The something over forty years of service which Mr. Troup has given to our company, and to advertising, unquestionably entitles him to be called dean of advertising agency space buyers."

Stockholders Approve New Bethlehem Bonus System

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 2.—Charles M. Schwab, gray-haired veteran of a hundred battles of the steel industry, today yielded to pressure brought by minority stockholders and presented a modified plan for the Bethlehem Steel corporation under which bonuses paid to executives will be pared down in the future.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB. [Acme Photo.]

At a meeting in Newark stockholders unanimously adopted the new system and attorneys for the minority group, which had brought injunction proceedings to tie up bonus payments totaling $36,000,000, indicated they would end all litigation.

The meeting was quiet and businesslike in contrast to the April 14 session, when Mr. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem board, was heckled in making an eloquent plea for retention of the system he instituted.

Believes Old System Sound.

Mr. Schwab, who has assumed full responsibility for the executives' bonus system in the face of widespread criticism and litigation by minority stockholders retains the power to distribute the bonus.

In presenting the modified plan which he explained was a concession to the stockholders who had criticized the old plan Mr. Schwab said:

"It is not necessary for me to say that the statements that I have made to the stockholders regarding the system have been made with all sincerity. I believe today, as I have always believed, that the system is sound and that it is largely responsible for the success of the corporation.

"At the same time, I must recognize that criticisms of that part of the system which relate to the executive bonuses have been made by a substantial number of stockholders and that such criticisms require careful consideration; and I am now addressing you for the purpose of advising you that they have been carefully considered and of the conclusions reached."

Under the new plan substantial reductions in the aggregate of bonus and salary payments will be made, Mr. Schwab estimated. How much these will be cannot be known until the new system goes into effect, but it is estimated they will average about $1,500,-000 a year.

Matthew Erich, attorney for the minority stockholders' protective committee, and Ralph Holthusen, counsel for Camillus Barent and three others who brought the original injunction proceedings, followed Mr. Schwab on the speaker's stand and said they were entirely satisfied with the new terms.

The vote was taken shortly thereafter and no opposing voices were heard. Of the 1,000,000 preferred shares outstanding, 754,707 were reported in favor of the resolution making the change and 2,401,461 common shares of 3,200,000 outstanding supported it.

Blocks Merger Moves.

The meeting then adjourned until 2 p. m. on Monday, when it is likely that an amendment will be made to the company's by-laws making the change permanent.

Wall street circles regard the action today as distinctly favorable. It was the bonus plan which constituted the chief stumbling block to merger of Bethlehem and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube corporation.

Asked whether today's move would have any favorable effect on future negotiations for a merger, Mr. Schwab declared:

"O, I can't discuss that now."

Summary of Plan.

A summary of the plan submitted by Mr. Schwab follows:

1. An increase in the normal salaries of executive officers, to be fixed by vote of disinterested directors.

2. Calculation of bonus payments after deductions for fixed charges and depreciation, depletion and obsolescence.

3. Fixing of the bonus shares by disinterested directors, with a maximum payment of 2 per cent of net income.

5. Reporting of the total amount of bonuses in the company's annual statement.

6. Payment of bonuses annually at periods fixed by directors.

WITHDRAWALS CLOSE IMMEL STATE BANK; HUMBOLDT MEETING

Owing to heavy withdrawals over a long period of time the Immel State bank, 2800 Belmont avenue, was closed yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson at the request of the board of directors of the bank to protect the interests of the depositors. The capital of the bank was $300,000, surplus $100,000 and deposits $640,000. Deposits as of March 25 were $1,400,-000. John P. Immel was president.

The Noel Securities company, 1601 Milwaukee avenue, yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court. Although neither assets nor liabilities were listed in the petition, Attorney Harry Okin stated liabilities were $600,000, compared with assets of about $900,000. Okin stated that the finances of the company were in good shape so far as the investors' interests are concerned, but that further operation would be hampered by frozen assets.

The Securities company has no connection with the Noel State bank, which closed recently, except that Joseph R. Noel, president of the bank, owns a large amount of stock in the Securities company, according to Okin.

Depositors of the First and Second Humboldt State banks are urged by Knute Nelson, secretary of a depositors' committee, to attend a meeting to be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Wicker Park hall, 2040 West North avenue. Mr. Nelson states that the meeting will consider the proper measures to be taken to best safeguard the interests of the depositors during liquidation of the bank's assets.

Directors of the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank, 111 West Jackson boulevard, have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share payable July 1 to stock of record June 25. M. B. Karman, president, states that earnings of the bank for the first six months of this year were equal to $6.95 a share, compared with $5.91 for the same period last year.

Many Cars Now Running About Due for Scrap Heap

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 7.—As the automobile industry heads into the second half of the year, it finds itself considerably below the recognized normal, from a production and sale viewpoint, even with the elimination from the picture of the record year of 1929.

That year, it is now conceded, had much to do with the present weakness of the motor industry. The buying of cars in all price classes was greater than ever before in the history of the industry, and the buying public was educated by manufacturers and dealers themselves to realize that a car's life was longer than one, or even three years or more.

So, to a no small degree, automobile owners concluded that their automobiles, purchased back in 1929, have sufficient unused mileage to tide them over into another year. But, according to authorities in the automobile industry, there are more cars on the highways of this country today that should be on the scrap heap than at any time in history. As the heap continues to rise, many owners who have not decided to give up their automobiles and return to the sidewalks, are finding their way into the market.

300,000 Cars in June.

With the completion of the June production, it is estimated that the month's total output will be in the close neighborhood of 300,000 units—an output not at all discouraging to either manufacturers or dealers, and compares with an output of 340,000 units in the month of May.

The majority of plants in all price fields enter July with but little change anticipated from that of June. The low priced field continues to show the greatest strength. The industry's largest volume producer showed a slight relaxation of activities during the last two weeks, while its strongest competitor, now leading the industry in volume of output, again maintains its schedule of early June.

The high priced field is holding up much better than expected a few weeks ago. In the medium price field reductions in schedules were comparatively small, the number of concerns continuing at unchanged pace still constituted the majority.

Production for the first half of 1930 constituted more than a third of the entire year's output. An abrupt decline in activity is not expected for the second half of the current year.

See Three Cornered Fight.

Plymouth Motor corporation, a division of Chrysler Motors, started the current month with 4,000 to 5,000 orders held over from June, a condition which has not existed in the automobile industry for many months. New cars are leaving the plant by driveways, rail and lake freighters at the rate of 800 per day. The July schedule will be worked up to about 15,000 units for the United States alone.

This is the line of cars being sent out to do battle with the Ford and Chevrolet lines which will make that particular field a three cornered fight, and will be in full swing by the first of August.

The June figure brought the output of the company for the first six months of this year to 522,232 units, according to W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor company.

Nash Motor company's June shipments were 6,815 new cars, against 1,186 in May. Unfilled orders on July 1 totaled 1,939, with demand for the new models expected to be fully as large as in June.

WHOLESALERS DO 69 BILLIONS OF BUSINESS IN '29

The commerce department announces that wholesale business in the United States during 1929 totaled $69,628,443,061.

The figure was based on a census bureau canvass of every city, town, and rural area in the United States. It compares with approximately $53,-000,000,000 of retail sales during the period.

The department said the difference was accounted for by the fact that the wholesale figures include exports, sales to industrial consumers, and some duplication in handling of goods between producers and retailers and industrial consumers. The retail business, on the other hand, included sales to ultimate consumers only.

The wholesale figure, the department said, almost equaled the gross value of manufactured products and was about six times the gross income from farm production.

The survey showed 169,888 wholesale establishments of all kinds in the country in 1929.

LAKE EXCURSION BUSINESS GAINS, SURVEY SHOWS

Despite prevailing economic conditions this summer's lake excursion business out of the port of Chicago shows evidence of equaling and perhaps exceeding last year's totals, a survey by the Chicago Association of Commerce reveals.

Aided by unusually warm weather, bookings on lake excursion steamers have been heavy, local steamship lines report. This is particularly true of the excursion boats leaving for the Fourth of July holiday, one steamer booking more than 450 reservations and being forced to turn down 200 others who sought to make the trip.

"While the lake excursion business does not get fully started until after the Fourth of July," declared an executive of one of the city's larger steamship lines, "indications to date are that the present season will be fully as good as last year, and perhaps better."

The seven day cruises on the great lakes are, as usual, the most popular, although the shorter, over night trips are coming into considerable favor with vacationists, the Association of Commerce survey shows.

Freight Car Orders Total 972 in June; No Passenger

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 2.—Domestic orders for freight cars in June totaled 972, according to Railway Age, against 46 in May and 794 in June, 1930. No passenger cars were ordered in any of the three comparative months. Locomotive orders during June totaled 2, against 151 in May and 13 in June, 1930. For the first six months of 1930 freight car orders totaled 5,976, against 30,443 in the corresponding 1930 period. Four passenger cars were ordered in the first six months, against 516 in the 1930 period, while locomotive orders totaled 178 and 369 respectively.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 2.—Changes of more than a point were rare in today's price fluctuations on the New York stock exchange. Traders were content to merely mark time against the settlement of the international debt problem and their commitments for the most part were mainly of a tentative nature. The total of transactions for the five hour period barely topped 1,300,000 shares, which set it down as one of the most stagnant markets of the year.

Final figures were generally below those of last night.

There was nothing to stir up any special excitement in the news comings of the day. A fresh slump in copper metal prices to 8¼ cents influenced some selling in the mining department and further reports from Detroit indicating a slackening in automobile output came in for speculative attention, although they did not noticeably affect price movements of the motor shares. Indeed General Motors, Chrysler and one or two others managed to score fractional improvements in the face of the statistics.

Constructive forces continued to pin their hopes to a favorable settlement of the debt question at Paris and the latest dispatches from that center of diplomatic activity were construed in banking circles as most encouraging.

Believe Accord Near.

While no one makes any pretense to special knowledge of the matter, the conviction was strong that the anticipated agreement is near at hand and that it will not depart very radically from the suggestion made by President Hoover. Also, Wall street believes that the announcement will be the signal for another vigorous forward movement of stocks. However, there are those who insist that present prices have sufficiently discounted any news that may come from Paris and that a period of stagnation is ahead, with a definite turn depending very largely on unforseen news developments. At any rate the

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 2.—Tidewater Associated Oil company passed the 30 cents a share semi-annual dividend due at this time. The quarterly $1.50 on the preferred recently was declared. Directors of the Tidewater Oil company voted the regular quarterly $1.25 a share on the preferred stock.

Colonial Finance corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on its preferred stock, the first payment thereon since Nov. 1 last. Connecticut Investment Management corporation declared an initial dividend of 10 cents a share.

Milton Manufacturing company omitted the dividend on its first preferred stock, amounting to $1.50 a share quarterly. Twin Bell Oil Syndicate declared an extra dividend of $10 to all unit holders.

B. F. Sturtevant company deferred action on the $1.50 quarterly dividend due on its common. The Highland National bank of Pittsburgh reduced its quarterly dividend from $3 to $1.50. The Steneck Trust company of Hoboken dividend, previously declared, will not be paid, as the bank is in the hands of state examiners, and the case is similar with the Steneck Title and Mortgage Guaranty company.

Amtorg Places Record Vacuum Equipment Order

New York, July 2.—(AP)—Alco Products, incorporated, a division of The American Locomotive company, yesterday announced the receipt from Amtorg Trading corporation, trading agency for the Russian soviet government, what is described as the largest single order for vacuum equipment ever placed by the oil refining industry. It calls for the design and manufacture of five high vacuum distilling units, with a combined capacity of 30,-000 barrels a day, for processing reduced crude oil. Fabrication will be done at the Dunkirk, N. Y., plant of the American Locomotive company.

Australian House Adopts Debt Conversion Bill

CANBERRA, Australia, July 2.—(AP)—The house of representatives today adopted the debt conversion bill which reduces the interest on internal loans from approximately 5 to 4 per cent.

An amendment to the measure which would have reduced all bond interest to 3 per cent was defeated by a vote of 47 to 9. Holders of Australian internal debt bonds were given three weeks in which to notify the government of their dissent, the bill providing that the conversion shall be voluntary.

KANSAS BLOCKS SALE OF CITIES SERVICE STOCK

Topeka, Kas., July 2.—(AP)—Failure of the Doherty interests to agree to a ten cent gas rate cut in Kansas today led to an order by the state banking department withdrawing permission for sale of Cities Service stock other than the concern's first preferred securities.

Stocks for which approval was withdrawn were the company's common, preferred B, and preferred BB. Carl Newcomer, assistant state bank commissioner, said the latest available information showed "some ten prior liens, totaling approximately $500,000,-000, against assets of the company before Cities Service common would participate."

Mr. Newcomer said this left the stock, "in our judgment, of questionable or worthless value."

Gov. Woodring, after conferences with Cities Service representatives, said they sought for further delay before answering his request for a voluntary rate reduction. This he described as "tantamount" to a refusal and announced the full resources of Kansas would be used "to determine whether this defiant monopoly is bigger than the state."

ACTION OF BOND MARKET IS SEEN AS ENCOURAGING

New York, July 2.—(AP)—The action of the bond market today was encouraging. From the opening to midday trading was quiet and price gains, although fairly general, were so narrow as to afford no reason for enthusiasm. In the afternoon the trading pace accelerated considerably and higher prices appeared throughout the list. Average closing prices for railroad, public utility and industrial issues all showed gains. The foreign group scored irregular gains also.

Issues of such diversified investment standing as American Smelting 5s, Alleghany 5s of 1950, Atchison general 4s, Baltimore and Ohio refunding 5s, Canadian Pacific 4½s of 1960, Chesapeake and Ohio series A 4½s, Erie 5s of 1967, Public Service Electric and Gas 4s of 1971, North American Edison series C 5s, and Shell Union Oil 5s closed higher after large sales.

BANK CLEARINGS FOR JUNE SHOW SHARP DECREASE

Chicago bank clearings showed sharp decreases last month and for the first half of this year as compared with the same periods last year. The decline for the six months was more than $4,000,000,000, reflecting the slump in trade and industry.

As announced by the Chicago Clearing House association, clearings for June were $1,795,200,000, against $1,916,100,000 in May, a decrease of $120,900,000, and comparing with $2,430,800,000 for June, 1930, a decrease for this month of $635,600,000.

For the first six months of 1931 clearings were $11,112,600,000, against $15,126,400,000 in the first half of 1930, a decrease of $4,014,000,000.

Balances for June were $183,300,000, against $254,000,000 in May and $211,-100,000 in June, 1930. Balances for the first half of this year were $1,103,-200,000, as against $1,340,100,000 in the same period of 1930.

Parker Rust-Proof Co. Sales Gain 40 Per Cent

Sales of the Parker Rust-Proof company in the first six months of this year were approximately forty per cent ahead of the same period in 1930 and the company is entering the summer months with prospects for well maintained volume despite any seasonal slackening that may occur, according to an official announcement made today. Each month of this year has been ahead of the corresponding month last year and July orders received are for 100,000 pounds of chemicals.

FRANKLIN COUNTY COAL COMPANY

First Mortgage 7% Serial Gold Bonds Dated January 1, 1924

A Plan and Agreement for the Reorganization of the above bonds has been prepared by the undersigned Committee. Foreclosure proceedings have been instituted by the Trustee of the present Mortgage, and a Decree directing the sale of the property has been entered by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Illinois.

In the judgment of the Committee, it is to the best interests of all holders of these bonds to deposit the same under this Plan and receive the benefits and advantages to which such depositors are entitled.

The Committee has authorized the Depositary to accept additional deposits until July 31, 1931. All holders who have not deposited their bonds to date are advised to do so without delay.

Copies of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization will be mailed, upon request to the Girard Trust Company, Northwest Corner Broad and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia.

LEHMAN CORP. MAKES CHANGES IN ITS HOLDINGS

Net Asset Value Stands at $64,782,143.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The report of the Lehman corporation for its fiscal year ended June 30 shows that the company in common with many other investment trusts has made important changes in its portfolio in the last few months. Purchase of substantial blocks of common stocks not hitherto appearing in the portfolio and increases in the holdings of other junior securities are revealed by the statement.

The new acquisitions and the number of shares of each made since Dec. 31, the date of the last report are as follows: 2,300 American Stores; 7,500 Brooklyn Manhattan Transit; 8,000 Drug, Inc.; 14,500 General Motors; 5,000 W. T. Grant; 9,000 Hershey Chocolate; 7,500 New York Steam, and 6,300 Stone & Webster.

Increases in Stocks Held.

Increases made during the period included 5,400 shares of American Gas and Electric; 2,500 Collins & Aikman; 16,100 Commonwealth and Southern; 8,100 Consolidated Gas of New York; 13,000 General Electric; 15,000 Kroger Grocery; 5,300 Missouri Pacific; 6,328 North American company; 4,200 Pacific Lighting; 9,100 Public Service of N. J.; 11,900 United Gas Improvement, and 8,500 shares of Woolworth.

The management trust reports that net asset value on June 30 was $64,782,143, equivalent to $74.17 a share on 873,400 shares of stock outstanding. On Dec. 31 the net asset value was $72,813,991 or $75.81 on the larger capitalization. The value of the assets at the close of the fiscal year was approximately $18,848,000 below cost. Value was computed by market quotation or appraisal in the absence of market quotations.

Net Is $3,861,022.

Net income for the year was $3,861,022, against which there was a net loss on the sale of securities of $9,893,285 resulting in a realized loss of $9,293,285. Dividends declared during the period amounted to $2,747,625. At the close of the year the company had 63 per cent of the total assets in common stock; bonds other than government and municipal, 5.4 per cent and preferred stock, 7.4 per cent. Cash assets consisted of $718,264 in cash; $10,280,363 in United States government bonds and $350,219 in municipals.

CHICAGO STOCKS QUIET

Speculative activity declined further on the Chicago exchange yesterday. With transactions representing 80,000 shares the market moved with a narrow trading range and finished the day slightly below the level of the previous day's closing level. During the early dealing moderate gains were shalked up, but these were sacrificed in the late profit taking in most instances.

Middle West Utilities company directors yesterday voted to extend common stock purchase warrants series A to Dec. 31, 1932, and to extend common stock purchase warrants series B to Dec. 30, 1933.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Prices worked higher on the Chicago curb yesterday, Keystone Copper advanced to a new top price of 32. Rustless Iron closed at 3, Hammond Clock rose a point to 5, and Standard of Indiana added a major fraction. In the real estate listings department the general income bonds of the Building corporation were admitted to trading on a when issued basis. Initial transactions were at 55 with the close at 53.

WALL ST. MARKS TIME AWAITING ACTION IN PARIS

Few Changes of Over a Point; Trade Light.

Group movements of the day were featureless. Even the rails, which had been found generally at the front of operations whichever way the market was going here of late, were content to drift with the slow moving tide. Some of the leaders lost a point or so on top of yesterday's decline.

Merchandise issues again held their own impressively, all things considered, the losses among such leaders as Woolworth, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Macy being no worse than fractional. Woolworth showed some strength for a while, but profit taking cut it down toward the last.

Expect Woolworth Action.

Speculation for the rise in Woolworth is purported to be based on expectations that some special action will be taken at next Wednesday's dividend meeting which will prove beneficial to the company's stockholders. Current gossip points to a probable increase in the cash rate to a $2 basis, with possibly some action that would pass along to shareholders at least a part of the benefits derived by the parent company from the recent capitalization of its British subsidiary. Woolworth now has a surplus equal to roughly, 150 per cent of its capital stock outstanding, whereas such surplus was equivalent to but 73 per cent of capital stock prior to the payment of the 50 per cent stock dividend some four years ago.

Another issue to make a good early showing and then fall back was International Telephone. This stock has maintained a position of no little prominence since the turn of the market a fortnight ago. In fact, it has been a popular medium of speculation since the world at large first gained knowledge of the fact that the deal with Kreuger & Toll, recently concluded, was in course of negotiation. Apparently the plans of the company for expansion did not end abruptly with the closing of that particular piece of business. At any rate, the report is current in usually well informed circles that the company is at present negotiating with other foreign communications interests, and that such deals, if successfully carried through, would be more important to it than the Kreuger & Toll transaction.

Thin Markets Rule.

Thin markets are still the rule for a good many stocks. Fairbanks Morse, appearing for the first time this week, dropped more than 3 points on the initial transaction. Amalgamated Leather preferred gained over 1 points on one sale and retouched its high for the year. Certain-teed Products preferred advanced more than 8 points on one deal and set a new high for the year. On a few sales Ingersoll Rand climbed over 7 points.

MAKE CHANGES IN PERSONNEL OF RISK COMPANIES

James S. Kemper, president of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company of Chicago and American Motorists' Insurance company, yesterday announced a number of promotions in the official staff of the two companies.

W. J. Constable, for several years associate manager of the New England department and formerly secretary of the Massachusetts rating bureau, was elected resident secretary at Boston.

R. E. Howe, assistant secretary in charge of compensation claims at the Chicago home office, and W. R. Mensberg, assistant secretary and in charge of the home office underwriting department, were elected second vice presidents.

Three members of the Chicago staff were elected assistant vice presidents. They were T. H. Gillespie, assistant to the executive vice president; W. J. Janisch, superintendent of agencies; and M. P. Luthy, director of advertising.

W. H. Thompson, manager of the accounting department also at the home office was appointed general auditor for both companies.

Automobile premium income of the Lumbermen's and the American Motorists' increased 15 per cent during the last five months of this year over the same period last year, Mr. Kemper said.

Mercantile Exchange Extends Ticker Service

The ticker service of the Chicago Mercantile exchange will be extended to Milwaukee this week. Milwaukee becomes the ninth city to receive the market news service direct from the floor of the center for the nation's trading in butter, egg and potato futures.

JULY DELIVERY WHEAT FIRMER; GAINS HALF CENT

Hear U. S. May Sell Grain to Italy or Germany.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Cash wheat is becoming difficult to buy in the southwest, according to some of the local cash handlers, and the July delivery, which necessitates a delivery of new crop grain owing to the fact that practically all of the old wheat here is owned by the government, acted a little tight yesterday, gaining about ½c on the September, and closing around 1c under the deferred future. At no time during the day was there any material pressure on the market and prices averaged higher.

Rumors were current that the Farm Board had under consideration liberal sales of cash wheat to either Germany or Italy, and, while confirmation was lacking and Washington was silent on this point, the fact that the recent official statement said sales to governments would not be regarded as part of the 5,000,000 bu which the stabilization corporation promises not to exceed per month had a little effect on sentiment which was not as bearish as on Wednesday.

Frost Scare in Canada.

The development of a little tightness in the July wheat future was somewhat of a surprise to the trade as in the last four days receipts of 14,200 cars of new winter grain have been reported at the various markets, equal to 21,000,000 bu. There were also intimations during the day that the United Kingdom and the continent had made good purchases of new crop winters and the basis at the Gulf was quoted as ½@¾c higher than the previous day.

Wheat prices here held within a range of ⅞@1c with a fair trade, and closed ⅛@⅞c higher, with the July showing the most strength, finishing at 56¾c, while September was 57⅞@58⅛c, and December, 62⅛@62½c.

While Chicago and part of the west sweltered under abnormally high temperatures a frost scare developed in the Canadian northwest, an official low of 25, or 7 degrees below freezing being reported at Empress, in the south eastern section of Alberta and close to the Saskatchewan line. This had some effect on Winnipeg, which closed ⅛@¾c higher than on Tuesday, with July at 62⅛c. No damage was claimed, however.

Estimates on Crop.

No attention was paid to the private crop estimates, although they showed an average of 689,000,000 bu winter and 192,000,000 bu spring wheat, a total of 881,000,000 bu compared with 887,000,000 bu a month ago, and 851,000,000 bu harvested last year. Estimates on the three prairie provinces ranged from 200,000,000 to 237,000,000 bu, against 374,000,000 bu harvested last year and the Canadian pool report made the condition 59, or 11 points less than two weeks ago.

A forecast by the department of agriculture suggesting a world's supply of 350,000,000 bu less than during the previous season, and also expressing a belief that 1931-32 would be another year of low wheat prices was ignored. Liverpool finished ¼d lower to ½d higher, with July 59¾c, the latter touching 59c early, equalling the lowest figure on the crop. It was estimated in private cables that Russia has already sold around 12,000,000 bu wheat for deferred shipment, with some taken yesterday by the United Kingdom at equal to 64c per bu c. i. f. Broomhall's Argentine agent looks for a decrease of 20 per cent in the acreage in that country this season.

Corn Rallies From Break.

Showers and cooler weather over part of the belt led to selling of corn futures early, with December touching 48½c, or 6¾c under the high of Monday, but the decline was taken advantage of by local shorts to cover and a rally of 1½c from the inside figures followed. The upturn was lost later due to reinstating of lines covered early, and the finish was unchanged to ⅛c lower with July, 59¼c; September, 56⅛@56⅜c, and December, 50@50⅛c.

Confirmation of reports that corn had not been damaged to any extent by the recent hot weather was found in the private crop estimates which suggested a yield of 2,906,000,000 bu, compared with 2,931,000,000 bu harvested last year. An increase of around 5 per cent in the acreage was indicated.

Movement is Erratic.

The oats market was unsettled and fluctuated in an erratic manner within a range of ½@⅝c, closing ⅜@½c higher, with July 27⅜; September, 28⅝c, and December, 31⅝@31¾c. Reinstating of recently sold out lines and commission house buying caused the advance. Private reports showed an average of 1,401,000,000 bu, or 19,000,000 bu less than last year and 1,000,000 bu less than harvested in 1930.

Available supplies of rye for the 1931-32 season, including the estimated crop and carryover, will be around 52,000,000 bu this season or 10,000,000 bu less than the previous year. Futures were firmer with wheat and closed 5@½c higher with July, 36½; September, 39c, and December, 42¾c.

Deny Reports of Canadian Pools Quitting Business

WINNIPEG, Man., July 2.—(AP)—Leaders of Canada's prairie wheat pools today refused to confirm a published report that the three pools had decided to wind up operations and go out of business temporarily. Pool officials are gathered here today at a board meeting.

A. J. McPhail, Saskatchewan pool president, and Henry Wise Wood, Alberta pool head, denied the truth of the report. No comment on its veracity was forthcoming from Colin H. Burnell, president of Manitoba wheat pool.

"We have not yet made any application to the banks for a line of credit to handle the 1931 crop," Mr. McPhail said. "No one at Ottawa is in a position to make a statement as to our future policy."

MURRAY SAYS GRAIN PRICES MUST FOLLOW SUPPLY, DEMAND LAW

President James C. Murray of the Chicago Board of Trade, when asked last night concerning Chairman James C. Stone's statement regarding the responsibility of the grain trade for not putting up the prices of wheat, said:

"The statement in the press accredited to Chairman Stone of the farm board does not directly mention the Chicago Board of Trade and other grain exchanges. Consequently, the Chicago Board of Trade would prefer to keep out of any controversy.

"If the Chicago Board of Trade were to issue any statement it would be to make clear that the grain trade could not, of itself, undertake to advance prices. Prices must follow the dictate of supply and demand.

"The only development that the board of trade could hope for in a clear and definite statement by the farm board as to its wheat accumulations would be to increase public interest in the prices of grain to an extent that would result in the public investor being put in the position of carrying the crop that is now being harvested.

"It has been hoped that such a situation might develop that the farm board's statement to the country would give such assurances that the public might know definitely just what may be expected as to the marketing of the excess supply of what which the farm board has accumulated. This would be of constructive help to the farmers who now are faced with the problem of marketing their new crops.

"The Chicago Board of Trade will continue as in the past to be helpful in any way consistent with sound business principles in disposing of the surplus which the farm board has accumulated."

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

There were intimations of a good export business having been done in new crop winter wheat to the United Kingdom and the continent, but no estimates as to the amounts taken were given. However, the basis at the gulf was quoted as ½@¾c higher, with No. 1 hard winter for last half July loading quoted at 1½c under Chicago September, and first half August at 1½c under asked and 1½c under bid. Little interest was shown in Manitobas.

Chicago handlers sold 2,000 bu wheat, 35,000 bu corn and 46,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with 250,000 bu corn sold to go to store. Purchases of 23,000 bu wheat, 31,000 bu corn and 4,000 bu oats were made to arrive. Deliveries on July contracts aggregated 184,000 bu corn, 37,000 bu oats and 447,000 bu rye.

There were no sales of cash wheat in the Chicago sample market, the receipts as heretofore going direct to mills and other interests. Bids to arrive for No. 2 red or hard winter—July, Aug., Sept. 15 shipment from the country—were 3c under Chicago September. Kansas City prices were ½@1½c higher, with No. 1 hard 1½c under September and No. 2 hard 2½c under the future. St. Louis prices were unchanged to 1c lower.

Demand for cash corn was only fair, with the basis little changed. No. 1 and No. 2 mixed were July price to ½c over. No. 1 yellow ½@1c over, No. 2 yellow ½@¾c over. No. 1 white 1½c over, and No. 2 white 1c over July.

FREAK WHEAT YEAR

This season is a freak year as far as the wheat crop is concerned the average of the private estimates given to the trade yesterday showing 689,000,000 bu winter wheat, the second largest on record, while the spring wheat crop was placed at 192,000,000 bu, the smallest in over 25 years with the exception of 1917 when it was 185,000,000 bu.

The aggregate of winter and spring wheat is 881,000,000 bu, or 6,000,000 bu less than a month ago, and compared with 851,000,000 bu harvested in 1930, a decrease of 20,000,000 bu spring offsetting an increase of 14,000,000 bu winter.

Estimates on the spring wheat crop in the three Canadian provinces averaged around 225,000,000 bu, or about 150,000,000 bu less than last year, although a leading Canadian mill was out with an estimate of only 200,000,000 bu, and the crop there promises to be the smallest in years.

A corn crop of 2,906,000,000 bu, or nearly 1,000,000,000 bu more than harvested in 1930 was shown by the reports, which suggested an increase of around 5 per cent in the acreage, making the total around 105,000,000 acres, against 100,829,000 acres last year. Condition of the crop was placed at 83.7, against 79.9 a year ago, and a 10 year average of 80.8. Oat crop was reduced 19,000,000 bu during the last month. Details follow, last six ciphers omitted:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Developments in the wheat situation after the close yesterday forecast a bearish situation for the Canadian wheat pools, as indicated by messages from Winnipeg, also a further mixup in the farm board situation. Movement of wheat in the southwest is steadily increasing and grain is being diverted to other markets and to milling points at a rate that is expected to load them up within the next few weeks. Tightness in July wheat has caused a great deal of comment among the trade. The farm board is not touching the new winter wheat crop and the best of information is that they will not, unless they change their present plans. The impression of the crowd is that wheat is a sale on all bulges. There was buying of wheat in Winnipeg and selling in Chicago by local traders, the poor prospects in Canada inviting purchases of the Winnipeg futures.

Private reports estimate the corn crop at 3,006,000,000 bu. Commenting on the estimates, an active trader said there have been only 5 years when we raised a 3,000,000,000 bu crop. Should the final returns show over 3,000,000,000 bu, it might be hard to bull corn much above the present level. The first 3,000,000,000 bu crop was in 1912, the second in 1917, with a crop of 3,209,000,000 bu in 1920 and 3,054,000,000 bu in 1928.

"Cash handlers tell us it is getting more difficult to buy wheat in the southwest and I believe this will be increasingly true as immediate cash requirements are provided for," says Harvey Williams of Thomson & McKinnon. "As the harvest moves north there will, of course, be additional first run wheat, but the falling off in the more southern sections, together with the unusually heavy volume already marketed, probably will bring the movement down about to a seasonal normal during July. After the double holiday next Monday there will be a big accumulation at all primary marekts, which should prove an authentic test of the ability of the marke to absorb sales. Personally, I believe the market will meet this test satisfactorily."

"With a wheat crop in sight of approximately 900,000,000 bu or more, and a very indifferent export demand and Russia as a heavy competitor, we anticipate lower prices," says the Uhlmann Grain company.

CANADIAN CROPS LOWER

"Weather conditions in the northwest during the last two weeks have been generally favorable to the growing crops and since the recent rains the Red River valley, southern Minnesota and the lower half of South Dakota have prospects of a good average crop," says the Van Dusen Harrington report.

"Northwestern North Dakota and eastern Montana do not show much improvement and crops of wheat and small grains will be light in that territory. Good rains have improved conditions in central Montana. The flax crop over entire territory is very spotted. Rye will not make anything like an average crop."

A preliminary estimates places Spain's wheat yield at 143,200,000 bu against 145,040,000 bu last year and 154,240,000 bu 2 years ago. Barley is estimated at 86,325,000 bu compared with 101,000,000 bu last year and 96,360,000 bu 2 years ago.

The wheat crop in the three western Canadian provinces shows deterioration during the last 2 weeks and condition as of June 27 was 59 per cent of normal, as given by the Canadian wheat pool's report. This condition compares with an estimate of 70 per cent two weeks ago. Condition at end of June in 1930 was 83, in 1929 it was 81 and 99 in 1928. Manitoba condition is placed at 59, Saskatchewan 48 and Alberta 81 per cent.

PROFIT TAKING IN BUTTER

An easier tone prevailed in butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, November butter deliveries closing ¼@½c lower than the previous close. Potatoes were 2c lower on all classes. Statistical news during the day was fair in both butter and eggs, the storage movement being considerably less than a year ago, but the rainy and cooler weather over the production states was the prime influence in the trading. Fear of increased production resulted in bringing in profit taking in butter. Sales: butter, 65 cars; eggs, 15 cars; potatoes, 11 cars. Prices follow:

Canopied during the day, open to the sky evenings. Parlors and suites decorated and furnished to please the ultra fastidious. Double or twin beds. Shower and tub baths. Screen doors which open on the coolest "front porch" you ever enjoyed.

Sail on the palatial, oil-burning, White Liners, "NORTH AMERICAN" or "SOUTH AMERICAN" from Navy Pier, Chicago, to the peaceful Georgian Bay country . . . Cruise in American and Canadian waters to Parry Sound, Canada . . . .

Three hours at Mackinac Island . . . Three hours at Detroit . . . stop at Cleveland . . . Full day at Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

This is the only trip from Chicago into beautiful Georgian Bay, Canada, and these two ships are the only exclusively passenger "cruising" ships on the Great Lakes. Bear these important facts in mind in planning your trip. Sail the Luxury Way on oil burners. No smoke—no cinders.

A slight drop in temperatures, coupled with the meager supplies of fat stock offered yesterday, forced all classes into an advance. Cattle and hogs scored the sharpest gains, although the market for the latter was more erratic than usual, due to some of the widest price ranges on record. The twenty markets handled only 113,000 head of cattle, hogs and sheep against 181,000 a week ago.

Outlet for well finished stock was broad at mostly 25c higher prices yesterday, while others dragged along slowly and finished only slightly above the general selling the previous day. The extreme top advanced 25c at $7.50, while the general average gained 20c at $6.30. Top prices have advanced $1.00@1.25 since the low point a few weeks ago, while packing grades have declined.

The latter are only 25c above the lowest spot in the last 33 years. There is usually a decrease in hog receipts about this time of the year. The seven market total is expected to fall short of 400,000, the second smallest of the year. In 1930 the decrease at 11 points during the first three weeks at 1,500 amounted to 11 per cent compared with the preceding three weeks.

September Hogs Bring $7.50.

The strloads of September hogs were sold at $7.50 on the futures market yesterday and contracts for eight more loads were offered at the same figure. December mediums were offered at $7.75 and light and-heavy for December were offered at $8.25. On the "to arrive" market, bids for next Monday's light weight hogs ranged up to $7.50, but the lowest offers stood at $7.75.

Medium and weighty beeves, which ruled most during the recent drubbing, scored the sharpest gains yesterday and finished fully 25c above the general market Wednesday. Fancy yearling steers averaging 828 lbs topped the list at $8.50. The bulk of $6.75@7.60, although fair sized lots of common cattle ranged downwards to $5.00. Cows and heifers suffered slow at the week's 50c decline and compared with two weeks ago show losses of $1.50. Calves were steady yesterday, but they have declined $1.50 since the opening this week.

Sheep Receipts Small.

Only 5,000 lambs arrived at Chicago yesterday, the smallest Thursday total of the year. Demand showed some improvement and prices ruled strong-to. Most strong weight native lambs started at $7.25, although upwards of $7.50 was paid by city butchers and traders. Montana stock was common and sold at $5.00. Yearlings and aged sheep were scarce and unsold. Although supplies at all points have been running smallest of the year this week, the total at seven markets is expected to reach 185,000, which is above any corresponding period in more than 10 years.

COTTON SELLS LOWER

Cotton markets were under pressure yesterday and closed around the lowest prices with losses on futures in Chicago of 11@14 points. New Orleans 14@16, and New York 17@21 points. Spots dropped 15 points to 10c in New York and Galveston, and 12 to 9c in New Orleans and Houston. Liverpool closed 6@7 points net higher, with sales of 5,000 bales.

A good deal of the selling was attributed to Wall street and to professional traders. Price fixing by spinners on a scale down and the buying of distant months for Bremen and the continent, furnished the bulk of the buying. At the last Japanese interests became active buyers of near futures. A private crop report gave the condition and estimated the yield at 15,500,000 to 14,000,000 bales, depending upon the weather. Acreage reduction was 11.2 per cent. Logan & Bryan say that price fluctuations will likely be confined to a small range, pending announcement of the consummation of President Hoover's proposal on debt plan. Prices follow:

STATE AND COUNTY LAWS FLOUTED BY DEALERS IN FIREWORKS. Stand within fifteen feet of gas tank at Lincoln and Crawford avenues, which violates state law by proximity to filling station and county regulation against sale of fireworks on a county road. The owner is only one of many violators. (Story on page 1.)
